KING GETS 'TIME TO DECIDE'

POPE IMPROVES; REST HELPFUL TO AILING LEG

Asthma Strain, Too, Is Lessened.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI. gained slightly today in his fight against partial paralysis of the legs while millions of Roman Catholics throughout the world prayed for him.

A verbal bulletin given out in the evening declared:

"His holiness' general circulatory condition has been notably improved because of the repose which he finally has been willing to take."

The pope, prelates said, ate heartily tonight of a dish of rice with meat sauce. He expressed a desire to participate in Monday's Vatican services for the beginning of Advent, but doctors said he must stay in bed.

The ceremony was being prepared, however, as if the pope were to be present.

Asthma Lessens.

Vatican prelates felt especially relieved over the improvement in circulation because they had feared a blood clot which developed on the left leg of the 79 year old pontiff might have serious consequences.

The pope, suffering also from the general ailments of advancing age, passed a comparatively restful night. The asthma with which he also is afflicted was reported to have lessened this morning, when a bulletin said the holy father's condition was "unchanged but with a slight tendency toward betterment."

He gave in today, without any opposition, to the insistent urging of Dr. Aminta Milani that he remain quietly in bed.

But he stubbornly held out against submitting to a medical examination.

Refuses Examination.

Father Agostino Gemelli, a Franciscan priest and a medical specialist, arrived in Rome and placed himself at the pope's disposition after being summoned from Milan.

Vatican officials, in calling for him, had hoped he might make a physical examination, which the pontiff had not permitted secular doctors to make.

But the pope would have nothing of it, and up to tonight Father Gemelli had not succeeded in being admitted to the pope's presence. He decided to remain in Rome, to be of help if needed.

Thousands of masses were said in Italian churches this morning for the aged church leader and more were recited at afternoon vesper services.

Telegrams arriving from many parts of the world told of special services in other countries.

Relatives Pay Visits.

Donna Camilla Ratti, the pope's sister, who lives in Rome, visited him in the afternoon for the second time today. His sister-in-law, Signora Ernestina Ratti, and his nephew, Count Franco Ratti, also called in the afternoon.

After her morning visit, Donna Ratti declared she felt optimistic over his condition. Many dignitaries of the church and laymen called at the Vatican throughout the day to ask for news. Among them were Prince Ruspoli, grand master of the Order of Hospitals; Cardinal Lauri, governor of Vatican City, and several members of the diplomatic corps accredited to the Vatican.

The pope asked to be placed in an armchair near his mahogany writing desk this morning, but did not press the matter against physicians' objections.

Wants to Sit Up.

Hundreds of persons who went to St. Peter's square today could see the curtains of windows to the pope's room drawn, but the shutters were opened wide. Throughout the day a light rain pattered against the windowpane and dark clouds hung over the Vatican.

After a late but fairly substantial breakfast the pope received Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, papal secretary of state, and conferred with him for nearly an hour on the problems of church administration.

The pope's illness was discovered yesterday when he was unable to arise for a ceremonial concluding a week of spiritual exercises. He was barely able to stir the left leg and physicians found that the heaviness of limb had spread also to the right leg. High blood pressure and arterio sclerosis also complicated his condition.

SEASON'S FIRST ZERO WAVE HITS SHIVERING CITY

Ice Coated Streets Imperil Trafic.

A zero wave, the first of the winter, laid an icy grasp over Chicago, its suburbs, and most of the central west last night as bitter northwest winds kicked up a heavy sea on Lake Michigan endangering shipping.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel predicted the severe cold would continue through today, with clear skies. Tomorrow should bring somewhat higher temperatures accompanied by snow, he added, while the arctic cold spreads through the Ohio valley, Kentucky, Tennessee, and the east, where temperatures have been unusually moderate.

Drop of 39 Degrees in Day.

At 1 o'clock this morning the unofficial temperature at the Chicago airport was zero. This represented a drop of 39 degrees from yesterday's high mark recorded at 3 a. m. on the official gauge at the University of Chicago observatory.

Many suburbs reported temperatures below zero at midnight, with even lower readings in prospect by morning. Some of the lowest readings were Libertyville, 6 below; Great Lakes Naval Training station, 3 below; Waukegan, Glencoe, Des Plaines, Berwyn, and Willow Springs, 2 below, and Winnetka, Forest Park, and Elmwood Park, 1 below.

Streets and Roads Hazardous.

The sudden drop in temperature created many trafic hazards. Slush formed during the snow, sleet, and rain storm late Saturday froze into an ice sheeth over city streets and country roads. Eighteen telephone operators at the Chicago Motor club were handling complaint calls of stalled cars and minor trafic accidents at the rate of 150 an hour.

Trolley wires, contracting under the rapid change in temperature, snapped in four places in western suburbs, but caused no damage. A city trolley wire snapped off at Washington and Randolph street, falling on the automobile of Policeman James P. McLaughlin, 1330 Hyde Park boulevard. Again no damage was done.

Rescue 25 Off Freighter.

Capt. James Wood and twenty-four members of the crew of the freighter Burlington were rescued by coast guardsmen yesterday when the ship ran aground in Lake Michigan near Holland, Mich. during a storm. Abandoned 100 feet from the break water at Holland, the ship was pounded severely by heavy seas. Last night it was still uncertain whether the boat would break up.

Freighters moved slowly through the Soo canal at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., as the heavy ice which had held many fast, became soft. They made haste when the meteorologist forecast zero weather today.

A package freighter, the J. M. Davis, owned by the Great Lakes Transit company, aground near Round Island in upper St. Mary's river there awaited the arrival of a sister craft to free her.

Lake Tempers Shore Cities.

The season's first cold wave reached yesterday into central and southern Illinois and into Indiana. Lacking the protection of Lake Michigan, inland towns had more severe weather.

Canadian towns had the coldest weather on the continent, with such reports as 46 below at Battleford, and 30 below at Medicine Hat and The Pas. The coldest spot in the United States was Havre, Mont., 26 below zero.

Fair weather here today is expected to follow the general rain, snow, and sleet which, in the 24 hours ended last 7 p. m., gave Chicago and Milwaukee .40 of an inch of precipitation, and Peoria, Springfield, and Madison a third of an inch. Cairo reported .92 of an inch.

TROTZKY GIVEN RIGHT TO LIVE IN MEXICO AS POLITICAL EXILE

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The foreign relations department announced tonight the Mexican government had given permission to Leon Trotzky, Russian revolutionary now in exile at Storsand, Norway, to come to Mexico and "remain as long as he desires." Trotzky's Norwegian permit expires soon.

A statement issued by Foreign Secretary Edouardo Hay said Trotzky's life "was in grave danger" because European governments had refused him permission to live within their boundaries. The statement pointed out that the authorization granted to the exile from Russia to come to Mexico is in line with Mexico's policy of granting "asylum to those exiled for political causes." He added Trotzky will be expected "to abide by our laws and not take part in the social and political affairs of Mexico."

Reports Trotzky was seeking permission to reside in Mexico before quitting Norway, first came last week from the Confederation of Workers of Mexico, which announced it would do everything possible to keep him out of the country. It is believed Trotzky's desire to come to Mexico was communicated to President Lazaro Cardenas by Diego Rivera, noted muralist. A formal permit for Trotzky to enter Mexico will be sent him as soon as he applies for it.

MOTORMAN PUTS A NEW TWIST ON CONTROL HANDLE

Edward J. Birmingham, 4615 Wallace street, motorman-conductor of a one man street car on 71st street, demonstrated the value of a controler handle last night.

As he was about to stop his car at Indiana avenue a passenger prodded him in the back and ordered him to "keep on going." Half a block east of Indiana avenue the passenger took Birmingham's money changer containing $2.70 and opened the exit door to alight.

Birmingham noticed that the man carried only a jackknife, so he yanked the handle off the control board and cracked down with it on the robber's head. When Sergt. Charles Johnson and a Grand Crossing police squad arrived they found the robber sitting on the curb, holding his giddy head in his hands, and Birmingham standing over him with the control handle.

At the Bridewell hospital the prisoner identified himself as Melvin Hammerlund, 29 years old, 1349 West 70th street.

Betty, 15, Wins Wild Ovation in Opera Debut

BY EDWARD BARRY.

It can't happen here nor anywhere else. But it did.

A 15 year old high school girl sang Mimi last night against the tremendous Rodolfo of Giovanni Martinelli in a special Chicago City Opera company production of "La Boheme," and scored a success which fairly shook the rafters of the Civic Opera house.

She is Betty Jaynes, known to her family and friends as Betty Jane Schultz, and she lives in Chicago's south shore district. The feat the youngster performed last night in making a debut in a major house at such an age has probably no precedent in operatic history.

Betty is slim, pretty, and well preserved, for she does not look quite so old as she claims to be.

Calm in Her Great Moment.

The child has not a nerve in her whole body. Facing that huge crowd and knowing that the moment toward which she had been working so long was at hand, she betrayed no more concern than if the occasion were a school performance out in her own neighborhood. She acted almost as if the whole thing were happening to someone else. All the fluttering nerves and dry mouths were on the audience's side of the footlights.

The astounding thing, though, is the quality of her voice. Those who came expecting to hear some thin piping from a frightened youngster were astonished at the roundness of her first shy phrases from behind the garret door. When the big moment came, and Martinelli turned eagerly toward her at the conclusion of his Narrative, Betty began the "Mi Chiamano Mimi" without a tremor in her voice, much as if she had only been impatient to get to the aria and was glad now to have a chance to show what she could do.

Voice Surprisingly Mature.

Her voice is surprisingly mature, with an extremely attractive, rather dusky, coloring to its lower register, and lots of freshness and youthfulness above that. She sings easily, forcing her tones very seldom. Even on those few occasions, one's fears that something untoward will happen always turn out to be groundless. Her tones do not break, although there are occasional evidences of a little too much vibrato. This is not unpleasant to the ear, but alarming to the mind, for it is impossible to forget that the vocal organs which are producing all of this tone are still, by the very law of nature, in a condition of development which makes any straining dangerous in the extreme.

She got through that terrific duo with Martinelli without trouble [has any one on a debut ever had a more fearsome tenor to match?] and took her proper share in the perilous offstage climax of the act.

Takes Long Sequences in Stride.

Betty came back for the third act feeling fine but managing to look like the sad, snow harried Mimi of the story. In this division of the play she gets an opportunity for long sequences of passionate, almost hysterical singing.

These difficulties, too, the marvelous child took in her stride. Her upper octave seemed cleaner even than it had in the first act, and any lingering doubts as to whether she is capable of a sustained fortissimo were dispelled long before the fall of the curtain.

Miraculously, Betty Jaynes is a good Mimi, and would be considered a good Mimi even if her extreme youth had not doubled the enthusiasm of last night's audience. She has a poignancy about her voice and a slim, childlike pathos in her bearing which fit the rôle of the unfortunate little seamstress admirably.

Do not ask now whether Betty can act. "La Boheme" offers a perfect part for a soprano who wants to delay an answer to that question until after she has successfully surmounted some of the higher hurdles. Anyway, what do you want in a 15 year old girl?

With care and luck, Betty Jaynes should have an amazing career. The wise guides who have taken her so far will see to it that that precious voice is not overtaxed, and will firmly veto the idea of the girl singing major rôles regularly during the next few years.

If progress continues at anything like its present rate, Betty Jaynes at 23 or 24 will be a great artist. She shows promise of style and stage presence, much more than promise of a superb soprano voice.

Betty Jaynes is a pupil of Mme. Herman Devries of Chicago.

TOYING WITH GADGET GIVES THE INSPECTOR AN ANXIOUS MOMENT

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 6.—(AP)—"I wonder what this is?" mused Inspector David Stevens as he tinkered with a gadget at his headquarters desk.

The reply was a sizzle. The thing leaped from his hands and struck his face.

Immediately policemen raced for doors, prisoners howled in their cells, fire trucks sped to headquarters. Finally masked firemen quieted the confusion.

Inspector Stevens knows what the gadget was now—a tear gas bomb.

CABINET FIRM ON WALLY; AGREES NOT TO HURRY HIM

See Britons Stage Social Upheaval Over Ruler's Fate.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 6.—England tonight was in the throes of a political and social upheaval which left the entire nation fearful.

Cries of "We want the king!" and "Down with Baldwin!" rang through the murky streets before Buckingham palace, in Downing street, and in the country roads about Fort Belvedere, King Edward's country estate.

Milling crowds were curbed by nervous policemen. Behind these demonstrations an anti-Puritan reaction to pharisaic conventions and Victorian cant has set in—a reaction which appears bound to affect deeply the social fabric of the English, even if it does not succeed in keeping King Edward VIII. on the throne.

People Are Agitated.

The people have become extremely emotional and agitated over the crisis, urged on by ambitious politicians who apparently are seeking to form a king's party as against the cabinet party. The public, some believe, may stage a spectacle which has not been seen in this country since the days of Oliver Cromwell.

The nation faced a complete split in this day's events. There were hostile demonstrations in Downing street against the archbishop of Canterbury. The cabinet of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin was booed and hissed, and there were other demonstrations of enthusiastic patriotism which approached the maudlin.

Reaction to the struggle has taken diverse forms. It is giving play to opposing interests, clashing privileges, and irresponsible ambitions. King Edward has been popular and has had a following, but not such as to explain the anti-Puritan, anti-administrative, anti-Baldwin, and just plain sentimental reaction which is now seething in his favor.

Its very intensity seemed to make it appear to be of the exploited variety, which might be quickly defiated—unless, in fact, it is a long pentup ebullition over other matters.

Some Call It Ebulliency.

Some people think it is mere ebulliency. They believe that in the long run even popular judgment will hold Edward inexcusable for having, at this inopportune time in world affairs, risked a monarchial crisis for his lady love, Mrs. Wallis Simpson, and for having been incapable of sacrificing his personal sentiments for the interests of the empire—in a word, for having put love before duty.

The impression has grown in fact that England and its empire will not

Baldwin Will Relate Story of Row to Commons Today.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The British empire crisis caused by the love of King Edward VIII. of England for Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson still was unsettled tonight.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin is expected to make a statement to the house of commons tomorrow, but he will not announce the king's abdication because Edward has not yet signed it. Parliament, which will convene at 2:45 p. m. [8:45 a. m. central standard time], will be told that the cabinet is not hurrying the king in his momentous decision.

Because of an aroused public opinion, the cabinet today decided to give the king more time in which to consider his future course instead of compelling him to make a precipitate promise to give up Mrs. Simpson or to abdicate.

Cabinet's Attitude Revealed.

The attitude of the cabinet was revealed tonight by an official spokesman who sought to offset the effect of the accusation of Winston Churchill, Conservative statesman, that the king was being rushed into abdication. The statement follows:

"The position after tonight's cabinet meeting is that the king is being left as much time as he chooses to take to decide what his course will be in following the disposal of the question of a morganatic marriage which is definitly ruled out.

"There is no question of the cabinet having presented any sort of ultimatum or even formal advice to the king as to what he should do.

Tells What Has Taken Place.

"All that has taken place up to the moment is that consequent upon the king's approach to the prime minister regarding the possibility of legalizing a morganatic marriage the prime minister had a number of informal consultations with the king which included, of course, the intimation already known that the United Kingdom and dominion governments would not be prepared to initiate legislation for a morganatic marriage.

"It is understood that deliberation of the ministers and of the full cabinet have been directed to getting it to form all steps and documentary formalities which would be required should the king decide on a course which would have constitutional consequences.

"The reason for the intensive deliberation of the ministers during the week-end is a recognition of the fact that such delay as is inevitable in the king reaching his decision is necessarily undermining to confidence, affecting employment, depreciating stocks, and to a large extent paralyzing the arm of the government in international affairs.

"These provisional preparations have no other purpose than that already mentioned—namely: to enable any constitutional questions which may result from the king's ultimate decision to be dealt with with the least possible delay."

Baldwin to Tell His Story.

Opinion expressed tonight in well informed political circles was that it has been decided Baldwin should make a complete statement of what has happened, step by step, to the house of commons. Parliament may force action after hearing this statement, but it is generally believed that the house will await further action by the cabinet.

In spite of many comings and goings between 10 Downing street, where the prime minister lives, and the king's private home in the country, Fort Belvedere, nothing has leaked out about the king's decision.

Many think he will cut the knot by abdication. In this case, the gossips say, he intends to marry the twice divorced Mrs. Simpson and buy a big estate somewhere in South America. This story is based apparently on the fact that the presence of a king who has abdicated would be almost impossible anywhere in the empire over which he had ruled. Edward also is known to like South America, which he visited recently.

Some Believe He'll Sit Tight.

There is no firm indication, however, that he intends to take this step. A large portion of public opinion believes he will sit tight on the throne and let the Baldwin cabinet do its worst.

In such an event he has been assured by his advisers that he will have the support of a great majority of the British people.

That there is some truth in this was evidenced by the attitude of the crowds which assembled at Downing street, Hyde Park, and other parts of London today. Everywhere "God Save the King" was sung fervently and enthusiastic cheers were raised for Edward.

Day of Conferences.

This was a day of conferences and messages. Early this morning Baldwin, who had seen the king at Fort Belvedere late last night, sent out a hurry call for a meeting of his cabinet at 10:30 a. m. This was not a formal cabinet meeting, but was attended by principal members and they sat for nearly an hour.

Walter T. Monckton, attorney general for the duchy of Cornwall and King Edward's personal legal adviser, arrived during this meeting from Fort Belvedere and, after a short conference, returned to the king's country estate.

It was rumored that Monckton had carried a new proposition to the cabinet from the king. Later in the day, when the regular cabinet was in session, Monckton came back again and sat with the ministers.

The regular cabinet met at 5:30 p. m. and sat until after 7 p. m. putting the final touches on Baldwin's statement to the house of commons tomorrow. A cabinet meeting scheduled for Monday was canceled in view of tonight's session.

Draft Submitted to King.

A draft of a deed of abdication already has been submitted to the king, according to the Morning Post for Monday. This, it is understood, explains the visits of Monckton, the king's adviser, to Baldwin's residence.

Among the questions with which Monckton was particularly concerned is that of the future of the duchy of Cornwall. Legal authorities were uncertain as to whether the duchy, from which Edward has derived large revenues, is held by the king of a personal right or whether it is an appurtenance of the crown.

According to the Morning Post, the king is awaiting the development of public opinion before allowing an official announcement of his choice of the abdication question.

Churchill Sees Monarch.

Meanwhile, Churchill's plea not to rush the king assumed added significance in view of the revelation in Monday's News-Chronicle that Churchill saw the monarch at Fort Belvedere late Friday night. The interview is said to have taken place with Baldwin's concurrence, and Churchill's statement was assumed to represent what is in the king's mind.

In support of this manner of airing the king's views, it was pointed out that there are obvious difficulties in the way of Edward presenting his angle directly to the nation. In a constitutional monarchy he must speak either through his ministers or in words approved by them, which is ruled out in the present case.

Press Lords Play Big Role.

It is not known just how much Baldwin will disclose to parliament but there is some secret history of the part played by the Canadian peer, Lord Beaverbrook, and Lord Rothermere, newspaper publishers, in stiffening the king's determination. That part is not likely to be told.

From persons in close touch I learned that when Baldwin was first sent for by Edward and informed that the monarch intended to marry Mrs. Simpson, the prime minister told the king he could not do such thing.

Baldwin Thinks It Over.

"Then I will abdicate," the king was said to have replied, and Baldwin went away to think it over.

A day or two later the king summoned his prime minister again and suggested a way out in a morganatic marriage. This would require legislation, as such a marriage is unknown to English law. Baldwin refused to permit such legislation. Edward again threatened to abdicate. A few days later, the story goes, Edward was ready to sign a pact of abdication when his advisers, including the two press lords, Beaverbrook and Rothermere, persuaded him to sit tight. It is reported they assured him the English people would support him against the politicians and society in marrying the woman of his choice. They are also said to have promised him the widest support in their newspapers, and it is evident the promise is being kept.

One form is an elaborate campaign to build up Mrs. Simpson as charming, kind, clever, and altogether a good influence on the king. Pages were devoted to this in the Sunday papers of Beaverbrook and Rothermere.

Rothermere Sounds Warning.

Last night Rothermere's evening paper contained a blunt warning, signed by him, that the king could not be "smuggled off the throne" over the week-end, which was the evident intention of the government. It is believed they have persuaded him to refuse to give up Mrs. Simpson, to demand a general election, or to abdicate.

That puts it up to Baldwin, who may resign, in which case the king might, with the support of the popular press and of the growing popular enthusiasm, be able to form an alternative ministry. This probably would be led by Churchill. He is busy organizing a party which already is being referred to as the "king's friends," and which might prove strong enough to form a ministry.

If this failed, the next step would be a general election. However, Edward would be in the strong tactical position of not having forced it, placing that responsibility on Baldwin.

Seek to Oust Baldwin.

There is no doubt about the genuineness of the support of the two press lords for the king, but it is also a golden opportunity to get rid of Baldwin, whom they have been fighting bitterly for a long time and whom they believe to be a danger to the country for his supineness and lack of leadership.

Churchill has been in close contact with these press lords for some time and there is reason to believe that he would be persona grata to them. Even before the crisis he was busy organizing a patriotic center party which included a number of prominent Labor leaders, and it is almost certain all of these would follow him in support of King Edward.

Of course, in addition to the political position there has been violent reaction against the marriage of the king and Mrs. Simpson in the higher ranks of English society. Its members hate to see the king go abroad for a commoner bride and this, it is reported, has been intensified by the former Baltimore belle's tactlessness in flaunting her relations with the monarch in public and in private. One story is that when he entered a room she alone of the company did not rise to her feet, and that on one occasion, at a party in Buckingham palace, she remained sitting on the floor and hailed him with: "Hello David."

Society Believes Stories.

This may or may not be true, but it is believed all over exclusive west end London and that is just as good, or bad, as if it were true. As a counter to the campaign for popular enthusiasm for the king, and the building up of Mrs. Simpson, the other side has started a whispering campaign about the king's health.

He is said to be on the verge of a nervous breakdown, to be losing his mind, and so on. None of the rumors, I am assured, is true. It is admitted he is under a heavy strain, due both to work and to anxiety, and he must be feeling it.

Tonight there was speculation on what Baldwin will do, rather than on what the king will do. Of course, the king may weaken, but it is felt that if he sticks to his guns he is strong enough to win.

The ageing Queen Mother Mary figured prominently in the day's grave deliberations. Baldwin went to see her at Marlborough house in the morning. The prime minister sat well back in his car and a crowd of sightseers caught only a brief glimpse of him. He left again in about a half hour.

Sees Former Spanish Queen.

Later Queen Mary, looking pale and tired from strain, drove from Marlborough house for a brief visit with former Queen Victoria Eugénie of Spain at Kensington.

A crowd which had kept a vigil outside the gates for several hours greeted the queen sympathetically. Men waved their hats and women waved handkerchiefs and scarfs. The queen, grave faced, bowed repeatedly.

The royal family spent a comparatively quiet day, the only family consultation apparently being the trip of the duke of Kent to visit the duke and duchess of York in the Royal lodge, Windsor Great Park.

King Edward remained in seclusion in his country home at Fort Belvedere where he has been since 2 a. m. Friday.

WALLY IS TIRED AND UPSET, HER HOST DECLARES

Says She Will Stay on Riviera Several Days.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANNES, France, Dec. 6.—The first formal communique on behalf of Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, whose friendship with King Edward VIII of England has rocked the British empire, was issued this afternoon by Herman Livingston Rogers, her American host.

"Mrs. Simpson is very tired and upset as a result of her journey," he said. "I can assure you she will remain at my villa all day, unless something very unusual should occur. She will stay at the villa for several days until she fully recuperates from her tedious trip. As to other questions, I cannot answer them because I do not know."

Mrs. Simpson arrived at 11:45 p. m. yesterday at Lou Viei, the Riviera villa of Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, after a two day flight from England by boat and automobile. She was accompanied upon arrival by a man understood to be a Scotland Yard detective.

Rogers Goes to Cannes.

Rogers made several trips to Cannes unaccompanied by Scotland Yard or French sûreté generale detectives. It is believed he went there in order to telephone to London.

Mrs. Simpson was seen on a balcony of the Rogers house clad in a pink dressing gown, but as soon as she noticed photographers she ducked inside.

Reports that King Edward is expected here Tuesday persisted.

This information was obtained first late last night by THE TRIBUNE'S correspondent. His informants were two of the detectives charged with guarding Mrs. Simpson.

Encountered by THE TRIBUNE correspondent as they hastily grabbed a bite to eat in a local restaurant they accepted drinks and chatted with the correspondent. Both spoke English—one was from Scotland Yard and the other from the French sûreté generale. They talked guardedly save to volunteer information that the entire entourage was expecting the king to join Mrs. Simpson on Tuesday.

Although it is always possible they connived to hoax the correspondent the circumstances and friendliness of the conversation point away from that explanation.

Man Yacht at Monte Carlo.

CANNES, France, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The captain and a full crew boarded the yacht Sister Anne in Monte Carlo harbor tonight after some reports said King Edward VIII., if he abdicated, would fly to meet Mrs. Wallis Simpson aboard the vessel.

The yacht is owned by Mrs. Reginald Fellowes, an old friend of both the king and Mrs. Simpson.

Mrs. Simpson arose refreshed by eleven hours' sleep after her long auto voyage across France and threw open the blinds of her room at Lou Viei Villa to gaze at the magic panorama of the Riviera. Suddenly Mrs. Simpson noticed a small group of curious townsfolk gathered near the estate's carefully guarded gateway and drew back quickly, pulling the curtain.

A bright sun shone down over the natural stairway of terraces leading to the harbor.

The villa, an old dwelling built in feudal times and completely modernized when Herman Livingston Rogers acquired it in 1928, is of pink stucco, trimmed with blue and red tiled roof.

There was an effusion of flowers in the garden, which included a tea pavilion, and badminton courts.

Although on a narrow road and high on the hills overlooking Cannes, the gardens easily were visible to the outside world and were separated from the highway only by a low wall and wire net fence.

EARL AND COUNTESS OF WARWICK FILE FOR DIVORCE IN LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The Earl and Countess of Warwick have started divorce proceedings here, the News of the World reported today. The earl is in Hollywood, Cal., working in the movies and the countess recently returned here from a trip to America.

Charles Guy Fulke Greville, seventh earl of Warwick, who is drawing down $1,000 a week as Michael Brooke in the movies, married the beautiful young Rose Bingham in 1933. She came to America last summer and spent several weeks in Hollywood as a guest of Adrienne Ames, even took a part in one film as an extra for $7.50 a day. But it was her handsome husband whom the movie moguls signed to a fat contract. His salary, it is understood, is to be doubled if he makes good in the films. He took the job, he admitted, to recoup the Warwick fortune.

The couple, separated much of the last year, last met in New York in October, when he arrived on his way to the west coast and she was returning to London. They had suites in different hotels.

FINDS SIMPSON 'FORGOTTEN MAN' IN BRITISH ROW

Press Ignores Him; Fears Suit for Libel.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Through all the uproar of Great Britain's "constitutional crisis," Ernest Aldrich Simpson, ship charterer from whom Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson secured a decree nisi of divorce on Oct. 27, is practically unmentioned, despite newspaper columns upon columns of every sort of comment and rumor and description of every other phase of the situation and pictures of everyone else concerned.

"Why?" a Fleet street journalist was asked today.

First Husband Is Pictured.

Even Mrs. Simpson's first husband, Commander Earl Winfield Spencer of the United States navy, is pictured in the newspapers, but only a single brief squib at the beginning of the deluge of publicity mentioned Simpson. It merely quoted him as saying he was glad he was out of the limelight. Except for that, he has been mentioned only in biographical sketches of his wife, and then only very briefly.

On the surface the newspapers have gone whole hog over the affair ever since the speech last Wednesday by the Rt. Rev. Dr. A. W. F. Blunt, bishop of Bradford, blew the lid off the story of the romance between King Edward VIII. and Mrs. Simpson.

Actually the newspapers have been most careful to avoid certain things and chief among them is undue attention to Simpson.

As far as the king and Mrs. Simpson themselves are concerned, they figure in the whole affair too important for minor points to be picked up.

Might Plead "Public Interest."

If any legal action were taken, publishers and editors could always plead "public interest"—that the interests affected were so vital that they were justified in overriding the ordinary restrictions.

There would be little danger of their losing such a case, for the majority of the upper classes, including the magistracy, evidently side with the cabinet in its opposition to the king's desire to keep the woman he loves.

But to drag in an ex-husband—who is not yet definitly divorced in the eyes of the law—would mean the definite risk of being haled into court.

Bar Excessive Discussion.

For one thing, excessive discussion of a divorce case, or speculation on whether the decree will be made final by Mr. Justice Sir Anthony Hawke in April would be a violation of the law in discussing a matter still "sub justice"—under the consideration of the court.

The heavy fines imposed on newspapers in the McMahon incident, when King Edward was "alarmed" show how heavily British courts bear down on these cases.

[George Andrew McMahon, 32, a self-styled journalist, threw a loaded revolver into the path of King Edward's horse on July 16 as the king rode homeward on Constitution hill from a ceremony in Hyde park. McMahon said he did not wish to harm the king, but to call attention to a grievance he believed he had against the government. He was sentenced to twelve months in prison at hard labor by a jury on Sept. 14. The charge was trying to alarm the king.]

Quite aside from any public prosecution, any personal mention of Simpson would invite suits under the notoriously stringent British law of libel and slander.

Even the slightest suspicion of derogatory comment or anything of the sort is usually sufficient grounds for filing suit under these laws and it takes little evidence, as a rule, to win heavy damages.

The amounts granted by British courts usually are far in excess of anything an American court would give in the same case.

Whatever news value Simpson might have, editors feel it is not enough to counterbalance the heavy loss they would risk.

Mrs. Simpson may continue indefinitly to hold the spotlight in the British public attention, but there is little danger that her former husband will be disturbed in the routine of his existence at the exclusive Guards club where, as a former officer of the Coldstream guards, he has taken up his residence.

Swing to King's Side.

One by one all the newspapers also are swinging toward the king's side in the controversy under rising pressure of public opinion in favor of the king.

The bulk of the space in all of today's papers was consecrated rather to Mrs. Simpson than to the actual situation, though that naturally occupies the leading position.

Only the staid and stolid London Observer and the Sunday Times continued adamant in the demand that the king give up Mrs. Simpson on the grounds that duty demands it, though some of the others were unwilling openly to support the king's position.

There was a growing realization among the British public that the "discreet reticence" on which the British press has been preening itself was one of the chief reasons for the violence of the storm when it finally broke.

CLAIMS KING IS NOT FREE TO WED EVEN IF HE QUITS THRONE

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—If King Edward abdicates he still would not be technically free to wed Mrs. Wallis Simpson. A British constitutional authority pointed out today that under law of the empire Edward would have to obtain consent of his successor to the throne for his marriage. The royal marriage act states that any member of the royal family must have the consent of the king to wed.

Otherwise any ceremony is null and void.

BRITISH PASTORS PRAY FOR END TO NATION'S CRISIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 6. — In churches throughout Great Britain and the British commonwealth of nations today special emphasis was laid on prayers for King Edward VIII. of England and his ministers. In deference to the archbishop of Canterbury's expressed wish there were few direct references in sermons in the Anglican churches to the constitutional crisis. The archbishop of York, the Most Reverend William Temple, called for prayers "that God will so dispose and govern Edward as king that in all his thoughts, work, and words he may seek God's honor and glory."

The Rt. Rev. Dr. A. W. F. Blunt, bishop of Bradford, whose reference to the king's lack of religion is generally regarded as having set the match to the powder barrel, completely ignored the crisis in his sermon at Sedbergh parish church.

The report of an outspoken reference to the crisis came from Melbourne, Australia. Archbishop Daniel J. Mannix, Roman Catholic, said: "I hope and pray that what is best for the empire and the world will be done in this regrettable crisis, but it must not be on the lines of any compromise over divorce or the things following in its train."

IRISH SEE AFFAIR AS GROUNDS TO LEAVE EMPIRE

Divorce Bars Wally from Being Queen.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 6.—What was first regarded as a purely British affair concerning the royal family has now reached a position of intimate importance in Irish Free State politics. It is the love affair of Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson and King Edward VIII. of England.

Under the statute of Westminster [1931], all dominions of the British commonwealth of nations are given equal powers in matters concerning changes in the royal succession. Nothing can be done, according to interpretations here, unless the dominions speak unanimously.

Therefore, according to constitutional authorities here, the king's abdication would not be effective in law without the approval of the dominions, including the Irish Free State. For the same reason, its assent would be necessary before the duke of York, the king's brother, could reign.

Divorce Not Permitted.

President Eamon de Valera's government in the Irish Free State, therefore, has thrust upon it a heavy responsibility which it has no desire to accept. De Valera has, since the beginning of King Edward's reign, shown a definite repugnance to take any part in the affairs of royalty. He has not been represented at any function and it is doubtful if he would be represented at the coronation.

If King Edward marries Mrs. Simpson and enthrones her as his consort the situation would be particularly difficult for the Irish Free State government. The consort could not be recognized here as the king's legitimate wife, as this country refuses to recognize divorce. The position, in the opinion of some authorities, would arouse a demand for separation from the empire which would be far more powerful than any demand raised hitherto by professed republicans.

At present that is not the desire of the government or many of the people. Continuance of the status quo would best suit all classes here. One way of assuring this would be for Sir Thomas Barnes, the king's proctor, to intervene before Mrs. Simpson's decree nisi of divorce becomes absolute and have the decree annulled for the reason that collusion appears obvious. This would prevent any form of marriage, and would enable the dominion states to continue in their present relations.

Has Sympathy of Youths.

There is much sympathy here with the king in the unfortunate position in which he finds himself. In fact, there is a certain amount of hero worship because of his determination to stand by the woman of his choice. This is the view generally of the younger generation, but the older people, especially those who belong to Protestant churches, have been horrified at the disclosure regarding the king's lack of interest in religion, of which he is at least the nominal head.

There has been no official announcement from President de Valera's government as to its reactions. He conferred with high officials at the foreign office today—and a conference on Sunday is most unusual. The government had received a communication from the dominion's office in London.

For the last week John W. Dulanty, high commissioner of the Irish Free State in Great Britain, has been in Dublin preparing for the renewal of a trade agreement with Great Britain.

WALLY AS QUEEN UPSETS BRITISH PICTURE OF ROLE

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The contrast between retiring, austere Queen Mary, mother of King Edward VIII. of England, and fun loving Wallis Warfield Simpson has been one of the major contributing causes of the present crisis on the destiny of Britain's throne.

Conservatives, try as some of them might, have been utterly unable to fit Mrs. Simpson into the backdrop of regality formed by the billowing skirts and ponderous headgear of Queen Mary.

For more than a quarter of a century the "grand old lady" who now spends most of her time sewing placidly in Marlborough house has epitomized the average Englishman's conception of exactly what a queen of the British empire should be.

Does Queenly Mantle Fit?

Mrs. Simpson, twice divorced and American born, was in an awkward spot as far as British opinion was concerned, from the first moment the general public suspected their monarch might seek to bring a "Queen Wallis" to the throne, from which Queen Mary descended after the death of the late King George.

The younger generations of Englishmen and women, largely unfamiliar with the stiffbacked dicta of George's reign, did not jump to comparisons, but to most of those who had curtsied before Queen Mary such a transposition of the queenly mantle was unthinkable.

Many of the arch conservatives enjoyed private chuckles over the way Queen Mary doggedly stuck to her antiquated and topheavy hats, perched just-so on her gray hair.

The picture of the queen of England clutching on all occasions her white umbrella, as if she expected a deluge at any moment, amused many of her subjects, but in time the omnipresent umbrella and the "bird's nest" hats became symbols of the dignity of Britain's throne.

Spent Life Raising Family.

The fact that Mrs. Simpson has closets stacked with smart little hats and has never been noticed setting hand to an umbrella might have appealed to Edward, but it was hard for his more "substantial" subjects to reconcile with their approval of the queen mother's tradition.

Queen Mary, arch aristocrats recalled, devoted her life to rearing a family and preparing them for their responsibilities and in thousands of ways endearing herself to her subjects.

Mrs. Simpson's most bitter antagonists feel her modern accomplishments in chic attire and graceful ballroom etiquet leave something more to be desired if she would be queen.

Yet Queen Mother Mary and Wallis Warfield Simpson have at least one thing in common—their passion for antiques. Each of the two women likes to drop in at some out-of-the-way shop and pick up odd pieces of furniture or bric-a-brac.

Queen Likes Wally Personally.

Antiques were said to have provided the main topic of conversation between Queen Mary and Mrs. Simpson back in the days when the queen mother was on the friendliest of terms with her son's companion.

Queen Mary, intimates say, still has the fondest personal regard for the witty younger woman, but is unalterably opposed to her as a daughter-in-law and her successor as England's queen.

Insiders always have maintained that Queen Mary was not nearly so regally prim and proper as her conservative subjects have preferred to believe.

Recently it has been well known that the queen mother now and then enjoys a "gasper" or two, but it is almost impossible for the average Englishman to believe his queen mother would puff a cigaret.

Other aspects of public opinion acting against Mrs. Simpson include the former self-imposed censorship of the British press on the case.

News Broke Like Storm.

Large sections of the British public were utterly unaware of the constitutional crisis between king and cabinet over the divorcée until the news broke on them at the very last minute. So suddenly did the storm break that most Englishmen and women did not have time to form final opinions after mature deliberation.

Many foreign observers felt that newspapers loyal to the monarch in his present struggle might have been able to spare both him and Mrs. Simpson by sympathetic stories on the former Baltimore woman.

Some newspapers now are beginning to do this, but most observers feel the damage already has been done.

At least one newspaper today carried two pages extoling Mrs. Simpson's personal charm and her capable management of her own home. Articles emphasized how solicitous she was for Edward's gastronomic needs and how she spends hours in her kitchen devising dishes "fit for a king."

WOMAN PASTOR ASKS HER CONGREGATION TO PRAY FOR WALLY

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—While every other church in England was offering up prayers today for King Edward VIII. and the royal family, a woman preacher, Maude Royden, asked her congregation to pray for Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Conducting an undenominational service in Guild house, the preacher said:

"I ask every one to pray for the king and also not to forget the woman whom he loves and who also needs your prayers."

FIRE AT AIRPORT BURNS 2 HANGARS; SIX PLANES SAVED

Fire late yesterday destroyed two hangars at the Stinson airport, Route 66 and East avenue, near La Grange, and for a time imperiled three other hangars. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

Six privately owned planes, some operated by the Alford Flying Service, were saved from the burned hangars by Elmer Mackiewich, Eddie Cycon and Harold Alford, mechanics. They risked possible gasoline explosions to wheel the machines into the open. They also saved several parachutes, flying suits and other equipment.

The fire attracted large crowds from the southwestern suburbs. The McCook fire department prevented the flames from attacking the other hangars.

CAROL-LUPESCU AFFAIR RECALLED BY BRITISH CRISIS

King of Rumania Won His Fight Like Edward's.

The great crisis in the British empire precipitated by King Edward's determination to marry Mrs. "Wally" Simpson, American divorcée and commoner, recalls a somewhat parallel case that is still alive—the royal romance of King Carol II., of Rumania, and Mme. Magda Lupescu, his plump, freckle faced and red-haired mistress.

For Mme. Lupescu's love, Carol fought a hostile cabinet, challenged unfriendly public opinion, gave up a queen, and even renounced his right to a throne. In the end he won. Today he has his throne and he still has Mme. Lupescu. He fought the battle on this issue, expressed in January, 1926:

"Princes have a right to their souls!"

His View on Private Lives.

In June, 1935, he followed that thought with this:

"We have the God-given right to order our own lives, and follow our own sentiments. That person is not human who is without faults. Even kings and queens have them. Is not a world unkind to condemn a man for personal loyalty to his friends?"

For 15 years at least, Mme. Lupescu has been a dominating influence in Carol's life. For six years at least, she has been a powerful determinant in the destinies of the Rumanian people. Riots, social alterations, one major assassination, thirteen changes in government, and four general elections have been charged to her power.

Her power in Rumanian affairs is shown by the fact that the censorship has been imposed in that country on news reports of King Edward's love affair, presumably because of its parallelism with King Carol's romance.

Romance of Long Standing.

Mme. Lupescu, daughter of a Jewish junk dealer of Bucharest, and divorced wife of a Rumanian army officer [her maiden name was Lucy Tampeanu], entered Carol's life soon after the close of the world war. At that time he was married morganatically to Zizi Lambrino, who bore him a son, now about 17 years old. Mme. Lupescu, young, fresh, small and slender, soon superseded Zizi Lambrino in Carol's affections.

At that time, however, Carol's parents, King Ferdinand and Queen Marie, were scheming to have Carol discard Zizi, and marry a woman of his own rank, Princess Helene, of Grece. Annulment proceedings were accordingly instituted, ending the morganatic marriage with Zizi. Carol married Helene, but he did not forget Magda. That was in 1921.

Carol continued his romance with Mme. Lupescu so openly that European capitals were somewhat shocked. The royal family resented Carol's affair. The cabinet fought it. The people opposed it. Indeed, the peasant classes, which constituted 85 per cent of the population, threatened upheavals.

Finally Deserted Helene.

But Carol carried on. He finally deserted Princess Helene, although she had borne him a son, Michael.

Passing time brought the cumulative crisis to a head, and in December, 1925, while with Mme. Lupescu in Milan, Italy, Carol, as crown prince of Rumania, formally renounced his right of succession to the throne.

Mme. Lupescu herself later sought to assure the world she was simply an innocent instrument of fate, without greed or ambition.

"Carol is dearer to me than life itself," she said, "but I never tried to stand between him and his kingdom. I never kept him from his kingly office. I never wanted to be queen. I never even cherished the hope to become his wife.

Matters reached a climax on June 7, 1927, when Carol's father, King Ferdinand, died. Not Carol, but Carol's son, Michael, 5 years old, became king.

Helene Gets Annulment.

Carol remained in Paris with his mistress, doubtless chafing at the circumstances that had lost him a kingship. Yet he would not give up Mme. Lupescu. In 1928 Helene procured an annulment.

During the next two years domestic turmoil within Rumania increased, largely because the regency appointed to rule for King Michael was ineffectual.

In a daring coup engineered in June, 1930, and probably countenanced by Dowager Queen Marie, Carol flew into Bucharest from Paris, seized the government and became king.

Only one condition was exacted from King Carol. Magda Lupescu was to stay out of Rumania forever.

But Magda Lupescu didn't. She followed Carol to Bucharest soon after his accession. Her appearance aroused the people. They demanded Carol's abdication. They hissed Mme. Lupescu on the streets. Cabinets demanded that Carol dismiss her.

Leads to an Assassination.

But Carol and Mme. Lupescu went on their serene ways. Mme. Lupescu continued to exercise her charm. She induced him, and even his anti-Semitic premier, Duca, to ease the persecution of the Jews. This they helped to do by outlawing the Iron Guard, strongly anti-Semitic. The upshot of this was the assassination of Premier Duca in December, 1933.

Turmoil continued in 1934, 1935, and even in 1936. In 1934, the late King George of England declined to interfere with Carol's romance, as he was asked to do, holding that Carol wasn't worth the bother. In the same year, Premier Maniu asserted, "As long as Mme. Lupescu remains in Rumania, nobody will be able to accomplish anything good. She is responsible for almost every evil in the country."

BRITISH CLERIC SEES KING'S MARRIAGE TO WALLY AS BIGAMOUS

New York, Dec. 6.—[Special.]—England would be happy to welcome Mrs. Wallis Simpson to the British throne, "if she were a respectable woman," in the opinion of at least one English theologian. The Rev. Dr. Clement F. Rogers, professor emeritus of pastoral theology at Kings college, London, and a visiting lecturer at Yale university, said here today that the church of England would regard Mrs. Simpson's proposed marriage to King Edward as bigamous.

"The church doesn't recognize divorce," he said. "A married woman who has one husband can't marry another man. We don't believe in bigamy. Marriage is indissoluble."

Asked if the fact that Mrs. Simpson is an American had anything to do with opposition to her proposed marriage, the Rev. Dr. Rogers declared:

"That's absurd. I think if she were a respectable woman the English people would have been very glad to welcome a commoner to the throne, just as they welcomed the duchess of York. The English are romantic and they would regard this affair as a delightful romance if Mrs. Simpson were not another man's wife."

FINDS WOMEN OPPOSE WALLY WEDDING KING

New York, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Public sentiment in the north of England was described today by Miss Ellen C. Wilkinson, peppery Socialist member of parliament, as definitly against a marriage between King Edward and Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Speaking from London on a program broadcast throughout the United States, Miss Wilkinson, who led the movement to bring the marriage issue openly before the house of commons, said:

"We have in England what we call the nonconformist conscience, which in the north is a very strong and a very real thing. Perhaps in America they would call it a Puritan conscience.

"And they [the people of the north] were very much of the opinion that the lady he had chosen—by the fact of her divorces—was definitly unsuitable for the throne."

Miss Wilkinson described a possible morganatic marriage, with Mrs. Simpson not assuming the rank of queen, as a threat to the English women's rights movement."

DECLARE WALLY IS A KIN OF KINGS OF ISLE OF MAN

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The Sunday Chronicle said today students of history declare Mrs. Wallis Simpson descended from the kings of the Isle of Man, a small island in the Irish sea now owned by Great Britain.

The newspaper said students assert old records show that in the 14th century Sir Simon de Montacute, head of the house of Montagu from which some persons say Mrs. Simpson is descended, married Alfrica, daughter of the king of Man, and that their descendants reigned for 50 years on the island.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica says Simon of Montagu claimed ownership of the Isle of Man—which has an area of 220 square miles—by a grant from one Auffray of "Aufrica," who called herself "Aufreca of Counnoght, heir of the land of Man."

Simon's grandson pressed this claim, winning the island from the Scots between 1340 and 1342, the Encyclopaedia relates. In 1393 the lordship and crown of Man were sold to William Scrope of Bolton, the encyclopaedia says.

HOW PEOPLE USE US

No. 4. A Corporation President

BY CALEB

A MAN who heads a large organization—and who has a great reputation for getting many things done—exposed his technique to us somewhat. Laughingly he said here the other day, "I am not a good executive, I am simply lazy. You see, instead of doing things myself, I am careful in planning to use the abilities and talents of others.

"That's why I am here. The day after Christmas a good many people to whom I must give presents will give me credit for having done a splendid job of shopping. But you people will have done the job for me far better than I could do it myself.

"After all, on account of your numerous trips through the store and your intimacy with your stocks, you can provide original and interesting presents for me which I might never discover, even though I had considerable time to spend shopping—which I haven't."

This man then provided us a list of individuals for whom he wished to provide presents. The first list included a small group of his associates on whom he wished to spend about $20 each. He had dictated notes about as follows:

"Mr. X—Outdoor man, sportsman, rides and hunts.

"Mr. Y—Book-lover, hobbies are books and cameras.

"Miss Z—Smart dresser, have no suggestions."

His second was a list of associates on whom he wished to spend about $10, and third, there was a considerable list on whom he wished to spend $5.

To a number of other persons he wished to give $2.50 gift certificates.

We will select the presents for this man, then run over the list with him, tell him what we have, and secure his approval. Then all gifts will be individually wrapped as presents, marked for the proper individuals, and his Christmas shopping is done!

We might tell a little about how we help him with presents for his family—but we are afraid we would give him away. Since all of the helpers of Santa Claus are professional, that we cannot do—we must respect our professional secrets.

ENGLAND SWEPT BY SOCIAL AND POLITICAL STRIFE

London Mobs Cheer King; Boo Baldwin Cabinet.

emerge easily from this maelstrom into which the king—or some one—has given it a dizzy fling.

A question is being asked of those who are said to be advising the king to resist the cabinet. It follows: "Have you sufficiently considered the historical precedents of what social and political struggles have proved in England?" Many are wondering if, after this crisis, England's attachment to constitutional forms of government will remain as unchangeable as the British believe it to be.

Fascist Chief Behind King.

Curiously, Sir Oswald Mosley, Fascist leader whom the Baldwin government only a couple of weeks ago forbade by legislation to wear a black shirt, is now solidly lined up with the king in opposition to what he calls a "junta of politicians."

Along with him are plutocrats like Lord Beaverbrook, newspaper publisher, practical theorists like Winston Churchill, down and outers like J. H. Thomas, who was forced to resign as colonial secretary after an investigation last May found he had given away budget secrets on income and tea tax boosts, indecisive politicians like Maj. C. R. Attlee, Labor leader, and many Uriah Heeps, David Copperfields, Oliver Twists, and Sam Wellers who were in the streets because their emotions have been stirred up.

In sum, many are wondering if this crisis is not putting in jeopardy not only the person of the monarch, but also much of the rest of the setup of the British empire—the parliamentary system, the established church, and the monarchic principle itself, which now is the only remaining element in the federative system of the commonwealth.

Crowds Mill in Streets.

London streets, swirling with excited people, afforded a spectacle which caused the above thoughts to arise in the minds of many.

Most significant of all incidents was the demonstration against the archbishop of Canterbury when he went to see Baldwin. As he emerged a mob rushed about his car threateningly. Using abusive language, the crowd cried: "We want Edward and his wife." Police rescued the archbishop from his predicament.

Hardly had this manifestation been quelled when another throng gathered to get a close view of cabinet ministers who met in Baldwin's residence.

Mounted policemen were stationed in the arches of the entrance to the foreign office, and when the ministers left 10 Downing street they were hissed and booed. Shouts of "We want Edward!" rang across Whitehall.

Police Keep Crowd Moving.

By this time thousands were gathered in Whitehall and Downing street. They were kept moving by special police. They sang "God Save the King" frequently. Some women were so wrought up that they sobbed. From time to time there were calls for "Cheers for the king!"

When the automobile of the marquess of Zetland, secretary of state for India, passed through the crowd shouts of "We want the king!" crashed on his ears and the boos were renewed.

As one ministerial car was slowly crawling up Whitehall, a woman pushed a placard against the window. The sign read, "Hands off the king! Abdication means revolution!"

"Good old Edward!" shouted some one. "For he's a jolly good fellow!" others sang.

"If these here society lords can marry chorus girls, why cannot the king marry an American divorced lady?" demanded a bug eyed man.

Demonstrations of loyalty to the king also occurred outside Buckingham palace, while soap box orators in Hyde park expounded the situation and quibbled and sparred with the crowds. This is one of England's unique spectacles in ordinary times. It was an engrossing study today.

"We Want Edward."

"Whata we want anyhow?" asked a slouchy speaker from an open air pulpit, where, according to tradition, everybody can say anything he likes and the police cannot intervene.

"We want Edward," was the reply from a man in the crowd.

Another man beside him said: "But he ain't doing his work."

"Why ain't he? That is just what he wants a chance to do, his work."

"Aw rot, he's chucked the empire over."

"He ain't chucked the empire. It's Baldwin wot's spiking him."

Outside Buckingham palace thousands assembled about the gates and climbed over monuments, singing, shouting, clamoring, holding up trafic, and sparring with the police.

From time to time the police forced the demonstrators to move along. They then would line up in groups and sing "God Save the King." Each time the bobbies stood stiffly at attention until the song was ended, then returned to the job of pushing back the crowd.

As the night wore on the crowds dwindled in size, but several hundred braved the winter cold until a late hour at the Victorian memorial, where they sang "Rule Britannia."

Bar Envoys From Marriage Without State Dept. O. K.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—[Special.]—A spy scare in the state department today was revealed as the cause of President Roosevelt's order last week forbidding members of the American foreign service to marry foreigners without the consent of the secretary of state.

A remark made to the President by William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to France, brought about issuance of the order, although it had been under consideration for months. Bullitt told the President that when he was ambassador to Russia a dinner given to his staf resembled a league of nations gathering. Among married members of his staf there was not a single American born wife.

The young ambassador, whose capacity for suspicion is highly developed, saw ominous possibilities of the leakage of state secrets through wives of American foreign service officers. Bullitt is deeply informed on the methods of diplomatic spying.

Looks for Dictaphone.

When he was special assistant to Secretary of State Hull at the London economic conference in 1933 the first step he advised was a careful examination of the walls, ceilings, and floors of the American hotel suite to discover whether any dictaphone wires were concealed therein. When talking to Robert Bingham, American ambassador to Great Britain, in the embassy, Mr. Bullitt suddenly leaped from his chair and raised a curtain that he suspected concealed a dictaphone. While he found none Bullitt said American secrets must be protected.

Ostensibly the action was taken because of the increasing trend in the foreign service to marriages with aliens who might prove embarrassing to the representation of America in some capital. For example, in the present state of tension between Russia and Germany an American diplomat with a Russian wife might be embarrassed by suspicions attaching to his wife if he were stationed in Berlin. Of 683 foreign service officers 127, or 18 per cent, are married to women of foreign birth. Of the 724 American clerks 202 are married to aliens.

Mrs. Owen Forced Out.

As a matter of fact the order has been under consideration ever since last summer when Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, American minister to Denmark, was married to Capt. Boerge Rhode, an officer of the king of Denmark's household. It was recognized at the time that a certain impropriety was involved in Mrs. Rhode continuing to represent the United States at Copenhagen. The question might arise whether in the discharge of her duties she might have been influenced unconsciously by her Danish husband.

She, however, did not resign at the time nor for a couple of months thereafter, when she relinquished the job in order, she explained, to devote her energies without impropriety to campaigning for the reëlection of the President. By that time her position as the wife of a foreigner and at the same time the American minister to his country had become wholly untenable.

HAIL OF SHELLS LEAVES MADRID SHATTERED CITY

Rebel Planes Make New Bombing Raid.

MADRID, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Bomb and shell torn Madrid resembled a series of deserted villages today with crumbling buildings and battered streets in many sections as a Sunday morning Fascist aerial attack brought new death and damage. During the morning sixteen rebel planes flew over the city and fought an air duel with government planes.

The deadly daily shower of shells in the critical siege of the civil war has crumpled many houses. Walls of others still stood, but shakily.

Broken and burned furniture could be seen through shattered windows of buildings that had not been crumpled into enormous holes opened by devastating bombs.

Two Planes Downed.

Shells today fell into the fashionable Paseo de la Castillana, Ayala street and San Bernardo square where many were killed or wounded.

Artillery fire through the night struck several houses near the American owned Telephone building and the government claimed two Fascist pursuit planes had been brought down after a bombardment in the Arguelles district.

The government claimed capture of Anover de Tajo, west of Aranjuez and south of Madrid, after government guns virtually destroyed the town.

Madrid militia captured the town of San Tolis in the Guadalajara sector and the war office said Fascists were repulsed in the Guadarrama sector, northwest of Madrid, after a fierce battle.

Lull in Attack.

The newspaper Claridad spurred government militia to continue defense of Madrid, asserting "we have defeated the Generals Franco and Mola [Fascist chieftains] and we will now defeat Hitler and Mussolini and their hair haired Moors."

A more than usual quietness in the siege today led many here to predict a decisive Fascist attack on the capital this week, and the government concentrated its efforts toward breaking up insurgent positions in the suburbs.

Madrid artillery hammered away steadily at Carabanchel, Casa de Campo and other points nearby in an effort to stop supply trains bringing Fascist reinforcements.

Expect Heavy Offensive.

The ministry of interior said indications were that Gen. Francisco Franco, the Fascist commander-in-chief, was bringing up replacements for the heavy losses suffered in the siege of the capital and that a strong offensive appeared probable at any time.

Government airplanes steadily bombed the Fascist rear around Brunete, Villa Viciosa and other towns in an effort to dislocate the insurgent supply system and frustrate an attack.

Dispatches from Santander, in the north, declared Fascists sought to stop a government advance toward Burgos, seat of the insurgent junta, but were driven back.

Will Create Catalan Army.

BARCELONA, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The government today decreed creation of the first Catalan army in hundreds of years. The decree provided for 20 regiments whose soldiers are to receive four pesetas [55 cents] a day of which they must pay two and one-half pesetas [34 cents] for food. The families of soldiers are to receive six pesetas [82 cents] a day.

Simultaneously, it was learned, Catalonia soon would issue its first money in more than 300 years.

SHOOTS SUSPECT

MRS. ALICE SUTHERLAND.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Alice Sutherland, 33 years old, was sitting with her invalid father, Richard Wensky, 77 years old, in their basement flat at 1727 West 14th street, when she was attracted to the front door by a noise outside. Opening the door she saw a colored man crouching under the stairway leading to the street.

Mrs. Sutherland flourished a broom at the prowler and ordered him to leave, warning him she would shoot if he remained. Mrs. Sutherland then returned to her room, took up a pistol and shot and wounded him critically. Police took him to the Bridewell hospital where his identity was not learned.

Mrs. Sutherland said she had often practiced with the gun in the backyard. She was frightened last night, she told police, because a week ago a colored man molested her a block from her home.

SWITCHMAN KILLED BY TRAIN.

Fred Carlson, 57 years old, 4828½ Addison street, a switchman, was killed last night when he fell beneath the wheels of a moving coal car in the Galewood yards of the Milwaukee railroad at Austin avenue.

MOSCOW CHARGES SPANISH REBELS HALTED 7 SHIPS

MOSCOW, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The commissariat of foreign trade reported today the stopping or attempted stopping of seven Russian ships in the last nine days by Spanish Fascist insurgents.

It was reported that among the ships halted was the Stephen Khalpurim, said to have been stopped last Friday near Gibraltar while returning to the soviet union after taking lumber from Archangel to Casablanca, French Morocco. The vessel, it said, was released subsequently. The commissariat's report also said the steamer Chors, carrying German coal from Rotterdam to Italy, was fired upon by Spanish Fascists near Gibraltar and ordered to halt, but the captain continued on his way, outdistancing his pursuers. Unverified reports, the commissariat said, stated the steamers Kharkoff and Chubar were being detained in Palma.

The newspaper Pravda today assailed the Spanish insurgents, saying, "Piratical actions by the Spanish rebels do not cease but have, in fact, become worse. By systematic, provocative, criminal acts the rebels have brought a serious threat to the security of marine trafic on the most important routes."

Lincoln Zoo's 'Lost' Python Arrives; Still Is Nervous

A 23 foot python which arrived from New York yesterday reposed languidly in its cage in the Lincoln park zoo last evening. Director Floyd S. Young expected it to arrive early Saturday and when it did not, there was a fearful surmise that the snake might have escaped from its crate en route. A telegram from New York explained, however, that there had been a mixup on trains, and the zoo officials were relieved.

GOOD FELLOW ED LETS IT ALL GET UNDER HIS SKIN

And So Does Every Person Who's Santa to Poor.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The Good Fellow editor is in trouble. Behind the Good Fellow desk, stacked high with letters, there sat yesterday a pale and stricken man.

"What's the matter?" the writer asked the G. F. editor. "Aren't the fellows coming out this year?"

"O yes," said the editor eagerly. "More than ever. Even clubs that have dropped out are coming back. There is a decided trend toward Good Fellow work. Why, I talked today with a lot of big trafic men. They spent hours in organizing the distribution of baskets and telling what they liked when they were kids. Lots of clubs, fraternities, aviators, and actors are coming in.

"Well, what's the matter then?" The look of gloom returned to his face and he began to talk.

It's Hard to Understand.

"Do you know there are thousands of men and women in Chicago who never give a thought to anything but their own Christmas pleasures, and giving to people who don't need things? They don't even know about all these families that will have no Christmas cheer. I want to get at them some way.

"In all these letters [indicating the stack on his desk] there is one note. The writers are the mothers or older children of the families and they are thinking not of themselves but of the little ones that look to them and can't understand why there are no toys and bright lights and candy on Christmas morning.

"My idea of hell is to be forced to look on helplessly while one of these forgotten families wakes up Christmas morning and looks out upon a room empty of toys and lights. Just the cold barren scene. Faces pressed to the window, looking out upon a cold and cheerless world, hoping that maybe something would happen. Just a doll and an orange, a 10 cent toy, a bit of candy, would make such a difference. And it would be too late for me to help."

What Happened to a Good Fellow.

He was almost weeping now, but he controled himself and continued:

"Now, here is an idea. Did it ever occur to you what happens to the Good Fellow? I know men who have told me that they never had such a feeling, that it made them want to be Good Fellows all the other days of the year. I know where the visit of Good Fellows has led to the saving of life, even, and to sending children to college, and making whole lives over."

"Good acts never end," the writer scribbled on a pad, thinking of that little poem about touching a flower and making a star tremble. He also jotted down something about "The Great Obsession," the story of a man who went about doing good, with the understanding that no one was to tell about it, and thereby gained power and life and health.

"Do you feel," he asked, "that what you can accomplish is futile in the face of the great need?"

"No good act," the Good Fellow editor replied, "is futile. There is no telling where it ends. It may last for a lifetime, or for eternity. I am not speaking of the children alone, but of the Good Fellow who selects a family from our list and takes on the job of making them happy. I never got such a kick out of anything as I did that first Christmas eve I took around a basket of food and toys to a family. It means hard work and some sacrifice, perhaps. But the reward is lasting. Isn't there an idea in that for you?"

The writer had just been reading Tolstoi's "War and Peace" and recalled this paragraph:

"Pierre felt like a man who finds what he has sought at his feet, when he has been straining his eyes to seek it in the distance. All his life he had been looking far away over the heads of all around him, while he need not have strained his eyes, but had only to look in front of him.

"Now he had learned to see the great, the eternal, and the infinite in everything; and naturally therefore, in order to see it, to revel in its contemplation, he flung aside the telescope of intellect through which he had hitherto been gazing over men's heads, and looked joyfully at the ever changing, ever grand, unfathomable, and infinite life around him."

How Good Spreads and Spreads.

"Mr. Good Fellow," said the writer, "you are on the wrong track. There is no use in looking beyond your own desk to find the great story you are seeking. There is no use in looking beyond your own heart, and the hearts of all those other Good Fellows who have tramped the streets at Christmas time with the light of the eternal God in their faces.

"You know that speeches do not win elections and that words do not change men's convictions or arouse the latent power of love into action. You also know this is everywhere. Jesus of Nazareth never wrote a word, except once upon the sand, and yet what a radiation came from that living.

"Your story, the greatest story in the world, is already written in your heart. The Good Fellow movement is a reflection of the good which supports the universe. It spreads by contact, not words. Good night, sir."

MAYOR ISSUES PLEA TO AID GOOD FELLOW CAMPAIGN FOR NEEDY

Mayor Kelly yesterday joined in the drive to make this a merrier Christmas for Chicago's neediest. In a radio appeal broadcast over W-G-N he urged his audience to be generous in participating in the Good Fellow campaign, sponsored for the 28th year by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

"We approach a time of year when there should be happiness and plenty everywhere," said the mayor. "We wish that this could be a fact, but sorrowfully we must admit that at Christmas time there will be hundreds of homes that will not feel the gayety and fullness of the season.

"No glistening Christmas trees will adorn their homes. Santa Claus will seem to have passed them by unless some persons with generous hearts remember these families. It is to these homes that the Good Fellows go on their missions of cheer."

PRESIDENT SOON TO UNFOLD NEXT NEW DEAL AIMS

Confidants Give Ideas on His Future Program.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—[Special.]—With his South American triumph behind, him President Roosevelt is speeding homeward to take the stage in the next act in the drama of his progress as leader of the economic and social revolution.

The leading scenes in this act will be the opening on Jan. 5 of the Seventy-fifth congress, more completely controled by the President's party than the first two New Deal congresses; the transmission of the President's annual message on the state of the union and his budget messages, and finally on Jan. 20 the inauguration of Mr. Roosevelt to succeed himself and the delivery of his inaugural address.

The character of the President's second term salutatory may be profoundly influenced by events in the meantime, particularly in the new marble temple of the Supreme court.

Court Decisions Impend.

Beginning possibly tomorrow, the court will hand down decisions in a series of New Deal cases which will indicate whether the President can look forward to the approval of his program by the tribunal as now constituted or whether he must have recourse to a constitutional amendment or other expedients for validation of his plans.

In the January pronouncements the President will lift the curtain on the New Deal objectives of his second quadrennium and the means by which he proposes to attain them. So far they are more or less a mystery. In their overwhelming note of confidence the people gave Mr. Roosevelt a blank check to carry forward the New Deal, but what he intends to do and how he will do it he has not revealed. In his campaign for reëlection he stated the New Deal's aims in only the most general, often vague, terms, and since the election he has maintained an unbroken silence.

Confidants Give Forecast.

To his confidants, however, Mr. Roosevelt has done considerable talking, and some of them are now favoring the country in print with outlines of the New Deal program for the next four years.

Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, Mr. Roosevelt's No. 1 brain truster, who has just resigned as undersecretary of agriculture to become vice president of the American Molasses company, says in the New Republic that the people commissioned Mr. Roosevelt to achieve for them economic security and that "they are indifferent to the means so long as the achievement is made secure."

So Mr. Roosevelt, according to Prof. Tugwell, is going to embark on four years of national planning, the success or failure of which will be determined by the extent to which he is able to command the coöperation of business men.

"How we plan for the future," Tugwell says, "will be so largely determined by the business men of America that all of us, I think, in these post-election days are looking anxiously for signs of their consent to coöperation.

Two Courses Foreseen.

"If this is withheld the four years on which we are entering will be difficult ones. If they consent, everything will be easy. . . . We shall soon know whether what is to be expected during the next four years is the simple exploitation of a boom or whether the time will be used to build something more permanent."

Prof. Tugwell commends the farm organization for promptness with which they have demanded the restoration of the economic planning represented by the AAA. He deplores the backwardness of industry in the planning movement.

"Management," he says, "is seeking nothing, apparently, except the enlargement of profits, and labor nothing but an increasing share in them. . . . Yet there is the great fact of the election staring all of us in the face. Our leaders have been told that their concern for the common man, and federal intervention to implement it, is approved.

"The arguments for states' rights and for the sacredness of certain other institutions, made certainly with extreme emphasis and with the directness of accusation, have been repudiated. The fact of this mandate and this rejection must have its effect on the minds even of die-hard industrialists."

Sees Curb on Press.

Dr. Stanley High, President Roosevelt's collaborator on campaign speeches, in an article in Liberty magazine, proclaimed as an "authoritative forecast," which means, if it means anything, that it was approved by the President, placed first on the Roosevelt program measures for curbing the press.

"The President," Dr. High says, "is likely to use the prestige of his office to bring about a change in the methods of certain sections of the daily press. Nothing in the election pleased him more than what he regarded as the overwhelming repudiation by the American public of those newspapers which used their news columns to color and distort the facts of the campaign. . . . If constitutional means could be found, I think he would be pleased if steps were taken to bring all newspapers within the area of minimum honesty in which other enterprises and many newspapers are required to operate."

There is no question that this statement is authoritative. Mr. Roosevelt has long entertained notions of curbing the latitude of the press in reporting and commenting on Washington news. He has held forth on the subject at press conferences.

Recall President's Threat.

Once he personally conveyed to the representatives of two leading opposition newspapers a threat to chastize their editors in a radio address. Though the threat worked no abatement of the opposition, the President never made good on it.

The suggestion that Mr. Roosevelt might use the great prestige of his office to muzzle the press raises interesting questions. The most important question is, of course, whether the cure proposed by Mr. Roosevelt is not more dangerous than the disease. A vast power would be lodged in the executive to penalize distortions of fact by the press. The question arises whether he would proceed against distortions of fact in his favor with the same vigor as against distortions of fact to his disadvantage.

The fact is, of course, that newspapers that deliberately distort facts do not long survive and ample recourse at law is provided for any person who feels himself damaged or aggrieved.

Dr. High goes to elaborate lengths to give assurance that Mr. Roosevelt will not take vengeance on the business men and others who opposed him in the election.

Gives Hint to Court.

On behalf of the President, Dr. High hands a pointed hint to the Supreme court to mend its ways. Mr. Roosevelt "hopes, I think," said Dr. High, "that the landslide indorsement of his policies at the polls will have a salutary effect upon the judical opinions of certain members of the court. . . . He is hopeful that the vote on Nov. 3 will serve to indicate how far out of step with the popular mind some of these opinions are."

ROOSEVELT SHIP IS SALUTED BY GERMAN AIRSHIP

WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, AT SEA, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Heading around the easternmost tip of Brazil, the U. S. S. Indianapolis, bearing the President homeward, was 2,705 miles from Trinidad at noon today.

The Indianapolis passed Bahia and was saluted by the Graf Zeppelin en route to Buenos Aires.

The President attended church services and several hours later squinted through glasses at a dozen small fishing smacks fifty miles off shore.

One fisherman held up a large fish, tempting the presidential party, but there was no time to try out the spot as three hours had been spent the day before fishing the cove of Frio near Rio de Janeiro. The Indianapolis is due in Port au Spain Friday.

SEIZED IN PLOT TO EXTORT $3,500 FROM A WOMAN

Oregon, Ill., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Cecil Shephard, 34 years old, of Franklin Grove, Ill., was arrested early today, accused of attempting to extort $3,500 from Mrs. Mary Powell, Windsor, Mo., hatchery proprietor, with the claim that he had knowledge of the whereabouts of her missing husband.

Sherif Delos Blanchard said Shephard, an ex-convict, was arrested at a culvert on a side road near Byron, Ill., where a dummy package had been placed.

Shephard admitted, according to Sherif Blanchard, that he had mailed two letters to Mrs. Powell at Windsor, where he formerly was employed at another hatchery.

Mrs. Powell's husband, John, disappeared five years ago. His auto, bloodstained, was found a short time later at Kansas City.

NEUTRALITY PACT PROPOSED BY U. S. AT BUENOS AIRES

Would Create Committee of American Nations.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A neutrality pact for all American republics was proposed to the inter-American peace conference tonight by the United States delegation.

The plan—following out ideals expressed by President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull—would create a permanent inter-American consultative committee to coördinate existing peace instruments and bring agreement on a common neutrality policy, based on the United States' neutrality theory.

The delegates from Washington voice no enthusiasm over the plan for an American league of nations suggested by the Dominican republic. It was understood they believed this contained provisions objectionable to the United States policy of "no entangling alliances."

Utilize Existing Pacts.

The neutrality plan inspired by President Roosevelt declares the signatories "renew their pledges that any international differences that may arise shall be settled by pacific means."

The permanent committee, consisting of the foreign ministers of the countries concerned, first would "assist solely through their good offices and mediation in fulfilmen of the American republics' existing obligations for pacific settlement."

Members of the committee, secondly, would provide means by which "the American republics, with full recognition of their juridical equality as sovereign and independent states and general right to individual liberty of action, may take counsel together whenever emergencies arise which affect common interests."

The signatories would pledge themselves to seek settlement of any American dispute through diplomatic action, commissions of inquiry, conciliation, arbitration, and courts of justice, and finally would present the case to the permanent committee, which is designed to meet any time, at any place, or make high-speed consultations by telephone or telegraph.

Pledge Truce During Parleys.

The committee could initiate consultative action, remind the disputants of their contractual obligations and offer mediation through usual or special procedure. The signatories would pledge themselves not to resort to hostilities or military action while the committee is acting.

In the event all mediation fails, the signatories would pledge themselves to a policy of common neutrality, embargoing exports of arms and ammunition and prohibiting loans or credits to any warring American nation.

Each neutral nation would remain free to impose any trade restrictions it wishes between itself and a belligerent, in the interest of peace.

The draft specifies that nothing in the convention should be considered as interfering with the obligations of any signatory in relation to other multi-lateral treaties to which it is a party.

Propose Exchange of Students.

The United States delegation also introduced a convention for promotion of cultural relations, which provides for annual exchange of graduate students and professors among all the 21 American republics.

Under the plan each government would nominate a panel of five students and teachers, from which two would be selected by that government. The government would pay all necessary expenses for one year's study in a foreign country.

Each nation also would name a professor who would be available for lectures, instruction, and special research. All the governments would pledge assistance in the forming of such groups as labor youth associations, peace societies, and organizations to exchange youths among countries.

SEVEN FAMILIES IN TRAILERS ALL SET FOR WINTER

Cheap Way to Live They Say; Fine for Actors.

Although their houses are on wheels, seven Chicago families will not roll away to warmer climes for the winter. They have settled down for the winter in their automobile trailers on parking lots a few blocks from the loop.

An employé of the board of education, and a night club musician and their wives occupy two of the three trailers on a parking lot at Grand avenue and Fairbanks court. They have put boxing and boarding as skirts around their trailers to keep out cold air.

They expect no orders to move such as were issued by the city authorities in Detroit to the occupants of 30 trailers in that city last week.

Always Refuge in a Flat.

"There are not enough of us yet to become a problem," said the board of education employé. "When they start slapping taxes on trailer dwellings, why we'll just go back to a $37.50 apartment. Here it costs us $5 a month for parking and $2 for electric light connections.

"We have lived in Chicago since 1907 and three years ago we bought the trailer for use during my four months' vacation in northern Wisconsin. We left it in storage up there until this year.

"We like the outdoors and don't mind roughing it. My wife chops wood for the stove during the day and likes the exercise. Sanitary facilities are a few steps away in the garage there.

"Our children are grown and married. They just kid us about living in a trailer."

Two Years' Experience in It.

The musician and his wife have lived in the trailer for two years.

Seven trailers are parked in a lot at 59 West Erie street, but only four are being used for winter living quarters. This lot is exclusively for show people, according to Herbert Fryer, its operator, formerly a trick bicycle rider.

An elderly woman, an old time performer, lives in one. A song and dance man in a tavern and his mother live in another. An acrobatic team who perform in evening dress share another.

The most modern trailer on the lot, having a shower and bathtub, is parked there only temporarily, and its owners, principals in a radio act, live while in Chicago in a nearby hotel.

Ideal for Show People.

"It's a cheap and sensible way for show people to live," said Fryer. "Although there have been some threats to keep these people from living here, we have the Showmen's league behind us."

Fryer expects several more show families to arrive next week from the Texas Centennial to spend part of the winter on his lot.

NAME WINNERS OF FIRST TRIBUNE LIMERICK PRIZES

Two Get $100 in Holiday Cash for Last Lines.

Michael Benes, 2117 South 58th avenue, Cicero, and Mrs. Rose E. Muldoon, 112 Hutchins street, Woodstock, are announced today as the winners of $100 each for the last lines they submitted to complete the first limerick, published last Monday, of the current TRIBUNE series.

The incomplete limerick was:

"The holiday spirit is here
And with it comes mighty good cheer,
But don't forget Mother,
For she, if no other,"

To which Mr. Benes added:

Is never through giving. The Dear."

And Mrs. Muldoon provided:

"Brings that something to Yule we revere."

Seasoned thinking apparently helped out the first contest winners because Mr. Benes is 63 years old and Mrs. Muldoon is 59 years old.

Will Help Pay Taxes.

Mr. Benes is a gateman for the Rapid Transit company at the Mayfield avenue intersection of the Lake street elevated. The prize money will come in handy for extra Christmas cheer, but is even more timely for first of the year taxes, he said.

"I did my thinking for a last line for the limerick at home and all over, wherever I happened to be," said Mr. Benes. "You have to study these things carefully. I've won several other smaller contests in the last fourteen years."

Mr. Benes' daughter, Mrs. Julia Peters, confided that her father, who came to America when he was 14 years old to make his way alone, first "gets his idea" in Bohemian, and then translates it to appropriately riming English words.

Wife of County Jailer.

Mrs. Muldoon is the wife of Sylvester Muldoon, jailer of the McHenry county jail for the last sixteen years, and the mother of three married children.

"I never sit down and study," said Mrs. Muldoon. "I think faster when I am up and around, working at my regular household duties. I sent in three last lines. The first one came to me right away."

But it was not the winning one.

Mrs. Muldoon's prize cash will buy added furnishings for a new house to which she and her husband are moving.

Does Double Job.

"My husband jokingly said to me that I didn't have time to work limericks when I was busy moving, but I seem to have managed both all right," she smiled.

Mr. Benes confessed, too, that there was a "they laughed when I sat down to pen a limerick" situation in his household. "So dad's going to win $100, what do you think?" one of his children remarked jestingly.

'Swapped Wife' Becomes Bride of Orchestra Leader

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 6.—[Special.]—Leah Clampitt Sewell, divorced wife of Barton Sewell, wealthy Beverly Hills sportsman, and Charles Kaley, singer and orchestra leader, were married in Las Vegas, Nev., last night after an airplane elopement from Palm Springs, Cal. The Sewells and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Emerson were principals in a "wife swapping" case two years ago. Divorce was denied to the Emersons and Mrs. Sewell was absolved of misconduct by Judge Ben Lindsay, who termed her indiscreet. Mrs. Sewell later was named co-respondent in the divorce action of Mrs. Mae Keaton against Buster Keaton.

MOSCOW REJECTS NAZI REQUEST TO VISIT PRISONERS

MOSCOW, Dec. 6. — (AP) — Maxim Litvinov, commissar of foreign affairs, today rebuffed a new German move to permit German officials to see thirty-five Germans held in jails in Moscow and provincial cities in connection with an alleged international plot.

The move was made by Frederic von der Schulenburg, German ambassador to Russia, who renewed his representation that Meyer Helderhausen, German consul in Novosibirsk, be permitted to see Emil I. Stickling, German engineer.

[Stickling was sentenced to death for plotting against the soviet régime and killing fourteen miners in acts of sabotage, but his sentence was commuted Nov. 25 to ten years' imprisonment.]

Von der Schulenburg also asked that German consuls and embassy officials be accorded the right to see all other Germans who have not been sent to trial. Litvinov refused to grant this permission, saying investigation was still proceeding.

PHONE EMPLOYES PLEDGE $53,313 TO COMMUNITY FUND

A gift of $22,000 to the Community fund by the Rosenwald Family association and combined pledges of $53,313 from employés of the Illinois Bell Telephone company were announced yesterday by James B. Forgan, general chairman of the campaign. The Rosenwald contribution is an increase of $2,000 over last year's pledge by members of the family of the late Julius Rosenwald, noted philanthropist.

Pledges of the telephone company employés brought the public utility group of solicitation within 3 per cent of its $350,000 quota, according to John F. Gilchrist, vice president of the Commonwealth Edison company and chairman of the group. The corporate gift of the telephone company, previously reported, was $60,000, making the total for company and employés $113,313.

"Prospects of reaching the campaign objective of $3,400,000 now seem encouraging," said T. J. Carney, vice chairman of the campaign. "The results of the final drive will be known at a report meeting Thursday."

The last report made on Saturday was that 94 per cent of the goal had been raised.

Mysterious, Untraced Gas Overcomes People onStreet

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 6.—(AP)—A mysterious gas, seeping up from beneath the streets, sickened 26 persons today and forced residents of a whole neighborhood of South Philadelphia to flee. More than a dozen women and children collapsed along two streets. Eleven persons were taken to hospitals. A health inspector said the fumes smelled like a "gas originating from the manufacture of alcohol." He identified the stench as coming from pyridine, a liquid used in denaturing alcohol. He could not trace its source.

LAXATIVE SLAVES

break your bonds!

PEOPLE write us constantly telling us they have discovered a "new way" to keep regular without harsh laxatives. So we are passing the word along.

This is the way: Immediately upon arising every morning, squeeze the juice of a lemon into a tall glass of cold or warm water. Into another glass, put half a teaspoonful of ordinary baking soda (bicarbonate). Pour back and forth, and drink when foaming quiets.

Do this regularly every morning and chances are you'll never need a harsh laxative. This simple beverage made with household ingredients may be all the corrective you need. Actually we are told it increases in effectiveness when followed regularly.

You should also have less trouble with such infections as the common cold. Lemon and soda both help to keep the system alkaline and free from poisons. Thus they increase your resistance to infection.

Try it ten mornings—the juice of a Sunkist Lemon in a glass of water with one-half teaspoonful of baking soda (bicarbonate) first thing upon arising.

See how you benefit—right from the start.

VALUE OF LINES BASIC FACTOR IN TRANSIT MERGER

Cut Book Worth, Mayor Says; No, Say Owners.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

A new start on the 15 year old struggle to untangle the muddled transit situation in Chicago is about to open with negotiations between the Chicago Surface lines and city officials.

Probably the best opportunity in recent years to reach a settlement of at least one major phase of the situation is at hand—that of putting through an ordinance for the street railways. It is possible also that definite steps may be taken toward bringing about the goal of all transit negotiations in the last thirty years—that of a unified transit system.

Under instructions from Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who has jurisdiction over the surface lines, which are in receivership, representatives of owners of the system are ready to begin negotiations for a new franchise. Since 1927 the Surface Lines companies have operated under extensions of the old 1907 ordinances.

Court Approves Abbott Plan.

Judge Wilkerson, paving the way for taking the companies out of receivership, has given tentative approval to the so-called Abbott plan for reorganization and for consolidation of the four component companies, conditioned on the plan's proponents making application to the city council for a new franchise. The reorganization committee has designated Guy A. Richardson, president of the Surface lines, as its representative to carry on the negotiations.

Many important and complicated problems must be solved through agreements and compromise between the city and the surface lines before a final franchise can be drafted.

Immediate or future plans for consolidation of the existing transportation systems—surface, elevated, and bus—will be one consideration; modernization of cars and equipment another; methods of raising new capital for improvements and extensions a third, and compensation to the city a fourth.

Valuation a Basic Problem.

One of the major factors underlying a solution of most of the problems confronting the ordinance makers is that of property valuation and the consequent basis for issuance of new securities. With the first negotiations about the application of the street railway system for a new ordinance, the question of surface lines valuation is the first to arise.

What are the surface lines worth? The final answer to that question will be important in determining the basis for possible consolidation with the elevated and bus systems; in the amount of compensation to the city if such compensation is based on earnings; the return to holders of securities of the present Surface Lines companies and, over a period, on rates of fares.

Mayor Insists on Reduction.

Before the opening of negotiations Mayor Kelly, in announcing that the city, while still keeping as its goal a unified transportation system, is ready to negotiate with the individual transportation systems, stands on his often repeated assertion that the present 169 million dollar valuation of the surface lines must be scaled down. He maintains that earnings should be taken as the basis for setting up a valuation, not the reproduction or book value of the existing system.

He states that obsolescence of present equipment and the question of substitution of bus service in place of street car operations in some undetermined degree are points which must be considered. He says that by scaling down the present capital account the credit of the lines can be bolstered.

Strong Opposition to Trimming.

Representatives of the surface lines and of the security holders of the underlying companies are loath to discuss any of the franchise problems before negotiations are under way. Nevertheless, it is apparent that they will make a strong effort to sustain the present valuation of the lines.

They maintain that an accepted method of valuation would show a value in excess of the present figure. They take the position that if present security holders are forced to scale down their principal it will hurt the credit of the lines, not help it.

The method of determining the book valuation of the Surface Lines companies was definitly set forth in the 1907 ordinances. The property account of the companies was fixed at $55,775,000 under those ordinances and provision was made that as extensions and additions were made out of new money the property account would be increased.

Board to Apply Formula.

The 1907 ordinances set up a board of supervising engineers to certify additions to the property account and to assure that it was maintained in accordance with the provisions of the franchises. Bion J. Arnold, an important figure in preparation of the old ordinances, was selected as chairman of the board and has held that office since 1907. There are three other members, one representing the city and two the companies.

One of the major provisions of the old ordinances was that the city was given the option of purchasing the system at any time. The purchase price was to be the value of the properties at the time of sale as shown by the property account; hence the reason for the strict supervision of the account.

On Oct. 31, 1936, the property account stood at $169,656,966, according to the records of the supervising board. The $113,881,966 difference between the present figure and the original valuation represents additions to the 1907 system.

Largely Spent on Additions.

Eighty-five per cent of the $113,881,966 increase represents the actual cash outlays for the additions. The other 15 per cent is represented by an allowance to the companies for conducting the work, furnishing the equipment, and the cost of raising the money. The bulk of the money for additions came from the sale of securities, the companies having sold approximately 95 million dollars of bonds since 1908.

Track is the largest single item in the property account, the 1,110 miles of single track owned being carried at $56,885,354. Cars is the next largest item. The 3,739 cars owned last Oct. 31, including their motors, were carried at $30,768,856, or an average of $8,200 each.

Details of Property Account.

Following is the breakdown of the property account on Oct. 31, as furnished by the supervising board:

Track	$ 56,885,354
Paving	12,528,192
Electric line construction	15,945,968
Real estate	5,704,432
Buildings and fixtures	12,896,998
Power plant equipment	6,647,483
Shop tools and machinery	1,385,988
Cars, excluding motors	20,473,317
Electrical equipment of cars	10,295,539
Miscellaneous equipment	3,247,839
Tunnels	4,481,783
Miscellaneous	19,164,073
Total	$169,656,965

The $19,164,073 miscellaneous item includes furniture and fixtures and franchise valuations. According to the board, most of the franchise valuations were fixed by the 1907 ordinances.

To provide for replacements and renewals of the properties, the ordinance specified that 8 per cent of gross revenues should be set aside in cash each year in renewal and depreciation funds. The reserves so set aside aggregated $97,589,757 through last Oct. 31. The total amount accruing to the renewal funds in the period is $111,394,022 when interest and proceeds from salvage are included.

Replacements Take 80¼ Millions.

From this $111,394,022 there has been expended a total of $80,590,270 for replacements and renewal of property. Of the remaining $30,800,000 there is now $19,198,332 in cash, the remainder, approximately $11,600,000, having been loaned to the surface lines to purchase new equipment.

These advances from the renewal funds to the lines were approved by the Illinois commerce commission in 1920, when the company, unable to raise money through the sale of securities, appealed to the commission for authority to borrow from the funds to finance additions and purchase new equipment.

The $11,600,000 of new property purchased since 1920 has not been added to the property account. This property cannot be capitalized until such time as the companies restore amounts borrowed from the funds.

Handling of Maintenance Figures.

The supervising board's records show that the companies have expended an additional $146,500,000 in the last twenty-nine years on maintenance of the properties. Maintenance expenditures are treated as an operating expense. The board determines which expenditures should be charged to renewal funds and which to maintenance.

The total spent or set aside for maintenance and renewals, according to these records, aggregates more than 240 million dollars, or approximately 20 per cent of gross receipts over the period.

This city compensation is put into a fund which has become known as the traction fund. With interest accumulations the fund now totals more than $66,000,000. The primary purpose of the fund under the old ordinance provisions was to give the city money to purchase the surface lines or improve transportation facilities generally.

Earnings Too Small to Pay City.

The city's share of the earnings averaged about $2,000,000 a year until 1931. No compensation has been paid to the city since 1931, as earnings have been insufficient to cover the 5 per cent allowance on the capital account. Last Jan. 31 there was an accumulated deficit of $7,064,506 in the 5 per cent capital account allowance for the years since 1931. This deficit is payable out of receipts of future years.

In defending the property account valuation, surface lines officials state that valuations made over the last fifteen years have sustained the book figure as a fair worth of the properties.

In 1920 the Illinois commerce commission held that the value of the property for rate making purposes was in excess of the then 159 million dollar property account.

Formula Upheld by Appraisers.

In 1925 a board of appraisers, seeking to determine for the city council's local transportation committee if the then 162 million dollar property figure was a fair purchase price, reported that it was and indicated that the value of the properties was considerably in excess of that figure.

City officials and engineers maintain that there is a large degree of obsolescence in the equipment, particularly in the cars, of the surface lines.

Surface lines officials, while admitting that a majority of their cars have been made obsolete by the new developments in street car building, as typified in the streamlined "noiseless" vehicles now being placed in service on Madison street, assert that if a satisfactory ordinance can be obtained from the city there will be ample funds to permit a huge modernization program over the next few years.

Ages of the Rolling Stock.

Giving effect to the eighty-three new cars with which the Madison street line is being equipped and the retirement of 153 old cars from the property account, the surface lines will have 3,669 cars. Of these 724 have been purchased since 1920; there are 896 from 16 to 25 years old; 1,462 from 26 to 30 years old, and 587 from 31 to 36 years old.

With the exception of 1919, earnings of the surface lines were above the 10 million dollar figure each year from 1912 to 1929, reaching a peak of $13,002,700 in the latter year.

The low for the depression years was $5,929,890 in 1932. In the 1935 fiscal year the company earned $6,418,201. These earnings are after payment of operating expenses and taxes, but before the 5 per cent allowance on the property account.

IN NEW INQUIRY

JUNE ROBLES.
[Acme Photo.]

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 6.—(AP)—A dozen department of justice agents and three score other witnesses were summoned today as a federal grand jury prepared to consider the results of a two year investigation into the kidnaping of Little June Robles.

Frank Flynn, United States district attorney for Arizona, said the government's evidence will be directed toward obtaining indictments on charges of using the mails in an attempt to extort money.

June, then six years old, was kidnaped April 25, 1934.

She returned 19 days later telling a story of having been chained in an iron box buried in the desert. Members of the family said no ransom was paid.

In addition to the girl, witnesses were expected to include her grandfather, Bernabe Robles, wealthy cattleman; her father, Fernando Robles, and her uncle, Carlos Robles, who at the time of the kidnaping was a deputy county attorney here.

FOUR CHILDREN AND FATHER OF ONE DIE AS DWELLING BURNS

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 6.—[Special.]—Five persons, including four children, were burned to death and eight others suffered burns and injuries today when fire trapped them in their crowded frame dwelling. All the victims were related.

The only person in the home to escape injury was Harry Lane, 42, father of three of the dead children, who carried three sons out of the flaming structure before the ladder he was using to reach their second story bedroom burned beneath his feet.

The dead were Sarah Lane, 10; Charles Lane, 8; Lillian Lane, 5; Edmund Reuter, 4, and his father, Stanley Reuter, 23. Four of the injured were in a serious condition.

GLASS IN CANDY; OFFICERS SEARCH FOR ITS SENDERS

Monticello, Ill., Dec. 6.—[Special.]—Renewed efforts are being made to solve apparent attempts to kill two Monticello business women who last week received through the mails packages containing candy in which broken glass had been concealed as the result of an announcement of a third person having received similar packages.

Miss Ardeth Hannah, White Heath, Ill., a junior in the University of Illinois, notified authorities she had received two packages similar to those received by Mrs. Sarah Catherine Beane and Mrs. Elaine Zeibler of Monticello.

Miss Hannah received her packages in November a year ago and last August. The candy in both boxes contained large quantities of ground glass. No reports were made to officers until recently.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 6.—Because of competition by four airplane companies, passenger and freight rates have been reduced so low that nearly all travel is by plane. Chickens, pigs, calves, butter, lard, and other local produce is being shipped to other republics by air.

IN PERSPECTIVE.

Since the British press has permitted the British people to know that a serious conflict had arisen between their king and his prime minister and cabinet, the issue seems to be rapidly broadening and deepening and the question whether the king shall marry as he pleases is evolving in a surprising way. The most striking fact is that the controversy seems to be rapidly passing into a class conflict, and it is interesting to note the revival of loyalties and divisions which have marked the course of English political evolution almost from its beginning. Once again, as time after time in the history of England, the people of London are cheering for the king. In the long struggle between the monarchy and the aristocracy London, for familiar reasons, has usually taken that part and generally it has been decisive. Only as the power of parliament emerged to represent in final significance the popular will and a king set himself against it, has London turned against him. Where the conflict was between king and privileged class the great city has thrown its fighting weight into the scale for the monarch. The cheers for the king in the London streets today have been heard many times before in the long past of English history. However the present conflict ends, between king and church, between king and baronage or the interests which have taken its place in our time, one of the turning points in British history seems to have arrived and it wears a familiar face.

In this crisis, as in others of the past, the device of abdication as a solution of conflict is to the fore. Many rulers have abdicated in other countries—Charles, the emperor, from world weariness; Christine of Sweden from weariness with court etiquet; from Sulla, the Roman dictator, down to Pu-yi and Alfonso, a long list. But no king of England ever abdicated. From Edward the Second and the second Richard in the 14th century to James II. in the 17th, what has been called abdication was deposition. The earlier kings were forced to sign away their crowns and James fled the country and was held by legal fiction to have abdicated. In fact, there is doubt that an English king can abdicate. Says Maitland, greatest authority on English constitutional history: "There is, I think, no way in which a reigning king can cease to reign save by his death, by holding communion with the church of Rome, professing Popish religion or marrying a Papist, and possibly by abdication. . . . If we had a very bad king we should very probably depose him; but unless he consented to an act of parliament depriving him of the crown the deposition would be a revolution, not a legal process. Even the king's power to abdicate, except by giving his assent to a statute declaring his abdication, may, it seem to me, be doubted.

Of course, Edward the Eighth may be forced to give up his crown as was Edward the Second. But as Maitland says, it would be in fact a deposition and, whatever the fiction covering the procedure, deposition would be revolution, a phenomenon which the interests opposing his present purpose do not like to think about. No wonder there are acutely anxious doubts, scurryings to Downing street and Belvedere, interminable conferrings, and growing rumor of mutiny. As we write, some sort of compromise may have been reached. But whatever it is, it will be costly, and will leave open fissures in the law and social structure of the British people which may reach to their foundations. Behind the romantic figures of the lovers, a romance as old as Cophetua and the beggar maid, are the grim and stubborn forces which have wrestled for power throughout English history, the monarch, the magnates, the established church, the commonalty. Plus ça change, plus c'est la même chose.

TROLLEY BUSES.

Fire destroyed the barns of the Chicago and West Towns Railway company together with a substantial share of the company's rolling stock on Tuesday last. Buses and antiquated street cars are being substituted in an effort to maintain service to the public. As the name indicates, the property is owned by an independent corporation, but it has been operated by the Chicago Surface Lines for a number of years. The equipment was covered by insurance.

These are the bare facts. The outlook for the citizens who are dependent on these lines for daily transportation is far from encouraging for the immediate future, but there appears to be nothing to do but "grin and bear it" until new equipment is secured or the operators succeed in stopping the gap with leased rolling stock.

The transportation demands of the territory are not of the character that will make trolley cars either necessary or profitable. The track and trolley is essentially a mass transportation facility. It is becoming clearer every day that this type of conveyance flourishes only when almost continuous service is necessary to accommodate a steady and heavy flow of trafic. For areas of lighter density and for feeders such as the West Towns the bus is a superior vehicle. As the pole line is in place, it would appear to follow that in the present instance the trolley bus will be the correct replacement.

POLITICS IN PAROLE.

Speculation upon the prospects of a thoroughgoing reform of parole in Illinois should not overlook the factors of resistance. The average law abiding citizen naturally assumes that everybody favors correction of present conditions. But everybody does not.

Everybody includes well meaning individuals who idealize or sentimentalize the criminal and resist measures for the better protection of the public because of their preoccupation with what they believe to be the offender's welfare. In a community as kindly as ours or any American community this influence is far from negligible. It is often seriously obstructive to effective action. But we have not this in mind. What the public does know less of is the influence of corrupt or selfish politics in parole. Col. Chamberlin, executive director of the Chicago Crime commission, has said that while certain states have organizations approaching real parole administration, "none has been completely divorced from political favoritism nor established independence and integrity in administration."

No doubt Col. Chamberlin does not offer us a counsel of perfection. Parole is a function of government and government is politics. In parole we cannot hope for the complete divorcement of politics and the establishment of complete independence and integrity more than in other phases of government. But restraints can be put upon political influence and other influences hostile to honest and competent parole administration, and on this subject we cite Col. Chamberlin again. In a survey of the parole problems made for Gov. Horner Col. Chamberlin says:

"After questioning all of the agents and investigators in district No. 1 and several from downstate districts it appears that the main qualification for the position of field parole agent has been political connection. To illustrate—twenty-two male agents and investigators of district No. 1 were interviewed. But seven were under civil service. Of the fifteen not under civil service, ten were precinct captains in various wards throughout the city of Chicago and in other of the counties of the district. Others were sponsored by influential men in the Democratic party. Many of these have held minor political jobs in the city of Chicago, but have had no experience whatsoever with the work to which they are assigned. The minimum age of this group is 30 years and the maximum over 70 years. About 50 per cent had some high school training. Three of the twenty-two had some scholastic training in college. Two held college degrees. Downstate agents were interviewed with a result similar to those outlined above. Several held the office of precinct committeeman. It is suggested that the position of parole agent be filled from the civil service list instead of selecting men because of their political affiliations. The records of the office are silent as to the antecedents, experience, or qualifications of these agents. It is suggested that a complete employment record be kept of all employés in this division."

Of all the branches of the state government, it would seem that the parole administration, which has to do with so important a duty as the protection of the community from criminals, ought to be under the merit system; and we mean by that a merit system that works. Civil service sometimes is a cover for actual incompetence, for the inertia which afflicts the protected jobholder. In our effort to reform parole its administration should be put upon an iron basis of merit from top to bottom, with clear and well considered merit tests. We are not expecting the millennium in administration and no merit system will bring it. But we can hope for a mitigation of the present deplorable conditions.

THE BOMBING FALLACY.

It was on Sept. 18 that the dispatches from Spain carried a line reporting from rebel sources a bomb raid on Madrid. But on Oct. 3 a formidable raid occurred. Since then Madrid has been bombed and bombed again. If the lay notion of the destructiveness of aerial warfare were founded on facts instead of fancy, Madrid would now be a waste of pulverized ruins.

But it is not. Its defenders still hold the attacking forces at bay. The reason is that bombardment from the air is not nearly as destructive as heavy artillery fire. A shell falling from a plane, even in direct hits, does no more damage than a projectile shot from a heavy gun, if as much. And there are far fewer of them. Massed heavy artillery is the destroyer. Its fire can be better directed and, more important still, it can be continuous.

This may change. Aviation is progressing rapidly. But it does not yet take the place the anxious civilian ascribes to it as a terror of modern war. The air raid has greater psychological than physical effect, and that wears off. The public should learn this and save itself unnecessary worry and weakening of morale. It is pacifist propagandists, innocent of knowledge, and sensation-seeking special writers who create the bugaboo of aerial destruction.

Editorial of the Day

WHAT "LIFE"?

[Baltimore Sun.]

The board of education of Paulsboro, N. J., has decided to give up instruction in foreign languages and confine the efforts of its public school system to fitting students for "life." This means, according to the board of education, making better housewives of the girls and more efficient workers of the boys.

This ought to bring on a lot of talk, reviving in new form that old argument as to the "practical" side of the classics which was raging twenty years ago when the revolt against the disciplinary function of Latin and Greek reached widespread proportions. It is probably true that the high school at Paulsboro, N. J., cannot provide instruction as complete and diversified as that encountered at Oxford or the Sorbonne, but that does not dispose of the fact that the Paulsboro school authorities seem content with a somewhat limited definition of "life" and with a not exactly all-embracing view of the function of a housewife or a worker in the local industries.

After all, there is no harm in a Paulsboro housewife knowing that in France they speak French even if she hears the language spoken by an earnest normal school graduate who has never been there. Nor would it materially lessen the efficiency of a Paulsboro worker to have been rushed through Cicero's "De Senectute," thus learning something more about old age than can be acquired by signing up for an old age pension. In Paulsboro even trigonometry is too "impractical" to be taught in the high school.

Whatever the local difficulties which account for the Paulsboro view of the function of public education, it is plain that, had the world been content with the Paulsboro idea all these centuries, the race would have got only a little way out of the swamps.

A MATTER OF SAFETY.

When the new consolidated school was finished, Coon Hollow imported a teacher from Oklahoma. She was full of new fangled notions which the kids at first took seriously. So, one evening, Jasper Hornblow noticed that small Trudy wasn't eating her supper, and asked her if she was feeling bad. "No, pappy," said Trudy, "but Miss Lucy says thet when we eat we should use jest the right hand and leave the other one danglin', sort of, if we want to be perlite." Jasper snorted. WHO SHOT ELMER?

I have solved the mystery of who shot Elmer. When A, B and C took shots at Elmer, it was in his mind to play possum. But when he dropped his gun, same was accidentally discharged and forthwith shot him. Therefore none of the trio A, B and C can be convicted of anything but the intent to kill or do bodily injury. Elmer can be convicted of killing or shooting himself, depending on whether he was killed or just shot.

Pete.

The problem didn't say A, B and C took shots at Elmer.

The sun's gone south. Sad for the tan vita mites, but not so tough for us—not if we have the long evenings, fire, slippers and a shelf of books. What books? Your own choice; if you don't own a little flock, you may rent them at the corner for 3 cents a day. We'll help Gil Blas and the eminent Doctor Sangrado slay their patients with vast drafts of water; thrust with the terribly gifted Cellini as he battles a dozen men at once; ride with D'Artagnan from Paris to London; plot with Sabatini's Bellarion against the crafty marquis of Montferrat; assist Jacques Tournebroche investigate salamanders, and hunt up a green horse on which the pretender to the throne of Penguinia may ride into Alca. That'll do for the first few weeks. . . . All old stuff, and all read long ago. True, but what's better? These are the old friends on the shelf and we can thrust them back there if they grow, a few chapters at a time, too familiar. But let them rally round. Ho, for that high emprize, the slaughter of winter's time.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Cutter will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual disease.

LICE AND DISEASE.

THERE is an old rule in spelling that goes something like this: "'I' follows 'l' and 'e' follows 'c'—'l-i-c-e'—and that always runs through a child's head."

Whenever a youngster complains that his head itches we should think of a parasitic infestation. The ordinary itch mite [scabies] does not attack the scalp. Its favorite sites are the webbike tissues between the fingers and those portions of the body confined beneath tight bands of clothing. There is no connection therefore between scabies and pediculosis [head lice] except that each condition is caused by a parasite. But the insects themselves are quite different.

Because of better understanding of the rules of good hygiene, vermin are encountered far less often than some years ago. Nevertheless, they will occur in schoolrooms every now and then and spread from one youngster to another. The head louse is a crablike creature which sucks its nourishment from the scalp. Its eggs—called nits—are found in a gelatinous sort of sack which is glued to a hair. As the hair grows these nests of embryonic lice are moved further away from the scalp. They may be identified by their glistening, semi-transparent appearance. They are so firmly fastened that it is difficult to remove them, and much combing with a fine instrument is necessary to dislodge them.

The meanderings of the louse over the scalp and its biting produce an intense and tormenting itching, but, strangely enough, many individuals will become accustomed to this never ceasing annoyance and give refuge to these inhabitants for weeks or months.

Sometimes they will give rise to infection, as their tiny wounds can inoculate the skin with bacteria and thus we may have impetigo, boils, or abscesses. Not infrequently a chronic, low grade eczema will lead to an investigation, when the nits will be discovered.

Chronic sufferers may actually show some effect upon general health. Anemia, loss of appetite, malnutrition, fatigue, and even nervous debility have been traced to these bugs. If harbored for long they may aid in pouring a constant stream of infection into the tissues which the body must overcome and for which it is obliged to use a given portion of its vitality.

The diagnosis is not difficult. Either the lice themselves or their egg nests can be discovered by careful search. In the presence of protracted itching—if other cases are known to exist in a schoolroom—the treatment should be applied without waiting for confirmation.

The objectives are removal of the egg sacks and the death of the lice. It is best to clip the hair, after which the scalp is scrubbed thoroughly with soap and water. If it is inadvisable to cut the tresses there are many applications that will prove effective. Bichloride of mercury solution—1 to 1,000—or paraffin oil may be applied. Kerosene is helpful if followed by a shampoo. Great care, however, must be taken not to bring this solution into contact with the skin of the forehead, face, and neck. Furthermore, no applications should be made in proximity to flame. For many cases a daily shampoo and the wielding of a fine tooth comb will effect a cure.

These parasites may become bothersome or even dangerous to adults, as they can carry disease. During the world war the cootie was an unwelcome, pestiferous invader. In fact, in order to guard against typhus fever [spread by lice] delousing stations were established where baths could be taken and the clothing sterilized. The body louse usually confines its activities to the trunk, sucks blood from the skin, and its bite produces a sharply reddened area. Scrubbing will not suffice, as the pests and their eggs may hide in the seams of clothing. It may be necessary to sterilize bed linen and clean all articles of furniture in the bedroom, including the mattress.

More detailed instructions will be sent on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope.

NOT AT ALL.

M. P. writes:

1. If a person is troubled with indigestion, does that necessarily mean that he will surely develop cancer?
2. What does indigestion come from?

REPLY.

1. Not at all.
2. Improper dietary habits are generally the cause of indigestion. Among these may be mentioned: Hasty drinking of extremely hot fluids; the abuse of iced drinks; fried meats; too much fatty food; excessive use of coffee, tea, tobacco, or alcohol; insufficient mastication and hurried eating. Mental disturbances also play a part, such as anger, worry, or annoyance during meals, or eating when mentally or physically tired.

CAUSES OF ASTHMA.

L. S. writes: Is there any new relief or cure for asthma? I have heard that X-ray is being used.

REPLY.

Asthma has many causes [allergic and infectious] and treatment is still in the experimental stage. Many attacks are said to be provoked by mental excitement.

Among methods of cure now being advocated are: Vaccines, fever therapy, air cleaning, ionization, ether injections, hydrochloric acid inhalation, ultra-violet, and X-rays.

Where there are so many remedies proposed and used we may be sure that many are ineffective. Every case of asthma must be studied as an individual problem.

CORPUSCLES.

C. writes:

1. What is the condition called when there is only 75 per cent of the correct amount of white corpuscles and 95 per cent of red corpuscles in the blood?
2. Would this condition cause rheumatism or arthritis?
3. What treatment is called for when this condition is accompanied by low temperature and rapid pulse?

REPLY.

1. Leucopenia—meaning too few white cells.
2. It may be associated with rheumatism or arthritis but could not possibly cause either disease.
3. Treatment by a skilled physician.

BE MODERATE.

C. R. writes: Is it possible for me to indulge in physical exercises at the age of 48 years? I had an operation for double hernia three years ago.

REPLY.

Ordinary calisthenics will not hurt you provided you do not indulge too strenuously in bending. Swimming, walking, and golf are fine.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark.—Since Capt. Botved, Danish army pilot, winged his way from Copenhagen to far away Tokio in 1926 leaders of the Danish business and political world and the Danish postoffice have been contemplating the establishment of two new trans-Asiatic air lines. The dream is now drawing near accomplishment.

Both air lines would start from Copenhagen. One would go to China and Siam by way of Moscow, and the second would go farther south by way of Moscow and Persia, where it would join the Dutch India lines and head for Siam. Danish business has old traditions to maintain there. It was Danish initiative that first developed the Siamese market and opened it to occidental trade methods.

This work in Siam resulted in the foundation of the East-Asiatic company, today Denmark's biggest international enterprise, with a fleet of Diesel motor ships exporting Danish goods and bringing copra and oil back from plantations owned by Danish enterprises. The East-Asiatic company is supporting the air lines' plan financially.

During the last year negotiations with soviet Russia and China have been successfully concluded. It is expected that next summer will see the Danish airliners in operation.

While other European nations are rearming far beyond financial strength, Denmark is contemplating further disarmament. Shortly before the Christmas recess a new bill will be introduced into parliament by the government proposing several amendments to the now effective law on Danish military conditions, passed in 1932, which also decreased Danish military strength at that time.

The new bill will, it is reported, abolish some of the military forces, but strengthen the coast guard. Denmark has practically no navy. All naval ships have only one purpose—to guard the coast. It is expected that a few new light destroyers will be built, so that Denmark may fulfill its neutral obligations and guard its own coasts against foes from the sea.

Due to decreasing American butter production, Danish farmers are hoping for an increase in the export of Danish butter to the United States. That country imported 536 tons of butter in August this year against 67 tons in the same month in 1935.

At the same time thousands of organized Danish small land holders within the Danish coöperative farming system are pleading for free import of corn for their cows. Why not, they suggest, try to make an agreement by which Denmark buys American corn for Danish butter.

American exports to Denmark have been fast decreasing for the last five or six years, due to Denmark's increased trade with England and Germany.

BILL OF SALE.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I wish to sell an auto ride device to a party and said party wants some kind of paper to show he is the rightful owner after it is sold to him. If I make out a paper similar to the following, would it be legal and binding?

1. "F. M. B. hereby agrees to sell and convey one A. H. K. auto ride No. ——— to John F. B. for the sum of $325, to be paid in cash."

2. In other words, the buyer wants some sort of paper so that some one cannot come along and tie up the ride for any outstanding debts that seller might have. J. B.

1. If you intend a present sale rather than an agreement for future sale you should use wording to make that intention more clear. The nature of the subject matter is not clear to us.

2. If the subject matter is a business enterprise it might be subject to the bulk sales law which requires five days' notice to creditors in case of a sale of all of the assets of a business. It also may be advisable for you to check up on chattel mortgage records and inquire of the original seller or manufacturer as to whether there is an outstanding conditional sale contract.

CANADIAN OPINION.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Your editorial comment in this morning's issue in regard to the King Edward-Simpson case proved very interesting to me as a Canadian, and I wish to compliment you upon the excellence of your summary.

You seem to have missed, however, a very important factor, the reaction in the dominions, such, for instance, as in Canada. This, probably, disturbs and perturbs the British cabinet as much as anything else. Canada's loyalty is deep and sincere, due to a great extent to the respect held for the royal family—a respect which found its deepest roots in the days of Queen Victoria and found its full bloom in the days of King George V. What took many years to cultivate might be blighted overnight by the marriage of Kind Edward to a divorcée.

If the good lady were not a divorcée would she be acceptable to Canadians? Yes, I think so; to the rank and file at any rate and most of the others.

Recently, just before leaving for Chicago for a visit, a friend said to me: "If the king marries Mrs. Simpson I'll never sing 'God Save the King' again. This will give you some idea how some Canadians feel about it.

H. A. NICHOLSON.

TOO MUCH WALLY.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—Why should we give up so much of our newspaper space to news about King Edward and Wally? Their affair is in England. Let them take care of it over there. Give us more news about things that happen in the United States. Our front and back pages of THE TRIBUNE are covered with pictures and news of what is going on in England. MRS A. SHOGREN.

PROPOSAL THAT PUNKS BE STUNG.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—Where is the proverbial spunk of American womanhood that they do not rise up in mass to protest against the action of the English ministers in opposing King Edward's intention to marry Wally Simpson?

What reason, if there be any, prompted their opposition except for the fact hat Wally Simpson is an American? Is it because Americans are not good enough for English kings to marry? Or is it that English monarchs are too good to marry the blasted women across the Atlantic?

What's the matter with American women? If you ask me they are the most wonderful of God's creations. But it seems that the English Tories, and particularly the English ministers, do not share my view. To judge by their placid acceptance in the past, American women and particularly rich American women are good only for titled but poverty stricken Britishers.

Should our American women stand for that?

Come on and show your spunk, girls! Let the world know that American women are much better than those pale faces that European royalty produce. Make the English feel your contempt for them. Let those punks across the sea feel your sting. AN OBSERVER.

JEALOUS.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—I think King Edward VIII. has wonderful taste in marrying Mrs. Simpson. I think every one over there is very jealous. She is a beautiful woman and they are just sore because he picked an American woman.

FRANCES JARRETT.

A CONSCIENTIOUS PREMIER.

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 4.—What a pity that Mr. Stanley Baldwin isn't as conscientious about American debts as he is about Mrs. Simpson. Surely American women are not less desirable than American dollars! And who said England has no dictator? READER.

THE TECHNIQUE OF TYRANNY.

Burlington, Wis., Dec. 2.—Before we Americans "move in new directions" by looking to government for our daily bread rather than to God and our own abilities, let us read "Inside Europe" by John Gunther.

For example, this master reporter, who has spent eleven years studying the European situation, informs us how labor, urged on by the radical politicians and labor leaders, demanded so much of the industrialists that they were both driven into the quiet prison house of European dictatorship.

We learn how Mussolini appoints undersecretaries, then casts them aside as they become unpopular with the masses they harass, and replaces them with new catspaws to do his bidding.

We meet Dr. Schacht, Hitler's money wizard, who has made Germany the most successful bankrupt in the world.

We see him bleeding the taxpayer dry, including the skilled laborer, taking 25 per cent of his weekly wage in "voluntary contributions for the good of the state."

We watch him forcing government I. O. U.s upon the savings banks and insurance companies, promising security and peace to the German people for their savings of eight hundred million marks, then using those savings to build the Hitler war machine with which he menaces the peace of Europe.

Surely after reading "Inside Europe" America, as the keeper of democracy, will stop, look, and listen before it attempts to move any further in "New Directions."

CONSTANT TRIBUNE READER.

SMOKING IN THEATERS.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—While tragedy is fresh in the minds of the citizens of Chicago and the horror that laxity in administration somewhere along the line may cause, may I call attention to the possibility of an even greater tragedy that surely threatens the lives of innocent people?

I refer to the smoking in the movie houses.

The other night I sat in the balcony of one north side theater entirely surrounded by smokers and no effort was made to stop them. While I have no objection whatever to smoking, I still insist a theater crowded with hundreds of people is not the place for it because of the great fire hazard.

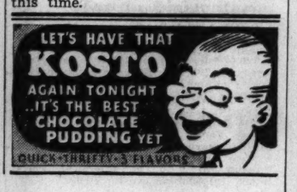
PAROLEE AND PAL NAMED IN $3,100 HOLDUP; CONFESS

Joseph Brezak, 42 years old, who was paroled in August of 1935 from the Indiana state penitentiary at Michigan City, where he had served five years for a Gary bank robbery, and Robert Wainwright, 23 years old, were identified yesterday as two of the four gunmen who obtained $3,100 in the holdup Sept. 18 of the offices of the Chris Paschen company on the ninth floor at 33 North La Salle street. The identifications were made at the weekly showup at the detective bureau by Paschen and two of his employés who were menaced by the gunmen. Both confessed the robbery and named a third man as their companion. He is William Harvey, 24 years old, who is in the county jail awaiting trial for the robbery a week ago of a south side tavern.

City Vehicle Stickers Go on Sale Today in City Hall

City Collector Louis Rixmann announced yesterday that the 1937 city vehicle licenses will be on sale today in his office at the city hall. He advised motorists to make their application by mail so as to avoid the crowd in his office. More than 500,000 applications already have been sent by mail to automobile owners in Chicago. City Controler Robert P. Upham warned that motorists who do not have the stickers by Jan. 1 may face arrest because the period of grace in previous years will not be allowed this time.



ARREST BROKER AFTER HIS AUTO HITS PEDESTRIAN

William P. Moncrieff, 38 years old, 898 Grove street, Glencoe, an investment broker, was arrested last night after his automobile sidewiped another car in Wacker drive at Clark street and struck down a pedestrian who was standing on a safety island. Police said Moncrieff was intoxicated.

The victim of the accident was George Ochschlager, 62 years old, employed as a waiter at the Bismarck hotel. He was taken to the Henrotin hospital in a serious condition.

According to police, Moncrieff struck the car of John S. Baima Jr., 22 years old, 6272 Hyacinth avenue, employed in the office of his father, state manager of the American National Insurance company, 2400 Madison street.

Baima signed complaints charging Moncrieff with reckless driving and driving while drunk, but police withheld booking him because of Ochschlager's uncertain condition. Moncrieff told police that he was connected with the firm of Lawrence Stern & Co., 231 South La Salle street.

CARL MOVES, BUT HE ERRS IN NOT MOVING ENOUGH

Because Carl W. Harrison, 25 years old, made three serious mistakes last Wednesday, he spent last night in a cell at the detective bureau. The mistakes were, in order:

No. 1—Harrison held up a meat market at 834 Willow street, robbing three employés of $100. Pursued by a police squad, Harrison's car crashed in an alley near 2014 Fremont street, and he escaped after an exchange of pistol shots.

No. 2—In his flight Harrison dropped a document which identified him as the owner of the wrecked automobile. This caused police to raid his flat at 2010 Clifton avenue. Harrison was not there.

No. 3—Knowing police were on his trail, Harrison decided to move. But he did not move far enough away. Last night Sergts. John Kratzmeyer and Walter Paradowski arrested Harrison as he left his new home at 2129 Clifton avenue. Police said he confessed the robbery and ten others.

2,000,000 HAIL CONSTITUTION OF SOVIET RUSSIA

Stalin Absent from Red Square Parade.

MOSCOW, Dec. 6.—(AP)—An estimated 2,000,000 workers today paraded through Red square in a fog as dense as a London "pea-souper" to hear the new Russian constitution proclaimed.

Simultaneously, lesser demonstrations were held throughout soviet Russia, while the communist party radio station, broadcasting on fifteen wave lengths in eight languages, spread the news of the demonstration through the world.

The constitution was approved yesterday by the congress of soviets after a number of amendments were made, one of which empowered the government to declare war "in case of necessity." It also established two houses of parliament of equal numbers to be elected by direct vote of the people.

New "Sun" Rises.

Josef Stalin, general secretary of the communist party, was missing from the Lenin tribune as workers and soldiers were jammed in every corner of the great square at noon today to hear Nikitta Khruschoff, head of the Moscow committee of the communist party, lavish praise upon the constitution. Khruschoff proclaimed the instrument a beacon to workers in the entire world.

"Moscow congratulates the workers of the world on the new constitution," he said in Russian. "When the constitution was ratified, the dream of centuries was realized. The sun of communism has risen on the world.

"Fascists and capitalists see the approaching peril, they feel it imminent," he said. "If enraged Fascists dare to attack our borders we will have allies in those very countries that will fight against us. Workers in those countries will be friends of our Socialists."

Stalin's Absence Noted.

His speech was immediately translated into French, English, German, Spanish, Hungarian, and other tongues and broadcast on frequencies entirely around the low wave dial.

Except for Stalin, all other government leaders were present on the tribune. There was no explanation of Stalin's absence, but it was believed he elected to remain indoors to protect his sensitive throat from the raw, disagreeable day. The fog was so dense that buildings at either end of the square were hidden from the spectators in the square.

The parade, which streamed through the square as a solid mass of humanity for four hours, was hastily organized last night after the adoption of the constitution. Most of the hundreds of thousands of banners and pictures of Stalin and Lenin exhibited by the paraders were salvaged from those used in the celebrations Nov. 7, but there were a few, hastily fashioned new ones.

Spanish Envoy Attends.

"Under the banner of the party of Lenin and Stalin, under the banner of Stalin's constitution—forward to communism," proclaimed a banner, 50 feet high, erected on a building across the square facing the tribune.

Spanish Ambassador Marcelino Pascua was the only diplomat in the diplomatic box. He came on his own initiative, stating he wanted to see the great demonstration.

Other diplomats, apparently either because they were not invited or did not care to brave the fog and rain which washed out the winter's first snowfall in Moscow, were absent.

Beginning last night and continuing through today, the new constitution was read throughout the soviet union in more than 60 languages. Distant stations picked up the Moscow broadcast, relaying it to the arctic, to the far east, to Outer Mongolia, to the central Asian deserts, to remote fastnesses everywhere, and to ships at sea.

J. Scott Johnson, Retired Photographer, Dies at 76

J. Scott Johnson, 76 years old, for many years a portrait photographer with studios in the loop, died in his home at 7807 South Shore drive yesterday after a long illness. Mr. Johnson was born in Dayton, O., came to Chicago in 1880 and established his first studio at Clark and Madison streets. He retired in 1922. He was well known to theatrical people. LOESCH CALLS MEETING TO MAP PAROLE REFORM

Judges and Others to Confer Thursday.

Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago Crime commission, announced yesterday that he had called a meeting for 3 p. m. next Thursday in his law offices, 10 South La Salle street, to consider amendments to the parole law. He declared numerous faults found with the administration of the present parole system necessitate action.

While the list of those invited to the meeting has not been completed, Mr. Loesch said Judge John Prystalski of the Circuit court and Judge Robert C. O'Connell of the Superior court, State Senator Harold G. Ward, and State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, both of Chicago, are included.

Deems Conditions Intolerable.

"It seems that the burden and responsibility of calling such a meeting falls to me as head of the crime commission," said President Loesch. "Such parole conditions as have been uncovered during the past year are intolerable and I am, therefore, requesting the aid of a number of officials who are conversant with the subject.

"This will not be a town meeting. The advice of the best minds on the question is being sought. All of us agree that something must be done. We shall discuss what that something is to be."

A later meeting under consideration by Mr. Loesch would include all the Chicago members of both branches of the legislature at which a legislative program would be mapped. Judges O'Connell and Prystalski and Senator Ward met with the crime commission head several weeks ago for a preliminary discussion of the evils and abuses of the parole system.

Report Late Next Month.

Judge Prystalski is a member of a commission appointed last February by Gov. Horner to investigate prison and parole conditions. Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the crime commission, is secretary of the governor's commission. He said yesterday the report of that commission to the governor probably would not be ready before the end of January.

Col. Chamberlin and Judge Prystalski are known to disagree on the merits of the present parole system. Judge Prystalski expressed views favoring a change in the law to allow the presiding judge at a criminal trial to fix an indeterminate sentence within the limits prescribed by the present indeterminate sentence law.

Secret Releases Stir Dispute.

Secret paroles to certain vicious criminals started the movement for parole reform, Mr. Loesch remarked. The secrecy of paroles has its champions and its opponents, he asserted, and without some form of publicity attending paroles scandals are bound to crop up.

Under the present law most prison sentences for crime are from 1 to 10 years, 1 to 14 years, 1 to 20 years, or 1 year to life. Neither judge nor jury fixes the time to be served, the conviction of specific offense determining into which maximum class the sentence must fit.

Then, usually eleven months after the convict enters prison, the parole board secretly decides upon a "setting." In the case of a man serving one year to life the parole board might decide upon a setting of five years.

That setting is in fact the actual sentence imposed, and its secrecy is jealously guarded by the parole officials, it was explained, and when the period of the setting is completed with good behavior the convict is secretly released.

"There have been too many scandalous paroles," Mr. Loesch stated. "Conditions like we have had cannot go on. The crime commission will take the initiative in seeking the remedy."

Headaches
Come from Constipation

Most headaches are due to poisons formed in the waste matter and absorbed by the blood. Slowly but surely these poisons undermine your health. Get rid of constipation and your headaches will disappear.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Just try Nujol regularly for the next month and see if you don't feel better than you ever suspected you could.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

MEET IN TOLEDO ON GLASS STRIKE AT OTTAWA, ILL.

Hope to End Row Making 1,300 Men Idle.

Toledo, O., Dec. 6.—[Special.]—Conferences began here this morning between officials of the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company and a committee of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers headed by President Glen W. McCabe in an effort to settle the strike at Ottawa, Ill., where 1,300 employés have been idle since Wednesday.

McCabe and his associates came to Toledo last night from Pittsburgh after a lengthy exchange of telegrams with company officials.

John D. Biggers, president of Libbey-Owens-Ford, and David Goodwillie, executive vice president, attended the conference on behalf of the company.

Conferees indicated they might go into details of the new contract proposed for Libbey-Owens-Ford, which is substantially the same in demand as that which caused the strike at five Pittsburgh Plate Glass plants.

The union is asking a closed shop, checkoff of union dues, and a 10 per cent wage increase.

C. I. O. Movement Indorsed.

New York, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The general executive board of the United Electrical and Radio Workers of America today approved participation in an immediate drive for organization along vertical lines—under auspices of the Committee for Industrial Organization—among radio, electrical, automobile, shipyards, and rubber workers.

A spokesman announced after the meeting that the campaign would begin first in the northern New Jersey area. In that section alone, he said, it was hoped to reach from 250,000 to 275,000 workers.

The next area to be entered will be the Bridgeport, Conn., industrial section.

Criticize Pay Raise Plan.

The board adopted a statement of policy sharply critical of pecentage raises in workers' salaries, saying "we ask that in future all distributions [of extra wages] be granted to employés regardless of length of service by flat hourly increase."

Pay raises on the percentage plan, the board asserted, discriminated against the low-salaried employé.

WINNING DEMOCRATS TO TAKE COUNTY AND COURT POSTS TODAY

Twenty-two Democrats who won local offices in the Roosevelt landslide on Nov. 3—seven elected to county offices and fifteen Municipal court judges and executives—will be inducted into office today. The other three winners, those elected sanitary district trustees, will be inducted tomorrow.

Only two of the county winners, Horace G. Lindheimer, elected county treasurer, and Victor L. Schlaeger, elected clerk of the Superior court, are new to their positions. Joseph L. Gill, now county treasurer, will move to the office of clerk of the Municipal court, but he was elected to that place in 1932 and surrendered it only to take over the Sweitzer vacancy last year.

The most elaborate preparations have been made for the installations of State's Attorney Courtney and Treasurer-elect Lindheimer. It has been announced that Gov. Horner and District Attorney Igoe will speak at the Courtney ceremonies in the Criminal court building. There will be several speeches at the Lindheimer induction.

STRIKERS RAISE SUBSIDY ISSUE IN SHIP WALKOUT

First Emergency Vessel Speeds Food to Alaska.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Maritime unions sought to make federal ship subsidies an issue in the waterfront strike today while the government's first emergency food ship sped toward Alaska and authorities turned their attention to Hawaii's urgent needs.

Strikers distributed thousands of pamphlets entitled "Buy a ship and make your fortune." It suggested facetiously that others besides big steamship companies could borrow money from the government to build ships and then obtain profitable mail carrying contracts.

The pamphlets singled out the so-called "big three" companies—the Matson, Dollar and American-Hawaiian Lines—as the principal holdouts against union demands.

Wage Cut Issue Injected.

Repeatedly the unions have contended that subsidies paid to some of the companies are sufficient to take care of their expenses, leaving operating revenues as clear profits. They charged the Matson Line progressively reduced wages of its second assistant engineers as company profit increased.

In a statement Thomas G. Plant, spokesman for the shipowners, said the American-Hawaiian Line received no subsidy whatever under the merchant marine act of 1928 and that subsidies were paid in no case where ships were not operating.

With a capacity cargo, the bureau of Indian affairs ship Boxer left Seattle early today for southern Alaska. She was the first ship to sail for the territory since the strike started Oct. 29.

Prepare for Demonstration.

While the unions prepared for another mass demonstration here next Tuesday, one of their number, the radio telegraphers, arranged to resume peace negotiations tomorrow with coastwise ship operators.

The coastal operators have reached tentative agreements with all unions involved excepting the radio telegraphers and the masters, mates and pilots.

San Francisco strikers, who recruited about 20,000 persons for a parade up Market street, sought to make their next Tuesday's mass meeting an even large affair.

They planned to converge for demonstrations on various business districts and march to the city hall.

POLICE SIFT MYSTERY DEATH OF RICH WIFE IN FAMILY'S GARAGE

Suffern, N. Y., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Police of the nearby township of Ramapo today investigated the circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. David McConnell Jr., former Texas girl and daughter-in-law of a millionaire New York perfume manufacturer.

The body was found at 8 a. m. yesterday in the garage at the McConnell home by a gardener. Coroner J. C. Dingman said the girl was a victim of monoxide poisoning.

The coroner said young McConnell left the house at 9 p. m. Friday. His wife, according to evidence gathered by Dingman, was heard driving her own car into the garage at about 10 p. m.

The husband returned about 11:15 p. m., the coroner said, putting his car in the same garage, but noticed nothing unusual—apparently there were no gas fumes circulating in the garage at that hour and the motor of the wife's car was not running.

Find Ohio Farmer Beaten to Death in Locked Home

Washington Courthouse, O., Dec. 6.—(AP)—The body of a prominent farmer, his skull crushed, was found today in his house, with all the doors and windows locked. The victim was Rufus W. Hutson, 79, of Manara, near here. Sheriff W. H. Isenhower and Coroner C. C. Hazard said they did not believe the motive was robbery. The sheriff said he believed Hutson was struck with a heavy pipe wrench, found in the kitchen, while he slept.

Openings such as these and many others are being offered these days to job seekers in practically every line of work through the Chicago Tribune's help wanted columns.

Chicago's busiest marketplace for jobs and job seekers today offers more employment opportunities than in years.

Every month so far this year, the Tribune has printed more help wanted advertising than in the same month of last year. The total increase during the first ten months of this year was 38% up over the same period last year.

Employment agencies and individual employers place three times as much help wanted advertising in the Tribune as in any other Chicago newspaper.

Dried Beef Is Glorified in These Recipes

BY MARY MEADE.

Uninteresting as wash day lunch is dried beef as it comes from the glass jar in which you most often buy it. But it is tempting food when frizzled or creamed, or stirred into a pimento cheese sauce for a toast topping, or rolled around cottage cheese, cornucopia fashion, to find a place on the hors d'œuvre tray.

Easy to prepare, inexpensive, and good to eat are these dried beef dishes. Serve either on toast triangles or in mashed potato nests.

Creamed Dried Beef.

[Serves 6.]
2 tablespoons butter
¼ pound dried beef
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk

Melt the butter in a frying pan. Pull the beef apart, removing any stringy parts, and frizzle until the edges curl in the hot butter. Sprinkle flour over beef or remove the beef and combine flour and butter. Add milk gradually, stirring to blend well. When sauce has thickened serve at once. One cup of evaporated milk and a cup of water may be used instead of two cups of fresh milk.

Dried Beef in Pimento Cheese Sauce.

[Serves 6.]
¼ pound dried beef
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
¼ pound pimento cheese

Melt butter, blend in flour, and add milk gradually. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add sliced cheese, lower heat, and stir until the cheese is melted. Add the beef cut into pieces with scissors. Heat thoroughly and serve at once. This sauce may be served with rice or boiled potatoes as well as on toast or mashed potato.

Dried beef and macaroni may be baked together or the meat may be combined with rice for a luncheon dish.

Dried Beef and Rice.

[Serves 5.]
1 cup uncooked rice
2 quarts water
2 tablespoons butter
¼ pound dried beef

Wash the rice and cook it until tender in the water. Drain off water and dry the rice over the fire. Shred the beef with scissors and frizzle it in the butter until crisp and slightly brown. Combine with the hot boiled rice, blending with a fork to avoid breaking the rice kernels.

To make the dried beef hors d'œuvres mentioned earlier, whole slices of tender, not overly salted dried beef are needed. Sieved cottage cheese is blended with mayonnaise and a bit of zip is added with horseradish or mustard. The seasoned cheese then is spread over the beef slices and each slice is rolled into a cornucopia.

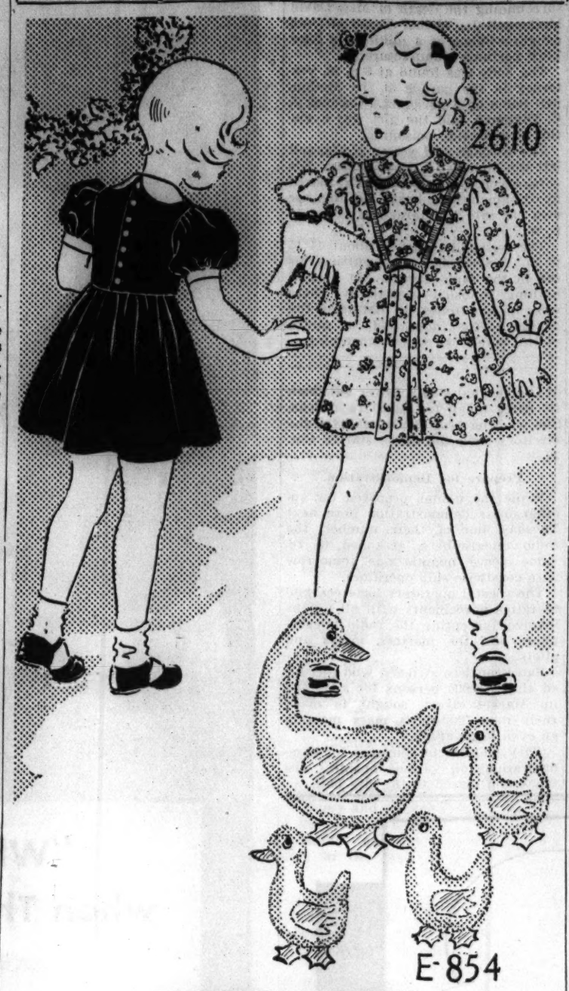
Lovely Gifts for Juvenile



CHILDREN'S FROCKS AND TOYS.

Here are two patterns which may solve beautifully your varied problems with regard to finding Christmas gifts for the youngest set. Naturally, you want to be as economical as possible with your gift budget, and these patterns also are useful toward that end.

The first pattern is for a delightful little frock for the young miss herself. It is inspired by the Empire period. A high waistline is an important feature. The little dress buttons down the back of the waist. There is a clever turned down collar and a neat vestee effect in the bodice. The sleeves are puffed and may be either short or long. Box plaits embellish the front of the skirt, while the back is simply gathered, both style points contributing toward desirable skirt fullness.

Besides the various sturdy cottons, there are wool crêpe and velveteen as suitable mediums for this little frock.

Style No. 2610 is designed for sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

The second pattern helps you to fashion cuddly stuffed toys. They may be made from any scraps which repose in your scrap bag. Turkish toweling is especially nice for the woolly lamb, and cotton "terry cloth" is excellent for the duck and ducklings. The features are embroidered or painted on with textile paints. The number of the pattern for these toys is E-854.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Stunning Gold Cloth Is a Find for Redheads

It's Bound to Make 'Em Irresistible Sirens.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

You'll have to go to town early these days if you want to wander around the lingerie showings without too much competition. All the newest ideas are going out so fast that only the early birds get the prize loot. Much has been done about color and fabric with some devastatingly alluring creations as the result. But a new color, designed, we are positive, for the good looking red heads, makes the headlines this week.

It's a luscious tone of gold, not yellow, not a brownish topaz, but a stunning good glittery gold that ought to make any copper-top an irresistible siren. Gleaming satin fashioned into clinging gowns as skilfully cut and molded as an evening gown are simple and unadorned, except for a fine narrowed, scalloped edge to the unusual neckline and sleeves. Others have encrustations of lace in a deep ivory. Heavy silk crêpe in this dusky gold color also is made into the tailored models or the lace trimmed affairs, and some golden chiffons are like filtered sunshine.

Telling color contrasts for all these golden glories are the robes of ginger brown velvet or sleek fitted things of smooth wool, also in brown. Or the breathtaking combines of a turquoise blue robe, jade green, or the dramatics of black velvet with a wide belt of simulated jewels.

Brown velvet mules with bands of gingery brown fur, slippers high of heel of gold metallic brocade with flashing fire red patches somewhere are footnotes for the brown robes, and jade green as well as stunning turquoise blue slippers of moire silk, lether or velvet are also to be found for the robes of these colors.

If you're weary of blues, reds, and flesh tones in the usual lingerie assortments this new gold standard idea will revive your enthusiasm for something different.

Fashion photograph. . . . Flashing tiny diamond shaped mirrors dramatize the newest of filmy black chiffon dance dresses. The belt, décolletage and shoulder straps are appliqued with the mirrors. The skirt is wide and full and the underslip is of dull crêpe. The same model comes in snow white and both are to be found in a Chicago collection of new dance dresses for the holiday parties.

Good Toy One Suited to Age of Youngster

Should Be Well Made and of Sturdy Material.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

What is a good toy?

An enormous amount of money is going to be spent this Christmas in toy stores and toy departments all over this country. Some of it, a large part of it, is going to be well invested. Some of it is going to be money thrown away.

A good toy or plaything is one which is suited to a child's age. That may seem a point too obvious to mention, but it isn't. People frequently buy toys too old for a child [seldom too young for him]. The result is that the child can't enjoy them, because his mind, or perhaps his muscles aren't ready for them. Buying electric trains too early is an example of this. Purchasing for a young child erection sets with small screws and bolts and tools to manipulate is another. Buying small stone blocks of assorted shapes for the little girl or boy is another error. Nowadays toy departments group or grade toys for your convenience, of course the abilities of the individual child must also be considered when a choice is being made.

What else makes a good toy?

A good toy should give a child something to do, which crosses off certain types of tricky mechanical toys and dolls, of which a child quickly tires. The good old standbys which provide a child with physical activity or imaginative activity, or both, would make a long list. To mention a few: there are dolls, blocks, wagons, animals, large and small. All the transportation toys: trains, trucks, automobiles, horses and wagons, airplanes and the miniature housekeeping toys and tools.

The next requirement of a toy is that it should be well made. That means sturdy materials and good construction, so that it will withstand vigorous use. Also it must work. If it has wheels, the wheels must go round. If it is supposed to stand up, it must not topple over easily. Nothing is more distressing to a child than a toy that breaks or a plaything that won't work properly.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily instalments.

THE OPENING SUIT BID OF ONE.

The opening suit bid of one is the ideal bid. Rarely will the best final contract be apparent at the start of the hand, and the opening one bid in a suit allows for the greatest possible exchange of information while keeping the bidding at the lowest possible level for purposes of both strategy and safety.

Although it is the lowest bid, a one bid does not show the weakest possible opening hand, particularly in honor tricks. The playing strength of the hand is a secondary consideration compared to the vital necessity for making the opening one bid show a fixed minimum number of defensive winners. This minimum should be better than an average share of all the honor tricks around the table. According to the Rule of Eight, there usually are eight or eight and a half honor tricks in all. Therefore, the honor trick requirement for an opening suit bid of one is two and a half honor tricks, and more often the hand will contain three honor tricks or more.

The number of expected trick winners in the hand, while theoretically of equal importance, does not require any effort in counting on the part of the opening bidder. Any hand containing two and a half to three honor tricks and a fair biddable suit will simultaneously count to about four winners, which are enough for an opening suit bid of one. Finally, the hand should contain a biddable suit, in which the opening bid will be made.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	1 spade	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
2 spades	Pass	3 spades [final bid]

North should have rebid two no trump, but even had he done so South probably would have played the hand at three spades.

With both of the major suits bid against him, West virtually tossed a coin between the two minors. It was true that North had started with a club bid which, in the minds of many opening leaders, would have dictated a diamond as the only alternative, but this particular West player was one who has a strong aversion to leading from queens. [Not a bad aversion, by the way. It is shared by many players who are acknowledged brilliant opening leaders.] On this particular hand, however, West hardly could have foreseen how beautifully his selection of a club would result. Declarer won with the jack and led a spade toward dummy, taking the jack finesse. When it held, he cashed the ace, and then had to consider ways and means of reëntering his own hand. Not knowing who had the heart ace, he laid down dummy's queen, but since West could imagine declarer's difficulty he held off this trick. At this point declarer would have been wiser to have led to his singleton jack of diamonds, but he continued with hearts, and his nine lost to West's jack. West promptly threw the dummy back on lead with a club.

Declarer could count, of course, that a third round of clubs would be ruffed, and, therefore, did what he should have done before. He led a low diamond from the king. East ducked and West won with the queen. A third club followed, and East ruffed. A heart return, won by West's ace, and the lead of West's last heart did the trick. East ruffed with his last trump and the contract was defeated.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Is the European form of contract bridge just the same as the American form?

Answer: Yes. In France, however, both contract and a very similar game, called Plafond, are played.

Betty Kellogg Is Engaged to J. J. Goodwillie

Announcement Is Made at Tea for Eastern Visitor.

BY JUDITH CASS.

At a tea at home yesterday afternoon Mrs. John Kellogg announced the engagement of her elder daughter, Betty, to John J. Goodwillie, son of Mrs. Charles F. Goodwillie. The news of the romance did not come as a surprise to any of the young people who gathered in the hospitable living room of the apartment at 1420 Lake Shore drive where the Kelloggs live, for Mr. Goodwillie has been Miss Kellogg's constant escort for more than a year.

Although Miss Kellogg told her guests that the party was given for Richard Armstrong of Short Hills, N. Y., a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Walker, every one suspected that it would be to Mr. Goodwillie and his fiancée that they would ultimately drink a toast. Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Goodwillie were ushers in the wedding of Miss Jane McMurray to Mr. Walker a few months ago.

Miss Kellogg, whose younger sister, Jean, is one of the season's debutantes, attended the University School for Girls and had a year at Pembroke college in Providence, R. I. Mr. Goodwillie is a graduate of the Latin School for Boys and Dartmouth college. Their wedding will take place shortly after the first of the year.

Miss Jean Kellogg will be presented to society at a tea-dance Christmas day at the Racquet club.

Mr. and Mrs. Peace to Give Dinner for Young Folk.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Peace will give a buffet dinner at home preceding the Christmas Fortnightly on Dec. 23 for their subdeb daughter, Miss Sara Peace, and some forty boys and girls. The party which Mr. and Mrs. Peace and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. Corley were to have given on the 29th at the Saddle and Cycle for Miss Peace and Miss Mary Louise Corley has been canceled.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Edwards Hough have issued invitations to a dance next Saturday night at 9 o'clock at their Winnetka home for "The Ambassador from Paraguay." The especial guest is better known as Samuel Douglas Flood Jr., who is at home on leave until the day after Christmas from his duties in the United States diplomatic service. The Houghs' guests are requested to wear costumes.

Lawrenceville Headmaster and Wife Arrive Today.

Alumni and friends of the Lawrenceville Preparatory school are looking forward to entertaining the young headmaster, Allan V. Heely, and his wife, this week, for Mr. and Mrs. Heely arrive today for several days' stay. The Donald F. McPhersons, whose son, Donald Jr., is a student at the school, will give luncheons for the visitors today. Mr. McPherson will give his at the Chicago club and Mrs. McPherson is asking a few friends to meet Mrs. Heely at the Casino.

Wednesday T. Samuel Parsons, an alumnus of Lawrenceville, is giving a luncheon for Mr. Heely and that night the local Lawrenceville Alumni association is giving a dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Heely at the University club. Mr. Parsons heads the committee in charge of the dinner, the other members being Newton C. Farr, James N. Rawleigh, Rawleigh Warner, Charles C. Fitzmorris, and Robert C. Childs.

Mr. Heely, who is a graduate of Yale and Oxford, has been headmaster at Lawrenceville for about two and a half years. Before that he was assistant headmaster at Andover.

Two Chicago Boys on Yale Prom Committee.

Already the Chicago girls who conceivably might be invited to the Yale junior promenade are hoping that they will be asked to be in New Haven for that leading event on the Yale undergraduate social calendar to be held on Feb. 26. Two Chicago boys are on the committee arranging the event, Clinton E. Frank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Frank of Evanston, and Robert A. Vested, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Vested of Oglesby avenue.

One of the earliest post-holiday benefit dances is the one the Chicago Vassar club is planning for Jan. 2 in the Vassar House restaurant.

Members of the Chicago Junior league will meet in the ballroom of the Drake hotel at 11 o'clock this morning. Luncheon will be served after the meeting, which is a semi-annual one, and afterward the members will be permitted to inspect the league's new offices in the hotel.

Peter Ball Weds English Girl in New York Thursday.

Richard Baum will serve as best man at the wedding on Thursday in New York of Miss Cherry Pinckard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Pinckard of London and Surrey, England, to Peter Ball, son of Dr. and Mrs. Otho Fisher Ball. Miss Biddy Ainley of London will land in New York tomorrow from London to attend as a bridesmaid, and Miss Nancy Reid will arrive from California, also to attend the English bride.

The wedding will take place in the afternoon in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's church, and a reception will follow at the Sulgrave hotel where Mr. and Mrs. Pinckard are staying. Mr. Ball and his bride will go to Palm Springs, Cal., on their wedding trip, and will make their home in New York. The bride's parents will visit friends until after the first of the year when they will return to England.

Miss Pinckard already has received a wedding gift which she will treasure, for it came from the employés on the 2,000 acre Pinckard estate in Surrey. They gave her a silver inkstand and silver candlesticks.

There will be many of Miss Janet Fairbank's friends dining at the Lake Shore Drive hotel next Sunday evening for the Kellogg Fairbanks' only daughter is to give a group of songs then, starting at 7:30 o'clock.

Earlier the same day many lovers of music and the dance will go to the Studebaker theater where Clarita Martin [Mrs. Mellen C. Martin of Winnetka], Spanish dancer, and Eusebio Concialdi, baritone, will give a recital.

The Chicago Drama league has cards out for a lecture-luncheon at the Arts club on Thursday, Dec. 17. Charles Eagle Plume, Indian dancer and interpreter of Indian lore, life, and culture, will give Indian ceremonial dances in costume, starting at

Young Russian Attains Superb Tones of Piano

Opera Debut at 15

Mr. Barry's story of the triumph of Betty Jaynes, 15 years old, in singing "La Boheme" duo with Martinelli is on page 1.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Because Ania Dorfmann understands and delights in her instrument's greatest glory, yesterday's Studebaker theater program by this young newcomer from Russia gives the hard pressed critic something more interesting to write about than the matters of technique and phrasing which a review of a piano recital must ordinarily feature.

This greatest glory, of course, is the magic of that almost illegally lovely tone which begins to die at the very moment of birth, but which surrounds its decline with an aura of gentle and gradually failing harmonics.

Every pianist who fancies the crispness of his own style and praises the stern clearness of his iron octaves should hear Miss Dorfmann combine clarity of style with an almost continuous regard for the sheer sound of her playing.

Fritz Kreisler and his followers took over Orchestra hall yesterday for an afternoon of fine fiddling and lusty hand clapping. Nothing new to say about Kreisler. The same patrician delivery and gleaming tone. He played his own concerto "in the style of Vivaldi" and the one by Mendelssohn in the style of Mendelssohn.

The Beaux Arts salon, held each Sunday afternoon in the third floor lounge of the Medinah club, yesterday presented Anthony Dongarra, 21 years old, Chicago violinist, in a debut recital. The young musician displayed a nice sense of style. He understands the power of a long, clearly delivered phrase, and knows how to add to the seeming importance of a sequence by selecting and skilfully projecting a tone quality suitable to its character. The mechanics of his instrument's technique hold very few terrors for him, although a youthful urge toward high tempos makes it impossible, on occasion, to preserve beauty of tonal texture in the midst of some especially fearful page.

Competent accompaniments were supplied by Erma Lindgren. The Beau Arts programs are under the direction of Mathilda Ernestine.

The Third Symphony of Rachmaninov will receive its first Chicago performance this coming Thursday night, when Frederick Stock is to conduct the new work in place of the Leuning Symphonic Interludes and the Szostakowicz Symphony previously announced for the Chicago Symphony orchestra's Dec. 10-11 program.

When Felix Borowski lectures on the violin and its music at the Auditorium theater tonight, he will add some practical observations on the instrument's technique and use in his illustrations a 1691 Stradivarius from the Lyon & Healy collection. This lecture is part of Northwestern university's history and enjoyment of music course and precedes a violin recital by Jascha Heifetz.

The American Guild of Musical Artists, meeting at the Congress hotel yesterday, considered among other things a program for controling the number of benefit performances which members may give. Something similar to the Theater authority of the Actors' Equity may be worked out. This department has the power to rule on what benefit performances its members may aid.

Bridge Title Is Won by Jacobs and Kempner

Other Chicago Teams Are Second and Third.

Walter Jacobs and Ralph Kempner of Chicago won the open pair championship last night, the final and feature contest of the American Bridge league tournament at the Stevens hotel. The champions scored a total of 564.9 match points to a total of 527 scored by the second pair, Miss Allyne Paris and J. R. Smith, also of Chicago.

Robert W. Halpin and Owen Gilman, another Chicago pair, finished in third place with a total of 517.2 points. Lewis A. Bernard and Philip Steiner of Cincinnati, O., who were in second place going into the finals, finished in fourth place. Jacobs and Kempner jumped into the lead and were never headed in any of the sessions. They won custody of the Cavendish club cup for the next year.

The amateur pair championship for the league president's trophy was won during the afternoon by Dr. J. C. McClelland of Akron, O., and Max Neiman of Los Angeles. Alden Perrine and John Parish of Centralia, Ill., finished in second place. The winners scored a total of 369.5 match points to a total of 363.5 scored by the Centralia pair.

The following were elected officers of the league for 1937: Gordon M. Gibbs of Bloomfield, N. J., president; James H. Lemon of Washington, D. C., and Joseph E. Cain of Indianapolis, Ind., vice presidents; William E. McKenney of New York City, secretary, and J. N. S. Brewster Jr. of New York City, treasurer. Mrs. Albert Rockwell of Warren, Pa., was elected president of the women's auxiliary of the league.

Stage and Screen Folk to Perform at Boys' Club Benefit

Underprivileged boys on Chicago's near west side are to be the beneficiaries of the all-star program the Deborah Woman's club will stage at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Gold room of the Congress hotel. Actors and actresses of the stage and screen will appear and boys from the Deborah Boys' club, 2441 West Division street, will put on a wrestling bout.

MRS. CHARLES E. MARTIN.

This year there are 1,480 boys enrolled at the club and the average daily attendance exceeds 500. They are learning handicrafts, they are playing under trained supervision, and they are studying in the library and lounges.

The Deborah club is one of the oldest in the city, having been founded in 1872. In the absence of Mrs. Charles King Corsant in California, Mrs. Charles E. Martin, 7131 Crandon avenue, is the acting president. Mrs. Martin has served the organization for several years as recording secretary and as first vice president.

Evelyn Venable and Husband Balk at Working in Same Film

Paramount's 8,000 ton chartered sailing ship Star of Finland has gone to sea for two weeks for scenes in "Souls at Sea." It is escorted by the tug John N. Stuart. Prior to sailing a scene was shot at the studio which showed Gary Cooper and George Raft locked in the brig of a British man o' war of the 1840s. They were supposed to be officers taken off a slave ship. Cooper and Raft had to sing a duet, a simple ditty called "Sally Sapple," whose tune was no more complicated than "Pop Goes the Weasel."

But Gary and George proved to be two of the worst singers in Hollywood; when one strayed on to the right note the other was four degrees shy of it. Henry Hathaway, the director, and Charles Kiscoe, a pianist, played and replayed, rehersed and rerehersed the two actors in the song until all four were perspiring. They finally got a "take" to the hearty giggles of everybody else on the set.

An indoor replica of the upper deck of a sailing ship has been built on a Paramount sound stage. It is erected on three huge movable jacks which operate hydraulically to raise and lower the "ship." The rocking motion "got" the workmen on the set, two of whom became so seasick they had to be hospitalized. One of the workmen, in fact, had a later relapse that turned into illness which was fatal. After the terrors of the synthetic ship, going to sea held no particular qualms for either Cooper or Raft.

A race track story titled "I Hate Horses," written by Philip Dunne and Finley Peter Dunne Jr., sons of the late great Chicago humorist, is being filmed at Universal with a cast including Wendy Barrie, Binnie Barnes, Bill Gargan, Alan Baxter, and Raymond Walburn. It is being shot on the grounds of Carleton Burke, head of the California turf commission.

Margot Grahame has applied for her first Americanization papers. Her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Grahame, are coming from England in time for Christmas and will remain as permanent members of their daughter's American establishment. Miss Grahame is playing the lead at RKO in "Michael Strogoff." The break with her English husband, Francis Lister, who prefers to do his acting in Lunnon, has become lasting.

After an odd sort of fellow, wearing earmuffs and always carrying a suitcase, had stood outside Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios for a week, waiting for stars to emerge and then following them for some distance, the studio police surrounded the fellow one day. Myrna Loy had pointed him out as having followed her for half a block on three occasions.

"Sure, I followed her," the man said. "I got Gable and Nelson Eddy and Bob Montgomery and Jeanette MacDonald, too. But I had to follow Myrna Loy three times because she's so light on her feet. I am recording the stars' footsteps." He opened his suitcase, which was grilled on the outside, and it had a recording apparatus which was tuned up with his ear receivers.

Marguerite Clark, who hadn't been in Hollywood for years and years, made a special trip from her present home in New Orleans to appear with other guests at the 25th anniversary banquet tendered Producer Adolph Zukor at Trocadero café. Miss Clark was Zukor's first great movie discovery. Widowed by the recent airplane death of her husband, Harry P. Williams, millionaire airline official and plane builder, Miss Clark was accompanied west by another woman prominent in New Orleans affairs, Mrs. Steven Seyburn.

Spencer Tracy and his wife made a quick getaway to New York as soon as Tracy was able to obtain a two weeks' vacation from "Captains Courageous," which is still incomplete. They will spend one week seeing the stage shows and one week shopping, and return in time to spend Christmas with the Tracy youngsters.

Adolphe Menjou as Blackie Daw and Eddie Arnold as the famous Wallingford, genial confidence man, will be teamed by D. O. Selznick in the "World's Our Oyster." . . . Good Morning!

This might be described as wholesale family murder.

Not that a whole family is slain—but that a whole family is concerned in the doing away of one man and mixed up in the untimely decease of another.

I feel right cocky over the fact that I guessed the identity of the slayer before it was made known. Because, I think it was rather a feat—for the direction is clever and clews are presented so deftly as to be practically imperceptible.

The picture starts with the suicide of a young married woman who is being blackmailed because of ardent letters, written by her before her marriage, to a certain matinée idol.

After her death her mother, her father, her husband, sister, and sister's fiancé take upon themselves the matter of vengeance. . . .

Developments are unusual and exciting.

Acting is intelligent. Dialog is arresting. The wisecracker, who, it seems, must be a necessary evil in films of this sort, is seen as a finger print photographer. He comes in mighty handy at the end—but not in his official capacity.

To my way of thinking "Love Letters of a Star" is a mighty interesting little programmer.

See you tomorrow.

The Man on the Blue

By Luke Short

SYNOPSIS.

Shamrock Ireland, arrogant young westerner, wanted for shooting a town marshal in self-defense over a card game, reaches Arizona on his blue and saves the life of Sherif Lobell, who is about to be shot by a girl, Nancy Hyatt. The Hyatts—Nancy and her brother, Mayo—have lost their ranch, the Double Diamond, to the bank. Mayo, recently paroled, has threatened to kill any man who serves him with a dispossess. Because Shamrock believes it was Mayo who betrayed the man who brought him up, he accepts the dangerous task of serving the papers. He confronts Mayo Hyatt at his ranch and learns he has misjudged him, but Nancy scorns him. She tried to shoot Lobell to save her brother, paroled on good behavior, from killing him. Shamrock decides to investigate Lobell's grudge against the Hyatts. He bullies Lobell into appointing him deputy sherif. Shamrock suspects Lobell intends to kill him "by accident" and cleverly outwits him, causing Lobell to shoot one of his own men. Maginnis, a stable boy, is wanted, according to Lobell, across the border as a killer. Shamrock senses that Lobell, for some reason of his own, plans to have the lad shot while "attempting to escape" on the trip across the border. He steals the jail keys so that the boy cannot be taken out while he's away at the Hyatt ranch with Lobell.

INSTALMENT XIX.

A GRIM CAVALCADE.

Before Shamrock reached the corner all the expression had gone from his face, leaving it dead, yet curiously alert. If Lobell suspected him of the jail assault the showdown would come fast and deadly.

Six horses were at the hitchrack, Blue among them. That meant the sherif's picked gunies were all in the office. Shamrock walked up to Blue, slapped his shoulder affectionately, and noted with misgiving that the reins were tied in a secure, elaborate knot to the hitch rail. Was it an omen?

He swung under the hitch rack onto the walk and stepped into the office. Lobell was seated at the desk, the other four men in chair around the room.

His entry was greeted with silence. He looked insolently at Lobell then his stare traveled the room.

"Howdy," Lobell said tonelessly.

Shamrock dragged his gaze from the sullen face of Pace, who was looking a bit pale.

"What are we waitin' for?" Shamrock asked.

"Freed. He's eatin'."

Shamrock shoved some papers aside and sat down on the edge of the desk. He carefully refrained from looking at the closed corridor door while he built a smoke with deliberate and steady fingers. He guessed that Freed by this time was making a thorough search of his room for the missing key ring, and he smiled inwardly as he felt the keys press against him where they were rolled tightly in two bandanas tied about his waist. The ring was under the door of a vacant room.

It was a grim and business like cavalcade.

Finished with his cigaret he calmly observed Lobell's recruits. He wondered if the ranchers of Santa Rita slope were so green they didn't know Lobell was running gunmen for deputies, or if they didn't care. The small man of the affair in the stables last night was here. He was Harmer, Shamrock remembered. He was dressed in blue levis and shirt a little more soiled than ordinary, and wore a flat-crowned Stetson pulled low over his lack of forehead. He was frail looking, but Shamrock knew that was deceptive, knew that his kind lived on whisky and danger until one or both downed him.

The other man was called George, Shamrock remembered. He was well fed, almost fat with an amiable blankness of face that was close to idiocy. Both wore guns within easy reach even when seated.

Shamrock finished with his examination, laughed quietly. "Are these the—good men?" he asked Lobell. The sherif nodded.

"Talk to 'em. They ain't happy."

Harmer stirred uneasily and cleared his throat, but did not take his eyes from Shamrock.

"Somethin' happened last night," Lobell said.

"It must have," Shamrock replied.

The sherif studied him closely, a suggestion of a smile playing on his dignified features.

"Some one busted in here last night and got the cell keys."

Shamrock received the news with a slight frown. "In here? How?" he asked, with just the right suggestion of disbelief, of mild though distant surprise.

"I dunno. I wasn't here."

"Who was it?"

"That's what we'd like to know."

Shamrock looked at him a moment, puzzled. Then, slowly, his gaze shuttled over to Pace.

"I see."

Pace's stare faded away and he evaded Shamrock's glare.

"See what?" the sherif asked.

Shamrock ignored him, and spoke to Pace. "If I'd known that, you stifled Stetson, I'd have got you out quicker."

"Known what?" the sherif said.

Shamrock stared at him insolently. "Cut it, Lobell. Two of them trained hooligans of yours swarmed in my room in the middle of the night like a call for free drinks. He looked over at Pace. "You wise slob," he said quietly.

"Now wait," Lobell put in patiently. "Pace ain't said a thing. Whoever it was slugged Pace, grabbed the keys, give Freed a kick in the guts and run."

"Good."

"It was just too bad," the sherif continued, observing Shamrock closely, "just too damn bad. We got another set, but I'd sure like to know who it was."

Not a muscle in Shamrock's face moved. "Why don't you give up and start searchin' each other?" and he laughed quietly at the flush crawling up the sherif's neck.

Lobell sat back in his chair. "That face," he said softly. "Some day it's goin' to get you in trouble—bad trouble."

A step sounded in the doorway and a man strode in. He was an old man with a grimed face and dirty overalls. In his hand was a hack saw and a dozen blades. Two men were behind him.

"Let's have a look at it," he said bluntly. "This tool steel is hell to cut, though."

The sherif caught in his own lie, looked up at Shamrock and squirmed uncomfortably. "The end cell on the left, John. Start on it."

The old man—the blacksmith, Shamrock guessed—stomped over to the corridor door and went inside. The other men lounged into the room, looked quickly at Shamrock and then at the sherif. Two more of the sherif's hard cases.

"Help him," Lobell ordered them curtly.

These were the two Lobell had counted on to take Maginnis out, Shamrock thought as they filed into the jail.

A moment later, Freed entered and the sherif rose.

"You all got carbines?" he asked them.

They nodded, all except Shamrock.

"Have you?" Lobell asked him.

"I never use one," Shamrock replied, and lounged off the desk.

Two minutes later they had crossed the bridge and were walking their horses up the hill opposite town. When they reached the top, the sherif in front set a stiff workman like pace toward the north and the Double Diamond.

He wisely cut across country, choosing the screening mesquite and sage rather than the traveled trails. His drivers conversed little among themselves and then only to borrow matches or give directions. It was a grim and businesslike cavalcade, and Shamrock knew their instructions had been given them already. Each man carried two guns and double belts, one of them for carbine shells.

The sherif's air was one of eager though doubtful anticipation, and he did not talk much. Occasionally, he would covertly observe Shamrock but Shamrock was his usual self—taciturn, arrogant, almost indifferent.

Lobell did not stop until they swung onto the Double Diamond road just before it topped the ridge and dropped into the steep-sided basin where the ranch lay. Then he reined up and his men drew up around him.

"This is your idea," he said to Shamrock. "What do you aim to do?"

Shamrock crocked a leg over the corn and replied lazily, "He'll be expecting us and he'll likely be forted up in the house or the bunkhouse. Call him out and give him the warnin' that you've come to take possession. If he shoots, that's all you want, ain't it, Lobell?"

Body Massage Has Effect of General Tonic

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A question is asked us about the advantages of massage. The woman inquiring has been told that a series of body massages would increase her resistance to colds and would do much to strengthen her nervous system. As with most women, a question of beauty really is what inspired the query. Our correspondent asks if her complexion would benefit and in what other ways she would be improved in appearance.

Well, massage is one of the oldest forms of treatment. The ancients recognized it as of great value, but it was the medical value of massage that arrested their attention. In surgical and orthopedic fields it was and is widely practiced. But such fields are quite out of the domain of this department.

However, the fact that massage imparts firmness to the muscular tissue of the body does concern our work. The fact that massage strengthens the nervous system and acts as a sedative in cases of mental disturbance or irritability appoints it a definite feature of beauty culture, since the nervous system when not operating normally does produce all kinds of beauty ills, such as hair and facial disturbances, to say nothing of charm destroying mannerisms.

Correct massage is not merely rubbing, but involves movements such as stroking, friction, tapping, all intended to stimulate the circulation. The reddening of the skin indicates that the blood is flowing more actively. And to increase the amount of blood circulating in the skin is just about the most important contribution you can make to its beauty of tone.

The skin also serves to regulate the temperature of the body. It accommodates itself to changes of temperature by contraction or expansion. When the circulation is poor, the skin is affected. Colds are common among those with poor circulation.

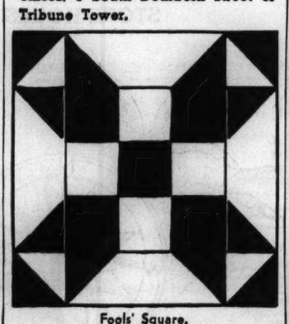
Beautiful Quilt Block Creation of the 1885 Period

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.



Fools' Square.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This block was designed in 1885, during a period when quilt making was moving at a slower tempo than the years before 1860 and '70. The beauty of the pieced "Fool's Square" is not in the least synonymous with its flippant title. Rose, pink, magenta and white form a favorite modern color arrangement, while the earlier quilt in the same design was pieced in red and red and white prints. The quilt makers of a few generations ago favored this pattern in an all-over design, but it is equally effective when "Fool's Squares" are set together in an alternate arrangement with plain white blocks.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The cosmetic world right now is full of beauty sets of all shapes and sizes and prices, tossed out for the Christmas shopping grab bag. There are so many even the harassed beauty editor can't keep track of them.

But they'll all be sold—and here are a few hints to those of you who'll be doing the buying:

Give "treatment sets" by all means if you think the recipient will like them [and there must be something wrong with the woman if she doesn't].

But don't let pretty packages be your only guide. Women have strong preferences about the cosmetics they use. They're pretty faithful to a few things if they have any sense. Try to give them nice kits of the preparations they usually use. They'll adore having a complete set of all the lotions and creams and powders that they really like.

Or try to find for them sets of preparations you know for certainty they would like to use. Don't buy blindly. It's a waste of money and not really very thoughtful gift giving.

And then, too, some women need preparations for dry skin, some for normal, and some for oily skin. Before you invest in creams and lotions you might find out what type she prefers or needs.

It's all a little risky, this matter of choosing cosmetics, unless you go about it intelligently. The beautiful sets are lovely to own, but particularly so if their contents are what the little woman really wants.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt, who has been in the White House for a week, left yesterday for a week's absence—destination, "off the record." She was accompanied by Miss Leorna Hickok, who was her guest last week at the White House.

Mrs. Roosevelt has announced that on the night of the Gridiron club dinner, she again will meet the wives of the members and guests of that club and the newspaper women of Washington at a "stunt party," the newspaper women giving the program.

Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings were especial guests at supper tonight given by Dr. and Mrs. Frank Bohn, the latter a daughter of the secretary of commerce and Mrs. Roper.

Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Roper gave a tea this afternoon for their son and daughter-in-law, Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. John W. Roper, who will be leaving shortly for the former's new post of duty in California.

Fourth Presbyterian Leaders to Reminisce at Anniversary Event

Parishioners will gather Wednesday evening in the chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church to recall the days when Chicago was a vigorous, growing young city, and when the church had just been organized. The occasion is in celebration of the church's 65th anniversary.

Among the prominent church members expected to furnish anecdotes of an earlier Chicago are Mrs. Cyrus Bentley, Mrs. George A. Carpenter, Mrs. Frederick J. Haskell, John Farwell, and Frank J. Loesch. Several young men and women ushers will be attired in the costumes of 1871, the year of the great fire.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Radio sponsors fall into two main classifications—the inexperienced ones who imagine that every one listens to their particular programs, and the wiser veterans who actually try to make every one listen by offering a variety of items on their shows. Thus when you find a sponsor purposely limiting the size of his audience, by the nature of his offering, that is definitely exceptional. Such a one is the sponsor of "Get Thin to Music"—that exercise program on W-G-N under the direction of Wallace.

Ladies who would kick their fat away appreciate this sort of thing, too. When there was no program of this type on a local station the mailman brought us many letters complaining that radio ought to give assistance in the perennial battle with the calories. [There have been several similar programs in the past.] Now these letters have stopped and there has even been some cheering loudly for Wallace. We started out by saying that this program has limited appeal. But then, aren't all women trying to reduce?

There was a bit of impishness in Kay Kyser's rendition of "I Love You from Coast to Coast" on the Football revue Saturday night. George Dunning, his chief arranger, and Miss Dorothy Hutchins, United Airlines hostess, had just revealed that they are to be married Dec. 23 in Kansas City. They met in a cross-country flight last July. Two days later on a similar hop George proposed. Last week Duning flew to Kansas City and they set the date.

This could happen only in radio. Other day at the dress rehersal for Amos 'n' Andy's minstrel show Freeman Gosden was introducing Dean Fosler, their organist and theme song player, to newspaper men. And then Gosden related that several years ago he had met Fosler for the first time. They had been on the same program for five years prior to that and never had met. That was because Fosler played the organ atop the Civic Opera building and Amos 'n' Andy worked in studios in the Merchandise Mart.

And then Fosler contributed this one: He just recently met Lum and Abner, for whom he has been playing the theme song for more than a year, for the first time.

News notes: Jessica Dragonette will become the headliner of the new Beauty Box Operetta series which will replace Homer Rodeheaver's Community Sing on CBS beginning Wednesday, Jan. 13. Miss Dragonette is to have her salary doubled on leaving her present Friday evening series. The new figure is said to be $2,000 a week.

Gov. Landon is to speak on the Sunday evening Community Sing, featuring Milton Berle and Wendell Hall, at 9 p. m. next Sunday, broadcasting an appeal for Christmas community charities.

Glen Gray and the Casa Loma orchestra are to close at the Congress Casino here Dec. 17. A few days later they will open at the Rainbow room in New York. On the way east they will play for a private party one evening at Edsel Ford's home in Detroit for which they will receive $4,500.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

PARDON ME, LADY—BUT I THINK THE SALESGIRL WRAPPED UP MY HUSBAND IN YOUR PACKAGE!
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.; Copyright, 1936, by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

Parents Shouldn't Open Sons' and Daughters' Mail Except—

BY DORIS BLAKE.

How do you parents feel on the subject of opening your children's mail? Do you feel, with us, that there is a certain code of honor between grownups [the children we speak of are grownup boys and girls, of course] affecting your decision in this matter? Under ordinary circumstances, we feel that it is an injustice to the boy or girl, and a reflection on the young person's character, to pry into mail addressed to him or her.

Yes, there are cases in which this form of parental intervention carries justice with it. Watchfulness! Guidance of reckless youth, perhaps! Per se, Judy, today's correspondent, is 18, an age at which ordinarily her mail would be for her eyes first, at least. But Judy is getting herself terribly involved with a man living apart from his wife and three children but not divorced and apparently with no grounds for a divorce.

The man is more than twice Judy's age. The parents got wind of the affair, suspected the communications the girl had been receiving lately from different parts of the country were from this man. After a serious discussion between the older pair, it was decided to open one of Judy's letters. The writer was found to be the man suspected, whose reputation among men, let it be stated, is definitly bad.

The girl raged when she discovered the opened mail. The parents tried to explain to her that it was in her interests only that they aimed to get at the true state of affairs and save her from making the mistake of her lifetime. The girl stormed and threatened to leave home, threatened to report her parents to postal authorities.

Under such circumstances, the parental mail inspection we feel to have been a fair intervention.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Green Bay's Packers, champions of the western division, and the Chicago Cardinals played a scoreless tie in the final National league game of the season at Wrigley field, yesterday, before a frozen, but enthusiastic crowd of approximately 5,000.

Allowing the Packers to penetrate beyond mid field only three times, once to the 43 again to the 45 and to the 25 yard line, the Cardinals advanced into scoring position three times, but on each occasion faded out before a combination of circumstances including poor footing, poor blocking, and the Packers' last ditch stand.

Face Boston Next.

The tie snapped the Packers' string of nine consecutive victories which carried them to the division championship, their only defeat of the season being a 30 to 3 lacing by the Bears early in the season. They returned to Green Bay immediately after the game to prepare for the championship playoff against Boston, winner of the eastern division title, next Sunday at the Polo Grounds in New York.

Obviously attempting to save more important members of their cast for the title game, the Packers struggled along with reserves until the start of the fourth quarter, when Herber, Hutson, Hinkle, and other regulars were rushed into the game. The Cardinals, holding the upper hand throughout, continued to dominate play when the big shots came in, and immediately made two of their three threats, one ending with an intercepted pass on the eight yard line after a march of 53 yards in six plays, and the other terminating in Bill Smith's unsuccessful place kick attempt after a 26 yard thrust that carried to the Packer 16 yard line.

Footing Is Uncertain.

The champions' only serious threat, a 37 yard advance to the 25 yard line early in the third quarter ended with Tiny Engebretsen dubbing an attempted field goal.

Play in the early part of the game was hampered by the mud and water which began freezing and left a slippery surface on which the players could not get a cleat hold in the fourth quarter.

George Grosvenor, the Cardinal jack of all trades, again was the offensive star of the game, but poor footing, which handicapped blockers as well as ball carriers, prevented him from getting away when yards were needed most. This was particularly true when the Cardinals were attempting to buck over from the four yard line at the start of the second quarter and were thrown back seven yards in three plays.

The Cardinals left immediately after the game for Los Angeles where they conclude their season next week with an exhibition game against the Los Angeles Bull Dogs.

Packers Are Stopped.

The Cardinals kept the champions beyond the middle of the field on all but one occasion in the first half, and made the only scoring threat up to the intermission. The Packers' chief offensive display consisted of a 37 yard march that penetrated to the Cardinals' 43 yard line.

Late in the first period Monnett fumbled Grosvenor's second down quick kick and Field recovered for the Cardinals on the Packers' 38 yard line. It was the first time the Cardinals had reached the solid footing at the south end of the field and Dowell immediately went inside the Packers left tackle for 11 yards to the 27 yard line. He and Grosvenor made seven yards in three smashes, then on fourth down with three to go on the 20 yard line, Nichelini went

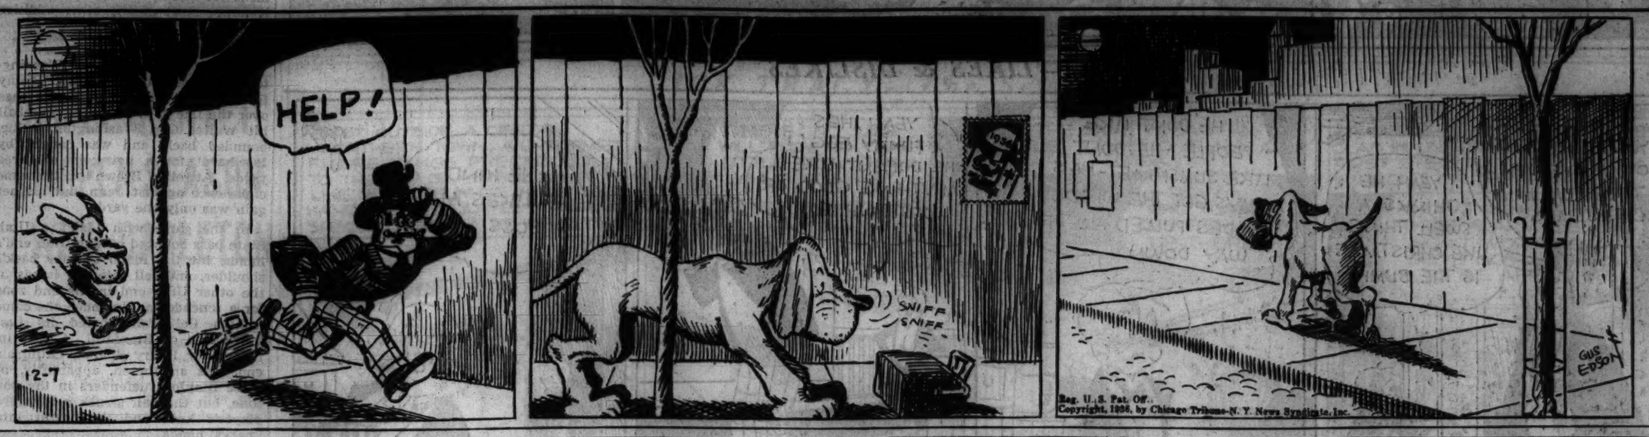
THE GUMPS—THE RETRIEVER



REDSKINS DEFEAT NEW YORK, 14-0, IN RAIN AND MUD

Edwards Stars as Irwin, Battles Score.

New York, Dec. 6.—[Special.]—In a setting of fog, rain, and sticky, clammy mud, the Boston Redskins defeated the New York Giants, 14 to 0, before 18,000, in the season's finale at the Polo grounds today, won the eastern championship of the National Football league and gained the right to meet the Green Bay Packers at the Polo grounds next Sunday for the professional title.

The battle ended under the flood lights with the 22 players on the field almost indistinguishable under a coating of mud. Boston won because it buried the Giants in a deep hole right at the start and New York never climbed out of it.

It probably was just as well that they didn't since the New Yorkers would have been in no shape for the play-off. Les Corzine was carried off the field with a broken leg, Gene Rose with a probable broken hand, and Tony Sarausky with a serious concussion that just missed being a fracture of the skull.

Boston Deserved Victory.

Boston had the better team today and richly deserved its victory. The New Yorkers never could get going. Their passing attack was frustrated by the slimy, slippery ball, and all the Redskins had to do was play a virtual ten man line to halt them cold.

Boston's touchdowns were scored by Don Irwin in the second period and Cliff Battles in the third, the second score coming on a 74 yard return of a punt, but it was Turk Edwards, 260 pound left tackle, who emerged the Redskins' real hero. The ponderous linemen came through with one of the best games of his career, blocking kicks, recovering fumbles and making life generally miserable for the Giants throughout the dismal afternoon.

The Redskins threatened early in the first period when Edwards partly blocked Danowski's punt on the 1 yard line, but the Redskins were offside on the play. Riley Smith then missed an 11 yard field goal attempt. A few plays later, passes thrown by Battles to Millner and Irwin advanced Boston to New York's 4 again, but Irwin fumbled and the drive ended.

Goes 74 Yards.

Richards, shifty Giant back, made 21 yards in two line plays to the Giants' 33 and then Edwards intercepted Danowski's pass on New York's 37. From there Boston slashed and passed to a touchdown, Irwin scoring and Smith converting a placement for the extra point.

A few minutes after the second half started Battles caught a punt on his 26 yard stripe and sprinted down the side lines to a touchdown. Smith again converted.

There will be a meeting tomorrow of Joe Carr, president of the league; George Marshall, president of the Redskins, and others involved to settle the details of the playoff game.

The Redskins will meet the Packers

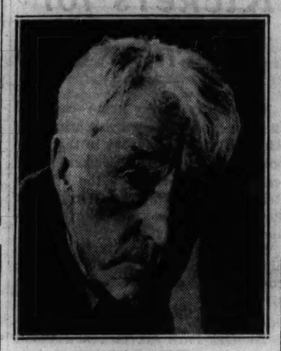
Report Landis Considers Resigning Baseball Job

ON WAY OUT?



K. M. LANDIS.

New York, Dec. 6.—(AP)—King Edward VIII. isn't the only monarch who may abdicate his throne. Kenesaw Mountain Landis may resign on or before completion of his sixteenth year as czar of baseball next January.

A combination of circumstances strongly indicates the gruff, iron-willed commissioner may quit, but such abdication would be entirely voluntary.

Landis, now 70 years old but in his best health in many seasons, is said to be getting weary of his duties. The Feller case has opened his eyes to lots of things that apparently escaped his notice, and he is believed to be in a mood to take his hat off the hook and go home.

Dispute Over Feller Case.

It has been rumored that Landis might be ousted if he rules Bob Feller, Cleveland pitcher, a free agent on the charge that Cleveland violated the sandlot rule. Major league clubs, with their far-flung farm systems, now control the minor leagues, which are supposed to be fighting for a principle against Cleveland in the Feller case.

Commissioner Landis lost his first fight in almost sixteen years Thursday at Montreal when the minors voted down his proposed rider to the Baltimore amendment—a rider that would force baseball men recommending players to send in full information on those recommendations to the commissioner's office. Many interpreted the rejection as a sign on the wall that Landis would be ousted unless he played ball as the big league clubowners desired.

Another Reason for Quitting.

The rejection probably displeased Landis and may supply him with another reason for quitting. But it is regarded as unlikely that he will be dismissed.

Several years ago the major clubowners were aroused by a few of the commissioner's decisions and decided to dismiss him, saving his $50,000 a year salary and centering his duties back with the old commission of three men. They called Landis on the carpet.

What Landis told them, no clubowner would say. Anyway, the commissioner strolled out of the meeting two hours later with a new contract at $65,000 annually in his hip pocket.

Any person, including high officials of the Cleveland club, who say they know what Landis is going to do in the Feller case, is merely guessing. He alone knows. When he was in charge of public information on colonies in the Cleveland administration, he says, he learned to keep his mouth shut until he had something to say. He'll talk about everything except baseball.

Commissioner Is Outspoken.

Commissioner Landis does plenty of roaring as he searches for facts. A minor league clubowner tells this one:

The commissioner called in a minor clubowner and asked him if he had sold or sent players to a certain major league club before.

"No, never," replied the minor league owner.

The commissioner then called in the major league owner.

"Did you ever buy or get players from this minor league owner before?" asked Landis.

"Why, yes," was the reply.

"Some one in this room," roared Landis, "is a liar."

Hall Beats Lookabaugh, 50 to 19, in Cue Tourney

Allen Hall and Earl Lookabaugh, both of Chicago, battled it out for temporary, if not permanent, possession of last place in the world's three cushion billiard tournament at the La Salle hotel last night. Lookabaugh won in the battle for the cellar when he lost to Hall by 50 to 19, the most one-sided score of the entire meet.

Hall in His Best Form.

Hall was in good form as he scored his third victory and went out in 41 innings. He scored consistently throughout and never was behind after taking the lead in the fifth inning. Hall's safety game left Lookabaugh nothing to shoot at whatever in the last half of the match and for a stretch of 19 innings Lookabaugh made only 1 point. Then, when Hall had reached the 49 mark, Lookabaugh turned in his best run of the night, a 5 in his last time at the table.

Hall's high run, a 6, also came late in the game in his 40th inning.

Big Matches Today.

The contenders for the three cushion championship had an evening off. But all the leaders will be in action today in the most important day of competition so far. Kinrey Matsuyama, tied with Welker Cochran for second place, plays Art Thurnblad in the second afternoon game. The leader, stalling Johnny Layton, meets fast-shooting Jay Bozeman in the first evening game, while the champion, Willie Hoppe, plays Otto Reiselt in the final.

Otto Reiselt won the second night game from Jay Bozeman, 50 to 44 in 61 innings. It was Otto's return to the win column after a long absence. The Philadelphian had won his first two games, but his next four were losses, dropping him from a tie for first to eighth place.

Bozeman scored in his first seven innings but it was Reiselt who managed to reach the intermission leading by 26 to 24. Jay trailed most of the time from then on but managed to tie it at 41 all before Reiselt put on a rally to run out the victory.

Reiselt's high run was a five while the best Bozeman could do was a four. Reiselt by his victory gained a three-way tie for sixth place with Bozeman and Art Thurnblad.

CHICAGO RADIO STATIONS FIGHT BASEBALL'S CURB

Object to Censorship of Broadcasts.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 6.—Will Harridge, president of the American league; J. Louis Comiskey, owner and president of the Chicago White Sox, and P. K. Wrigley, owner and president of the Chicago Cubs, today revealed that Chicago radio stations are standing out against the form of contract offered by the American and National leagues.

In separate interviews with THE TRIBUNE today all three baseball officials said the Chicago stations have bucked at a contract clause involving "club control of announcers and sponsors' conduct and sports viewpoints as expressed from major league ball parks."

Object to Censorship.

The Chicago stations, it was said, have agreed to paying a fee for baseball broadcast privileges, something heretofore never exacted by either of the Chicago clubs. But they have rejected the contract form on the claim they will not have the golden voices of their commentators restrained by any censorship.

Said Mr. Harridge anent censorship:

"Heretofore radio broadcasting as applied to baseball games has been a hit or miss proposition with each club having individual contracts. The matter has been getting out of hand more and more with each season. The American league retained Attorney Joseph C. Hostetler of Cleveland, O., to draw a general league contract with a view of having it accepted by the American league, the National league, and with possible changes, by the joint meeting of the leagues before Commissioner K. M. Landis.

"Our attitude is that since the announcers give out our show from our ball parks, we should have a definite course of a protest in the event an announcer expresses opinions and indulges in inaccuracies which we consider objectionable.

Won't Influence Announcers.

"We do not desire to influence announcers in the utterance of sugar coated praise of every game he sees and we believe we might proceed for years without ever invoking the clause to which the Chicago stations are objecting.

"The stations have sought to support the theory that we have no more right to censor them than we would to attempt to gag the press. We contend there is a vast difference. Newspaper accounts are in type and are subject to discussion as to accuracy at any time. Radio announcers sometimes voice comments over the air in the excitement of a game, or under other circumstances which they disavow, and probably in sincere honesty, when a checkup is attempted.

"I know of no more important matter from the standpoint of major leagues and from the fans than the radio discussions which will occupy much of our time at the meetings here Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

"I understand the Chicago radio stations want us to sign their contract instead of their signing ours, and have forwarded such a document. It has not arrived."

Sox Agree With Plan.

Mr. Comiskey said he had not changed his liberal attitude toward radio, but that he was in accord with the contract form prepared by Attorney Hostetler for the American league.

"The White Sox never have asked Chicago stations for a fee to broadcast games from the park and do so now in the belief that a charge is one of the elements that will bring about a more satisfactory radio situation generally.

"There have been times when we thought free broadcasts from our

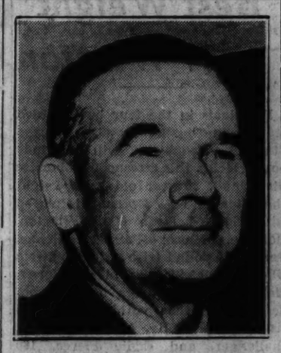
A. A. U. Elects Mahoney; Defeats Brundage Forces

PRESIDENT



JEREMIAH T. MAHONEY.

Houston, Tex., Dec. 6.—(AP)—The bitterest fight in more than a decade for the presidency of the Amateur Athletic union of the United States ended today with a decisive victory for Jeremiah Titus Mahoney, former New York Supreme court justice and 1935 chief executive of the A. A. U., over his metropolitan antagonist and the administration's standard bearer, Maj. Patrick J. Walsh.

The final vote within the board of governors, into which the convention constituted itself to decide all major issues, was 199 3-7 for Mahoney and 127 4-7 for Walsh.

South Supports Him Strongly.

Mahoney was swept into office on a "reconstruction platform" by solid support from the southern associations, as well as backing from New England, parts of the middle west, and most of the Pacific coast.

The powerful metropolitan and central associations threw the bulk of their support to Walsh under the leadership of Avery Brundage, who yielded the gavel to Mahoney after finishing his seventh term in the presidential chair.

The so-called allied bodies, whose support enabled Brundage to carry the pro-Olympia fight a year ago, were not so prominently in attendance, but their vote showed continued support of the retiring chief executive by a 6 to 4 margin for Walsh.

Setback for Brundage.

The outcome was simultaneously a victory for the A. A. U. forces which favored the Olympia boycott last year and a setback for Brundage, whose joint presidency of the American Olympic committee and the A. A. U. had made him the target of gathering opposition since the 1935 convention.

One of Mahoney's first acts was to include Commodore Ernest Lee Jahncke of New Orleans among the delegates at large to the A. A. U. for 1937. Commodore Jahncke, opposed to holding the Olympics in Germany, was dropped from membership on the international Olympic committee at the meeting in Berlin which elected Brundage to fill the southerner's place.

Four Vice Presidents Named.

Four vice presidents accompanied Mahoney into office: First, Jack Rafferty of Houston, president of the Gulf association; second, Charles Hunter, San Francisco; third, William Leonard, Schnectady, N. Y., and fourth, A. Y. Russell, Des Moines.

The two salaried executives, Daniel J. Ferris of New York, secretary-treasurer, and J. Lyman Bingham of Chicago, assistant to the president, were named for four year terms under a new move designed to take these offices out of politics.

Boston's selection over Miami, Fla., as the 1937 convention site and ratification of the list of championship events for the coming year followed the bitterly waged election battle.

Mahoney, 59 year old lawyer, for-

Gamblers' Football Pools Fail to Lure Smart Fans

BY FRENCH LANE.

There is no immediate need for anxiety on the part of the perpetual order of alarmed alumni over the steady increase in recent years of gambling [as it is carried on] in connection with college football games.

They have become calloused in years gone by to the individual bets between the old grads from Yale and Harvard or those of any two partisan football camps.

What they are worried about now are the carefully prepared football handicap sheets which professional gamblers have surreptitiously slipped into the football betting picture.

Handicap on Score Basis.

These sheets contain a list of 20 or more scheduled games along with the odds that are offered against your ability to pick three, five, or seven winners. The handicapping is done on a score basis; that is, the weaker of two opponents is given so many points. If the stronger team doesn't win by more than that number of points then the weaker team gets credit for the victory as far as the football handicap sheets are concerned.

There were approximately 100 of these weekly football pools operated in Chicago during the last season. A careful check with their operators revealed that each pool handled an average of about $400 each week. Some handled as high as $1,000, others as low as $150, but $400 was the average handled.

$40,000 a Week Bet.

Thus each week in Chicago and the nearby cities covered by the Chicago operated pools the total amount bet in wagers ranging from fifty cents to $20 was $40,000.

In the same territory more than $1,000,000 is wagered every afternoon on the races. Half of that sum at least is wagered each autumn in the same territory on the outcome of the world's series. Several hundred thousand dollars would be bet by these same people on the outcome of a championship prize fight and much more on the result of a national or hotly contested state or city election.

So the football handicap pools haven't really caught on as much as the alarmists would have us believe. Neither have they thrived as the professional gamblers who operate them had hoped they would.

Fans Are Not Suckers.

This may be due to the fact that most football fans are not suckers in any sense of the word. They realized immediately the enormous odds that were against them. So they didn't go into a panic in an effort to fall for a game which they had little or no chance to beat.

You might think it is easy to pick five or seven football winners out of a list of 20 games. Perhaps it would be if those point handicaps were not against you.

The operators of the pools admit it would be a gold mine if there were enough gullible customers. Every pool that was operated in Chicago showed a profit this year and a big one considering the small amount of money that was handled. Few of the pools encountered more than one or two losing weeks throughout the season.

Lose Only In One Week.

One pool in Chicago for which a former Big Ten football captain does the point handicapping had a weekly average handle of $600. It lost money only one week during the season. That week—the week Northwestern beat Minnesota—$628 was bet into the pool. The payout to winners was $1,240. In other weeks the profits from this pool ran between $300 and $400.

Chicago, with the exception of New York is the biggest betting city in the country regardless of whether it is on races, baseball, football or what have you to bet on.

So at least the local average football pool betting is a fair one. It may even be higher than in most other cities. The figures indicate that neither the structure of the game of football nor of the nation's finances is greatly endangered.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Doc Lester Patrick, the Broadway hocky apothecary, last night poured his latest elixir of youth and age on the ice of the Chicago Stadium to give the Chicago Blackhawks a 2 to 1 defeat at the hands of his New York Rangers. The customers at the start of the National Hocky league season were reported to be a trifle chill to the wily Doc's prescriptions, but last evening's dosage must have cured most of the 12,000 boys and girls who visited the west side pharmacy.

The gray thatched alchemist of the Rangers last night blended Johnson and Boucher with his youth ingredient, the latter providing the two goals with which the New Yorkers bested the first score of the season, made by Paul Thompson, No. 1 collector for the Hawks last year.

Youngsters Win Game.

The kids who delivered for Doc Lester were Alex Shibicky, a young herb raised by the Doc last year, who smashed a puck past Mike Karakas in the second period with the help of two sprouts no older than himself, Neil Colville and Lynn Patrick, the boss' son, no less. Young Colville returned in the third period to beat Karakas unassisted. The first goal was counted with Mush March doing time in the penalty box, but there was no doubt about the second.

Thompson, who had failed to deliver while two Rangers were stalled in the jail house in the first period, came through with one minute of the contest remaining. Brydson was credited with the assist which brought Paul his initial goal of the year.

Fifth Defeat for Hawks.

The Hawks' defeat was their fifth in ten games, the remainder of their tabulation being four ties and one victory, as unhappy an inauguration as they ever have come to the holidays with. The Rangers, on the other hand, made it six victories, four defeats, and one tie, to tie the Canadiens and the Americans of the Canadian section for the league lead at 13 points each.

In the second period March was jailed for tripping Shibicky on a play which shook the New York boy up considerably. Mush was still in the box when Shibicky, now part of a unanimous surge on the Hawk goal, batted the first goal of the night home from inside the blue line on a pass from Patrick and Neil Colville, the time being 15:00.

Hawks Fight Back.

At the opening of the third period the Hawks settled down to an attempt to tie the score with as good a will as they have shown all season. Manager Loughlin dispatched every hand on deck during the first half of the final period and they did a handsome job of keeping the puck in Ranger territory, but the Patrick formula proved too much for them through that stretch.

The Chicago forwards swept in upon Kerr again and again, only to be stopped by Ranger front men, if Frankie Hart and Bill Weidner, light heavyweight wrestling championship claimant from Glendale, Cal., will meet in the windup of Joe Coffey's show at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, tonight. So are Babe Rasputin and Bill Brooks, and Andy Chikos and Clyde Boone.

Promoter Fred Kohler has revised his card at Arcadia Gardens Wednesday by signing Mike Kilonis to wrestle Ivan Rasputin in the headliner, booked for 90 minutes. Nango Singh, originally scheduled to face Rasputin, has been selected to hook up with Roland Meeker. Sammy Kohn, San Francisco, and John Swenski, Lynn, Mass., clash. . . . Bobby Kraft, Dayton, O., light heavyweight, has been matched with Chuck McCarthy in a six round supporting scrap to the ten round topliner involving Milt Aron and Laddie Tonelli at the 124th Field Artillery armory Saturday night. Lenny Cohen, Golden Gloves graduate, fighting professionally as a featherweight, boxes Dewey Cannon, New York stranger, in the eight round semi-windup on the card, presented under the auspices of Horace Lindheimer and the Fifth Ward club. Proceeds will be used to buy Christmas baskets for the needy in the ward.

N. A. A. U. FIXES AGE LIMITS FOR GIRL ATHLETES

Houston, Tex., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Age limits for girl athletes competing in events sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic union were fixed today for the first time.

Henceforth, the A. A. U. convention decided, the limits would be 12 years for swimming and diving, up to and including a 10 foot springboard; 15 years for all competition otherwise, including high diving, track and field, basketball, handball, and gymnastics.

This limitation achieves the purpose chiefly of curbing feminine swimming prodigies. Mary Hoerger of Miami, Fla., won a national diving title before reaching her 12th birthday and has not met with subsequent defeat. failed to make the Olympic team this year.

SMITTY—LIKES & DISLIKES

Strickland at Best Weight for Winston

Principals in the four bouts which feature the boxing show at Chicago Stadium Wednesday will conclude boxing drills this afternoon. Maurice Strickland, 22 year old heavyweight champion of New Zealand, is paired with Edward [Iron Man] Winston, Holyoke, Mass.; Patrick Michael Barry, 224 pound Irish redhead, meets Buddy Baer, 21 year old California giant; Joe Connolly, a battler from Scotland, clashes with Jimmy Garrison, Kansas City, Mo., lightweight challenger, and Eddie Pierce, 160 pound title holder of South Africa boxes Ralph Chong, oriental from New Orleans.

Strickland in Good Shape.

All except Strickland and Connolly worked out yesterday. The former, whose home is in Invercargill, was given a rest when he finished Saturday's drill weighing 185 pounds, the same weight he expects to carry against Winston. He scaled 182 when he whipped Max Marek at the Stadium last month. Handlers pointed out that this poundage was low for the Englishman and did not help his cause a bit.

Connolly was given a respite when it was learned he scaled 137½. The stipulated poundage against Garrison is 138, the figure which he expects to be against his counterpunching rival from Kansas City. His representatives contend the Scotch-Irish fighter weakened himself by paring down to 136 pounds against Al Nettlow at the west side building Nov. 6 and claim this was a factor in his defeat.

First Colored Opponent.

Strickland, a rangy individual, who won his title by scoring a ten round knockout over Ray Nicol at Wellington last year, will be fighting a colored boxer for the first time. Nevertheless, he is confident of whipping the big battler from Holyoke, record his twelfth consecutive triumph and earn a match with John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight king, at the Stadium next month.

Maurice has engaged in approximately 60 battles in the last five years, going only five Winston a Rubber Man.

Winston, a veteran campaigner, surprised by defeating Harry [Powerhouse] Thomas here Oct. 2. The Holyoke rubber man absorbed a terrific lacing in the early rounds, only to launch a rally in the late stages which caught the eyes of officials.

Bill Daly, manager of Strickland, was not overly anxious to have his foreign representative meet the burly colored bruiser. Inability to obtain other topnotchers, such as Bob Pastor and Steve Dudas or Red Burman to meet Strickland forces acceptance of Winston.

Hawks Lose to Rangers, 2-1; Fifth Defeat not by Davie's stick. Dillon took time out to send Karakas into a sprawling dive to save a solo goal.

This was followed by another earnest drive on the Ranger cage, so earnest that Neil Colville pilfered the puck and proceeded without hindrance for a clean goal upon Karakas to make the score 2 to 0. The time was 12:35.

The Hawks refused to be daunted by this foray however and came smashing down with their first goal of the game, not to say Thompson's first goal of the season. Paul burst home to make the score 2 to 1 in 19 minutes, on a pass from Brydson.

Hansa Beats Kickers for Oeschlar Cup

The Hansa soccer team captured the Oeschlar trophy by beating the Kickers, 2 to 1, yesterday in the twice postponed final. The German American Reserves defeated the Kickers Reserves, 2 to 1, for the Helbach cup. Both games were played at Elston and Kedzie avenues.

The Wilsons defeated the Olympias, 4 to 1, in a National Amateur cup match at 59th and Paulina streets.

Acorns Beat Hakoah.

The Oak Park Acorns beat Hakoah, 5 to 0, in a Chicago league game.

All other matches were postponed because of cold weather.

The Kickers held a 1 to 0 lead over Hansa at the intermission as a result of Ivan's goal after 42 minutes of play. Twenty minutes after the opening of the second half Niebergall tied the score on a free kick, and ten minutes later Pagelow made the winning goal for Hansa.

Kickers Take Lead.

The Kickers Reserves also had a 1 to 0 lead at the end of the first half of their game with the German American reserves, Dorn having scored. In the second half, however, the German Americans came back with goals by Frel and Piehl to earn the winning margin.

SKOVIE BOWLS 725 IN CLASSIC LEAGUE GAMES

Jerry Skovie of the Kraft-Oke Dokes took individual honors last night in the Classic league at Bruck-Wiesner Recreation when he totaled 725 with games of 221, 247, and 257, but his team was able to win only one game from the Prager Beers, who totaled 3,179, which was high team effort for the night. Ed Hymes' 279 game was also high.

The Baby Ruths maintained their three game lead by winning two games from the Oak Leaf Motors, while the Pragers were winning two from the Krafts. The Pabst Blue Ribbons dropped two games to the Charles H. Webers, and the Monarch Beers defeated the Winkler Motor Service twice, the last game by a score of 1,119 to 960.

Red Wings Tie Americans, 3 to 3; Young Is Injured

New York, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The injury riddled Detroit Red Wings fought the New York Americans to a 3 to 3 overtime tie in a National Hocky league match played before 12,000 tonight. The draw gave the Americans joint leadership of the league's International-al division with the Montreal Canadiens.

Starting the game with three regulars on the sidelines, the Red Wings suffered further misfortune when Doug Young, star defenseman, suffered a broken ankle in the first period. He crashed into the boards after receiving a jolting body check from Allan Shields. He was taken to a hospital where it was reported the injury will keep him idle until late in the season.

A pair of goals by Lorne Carr in the second period after each team had scored in the first gave the Americans an apparently safe lead. But Herbie Lewis led a counter attack that knotted the score with a goal late in the second period and another in the third. Lineups:

TRIEUNE CASTING TROPHIES WON BY DAVIS, CHATT

Eddie Davis and Howard Chatt won the dry fly and bait casting events held yesterday at the University of Chicago fieldhouse by the Illinois Casting club. Davis and Chatt were awarded silver trophies donated by THE TRIBUNE.

Chatt won the dry fly with a score of 90. George Hess was second with 89, and Davis third with 85. Davis and Nick Schroeder tied with scores of 95 in the five-eighths ounce bait casting event, but the former won the castoff with 96 while Schroeder was scoring 91. Clara Bryan was third in this event with 93.

Yesterday's session was the first of the indoor season for the club. Members have been casting at their clubhouse and pool in Washington park since last spring. Fishermen casters not affiliated with any club are welcome to practice each Sunday at the fieldhouse.

TINKER IN COMA; LITTLE HOPE FOR HIS RECOVERY

Orlando, Fla., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Joe Tinker, 56 years old, former major league baseball player, was in a coma tonight and physicians virtually abandoned hope for his recovery.

He has Bright's disease and was stricken with paralysis.

In the early part of the century he was a part of the famed "Tinker to Evers to Chance" combination which made baseball history for the Chicago Cubs.

International Four Ball Golf Matches Scheduled

Miami, Fla., Dec. 6.—(AP)—The $4,000 international four ball golf matches, an invitation affair for 16 teams, will be played March 7-9 over the Miami Country club course, the tournament committee announced today. Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., and Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., winners of the 1936 tournament, and 18 other top ranking professionals, have been invited. Other bids will be issued later.

Freak Plays Give Football Added Lures

New York, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Football owes its popularity to its spectacular possibilities—long runs, long kicks, long passes, and freak plays—and the 1936 season gave fandom its full quota.

A nation-wide survey by the Associated Press reveals an endless number of odd or sensational plays during the last season, many of them decisive factors in deciding major games.

The freaks are most interesting.

Larry Kelley's "soccer kick" of a loose ball which led to Yale's victory over Navy aroused so much comment it's hardly necessary to recall it now. Most of the other oddities aren't so well known.

Catches His Own Pass.

When McKendree played Washington university of St. Louis, Benny Isselhardt of McKendree shot a pass over the line of scrimmage. The ball hit Walter Cog, Washington tackle, bounded back, and was caught by Isselhardt for a net gain of three yards. Atwell of Brown had the same experience against Penn, but his net gain was only one yard.

In the game with Idaho, a Utah State pass bounced off one Utah end's hands, hit the Idaho quarter back's shoulder, and fell into the hands of the other Utah end in the end zone for a touchdown. In much the same fashion California scored its first touchdown on Stanford. A pass intended for Henry Sparks, California end, was smothered, apparently, by three Stanford defenders in the end zone, but the ball struck a Stanford player's knee and flew right into Sparks' hands.

Rabbit Runs for Touchdown.

The biggest crowd of the season saw one of the strangest sights. The 102,000 who watched Army meet Navy on a bitterly cold day saw a rabbit, breaking loose from some mysterious source, dash 80 yards to a "touchdown"—much the longest run of the day.

Then there was that Pitt-Ohio State game in which the Panthers achieved a modern football miracle by winning, 6 to 0, without trying a single pass. Purdue and Indiana, scoreless after the first half of their annual duel, scored six touchdowns in the final half, all on passes in which the receiver stood in the end zone, and wound up in a 20 to 20 draw.

When Michigan played Minnesota, Wilbur Moore, Minnesota substitute, intercepted a Michigan pass and ran for a touchdown, the first time in history an intercepted Wolverine aerial produced a touchdown.

An Embarrassing Play.

Imagine, too, the embarrassment of Kenneth Goodson of Southern Methodist. Attempting to pass into the flat zone, Goodson lost control of the ball. It sailed backward about five yards and Bobbie Martin of Arkansas, rushing in to smear the play, caught the ball and ran 27 yards to a touchdown.

Lou Drone of St. Louis was attempting a point after touchdown against Washington university of St. Louis. He kicked low and the ball struck the chest of an opposing tackle and bounded high in the air and over the cross bar for the point.

Thanks to its end-around play on which six players are potential ball carriers, Michigan State trounced Kansas. Of the six Michigan State touchdowns the ends scored four, the backs two.

Bill Kurlish, Penn's heavy duty back, should have been given a couple of extra points for persistence in the Navy game. With the ball on Navy's five yard line, Kurlish swung around the Tars' left end and ran across the goal line. The play was called back, however and Penn was penalized five yards. On the next play, Kurlish again carried the ball. This time he swung around Navy's right end and ran 13 yards to a touchdown that stuck.

NALON WINS 3D STRAIGHT MIDGET AUTO FEATURE

Duke Nalon won his third successive 30 lap feature event and went into the lead for the indoor midget auto racing championship last night at the 124th Field Artillery armory. He drove under physical handicap because of an injury to his back sustained just before the start of the contest in a crackup with Shorty Sorenson. Jimmy Snyder, present champion, was second after passing Harry MacQuinn in the 25th lap. The latter was third. Results:

FIRST RACE, 12 LAPS—Won by Duke Nolan; Jimmy Snyder, second; Shorty Sorenson, third. Time, 2:44.

SECOND RACE, 12 LAPS—Won by Harry MacQuinn; Frank Beeder, second; Harry

oast Thrills, but Admits Notre Dame Superior.

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 6.—Los Angeles today was striving to regain its civic composure after one of the wildest football days in its history. Yesterday's tie game between Notre Dame and Southern California and the subsequent celebration by alumni and supporters of the two schools established a new record for thrills and gayety.

While most of the 68,000 spectators gave the Trojans credit for playing alert football, it was the consensus that under normal circumstances Notre Dame would have won by three touchdowns. It was one of the most one sided major games ever seen at the Coliseum in everything except the score. The fact that Notre Dame made 19 first downs to the Trojans' one is evidence. Seldom has a team received such a succession of quick breaks as did Southern California yesterday. But let it be etched in stone to their everlasting glory that the pupils of Coach Howard Jones knew what to do when the breaks came along.

Three Factors Shape Score.

There were three decisive factors in shaping the score. Two centered around Southern California's touchdowns and one around a touchdown Notre Dame actually scored but was disallowed.

After the Irish had marched back the opening kickoff in an unbroken parade to the goal Southern California first was favored by lady luck. Ambrose Schindler, sophomore, who next year will be one of the country's leading backs, made a substantial gain through the Notre Dame line, the only one of consequence during the game, but was hit hard by the Notre Dame secondary. The ball bounced out of his arms and dropped to the ground. Full Back Berryman scooped it up and had clear sailing to the goal. Officials are reported to have ruled it a lateral pass, which was an error of judgment, if true, because the ball went forward. It appeared from the press row, high atop the huge crater, that it was a fumble, which, of course, can be run with by the offensive team.

Blunder on Notre Dame Punt.

The most serious officiating blunder, however, occurred in the third quarter on a Notre Dame punt. It was the opinion of the majority of the fans, judging from the booing that followed, that the ball struck Schindler's foot before bounding into the end zone where it was recovered by the Irish. The official covering the play ruled the ball had not hit Schindler and it was given to the Trojans on their 20 yard line instead of standing as a touchdown for Notre Dame.

In the dressing room after the game Schindler admitted the ball had touched him

The agreement between the schools provides that when Notre Dame plays in Los Angeles four Pacific Coast officials will work the game. Four mid western arbiters handle the contest in South Bend.

Official Blocks Out Danbom.

The final tough break for Notre Dame also involved an official, but it was purely accidental. It occurred when Langley, Southern California back, intercepted a forward pass on his one yard line and sprinted 99 yards for a touchdown. Referee Tom Loutitt, attempting to follow the runner down field, blocked out Larry Danbom, Notre Dame full back, who undoubtedly would have brought down Langley on Southern California's 20 yard line. In a last desperate effort to overtake the flying Trojan Danbom ran over the official, who went sprawling to the ground, but the collision slowed down Danbom sufficiently to insure a touchdown.

Southern California players agreed that Notre Dame's line was the best they have encountered this year. Coach Jones said it was the strongest all around Irish eleven he has seen in recent years. Notre Dame men had praise for Bill Radovich, Trojan guard, who gave them no end of annoyance, particularly in the last half when Southern California began to realize it was in the ball game.

Irish Leave for Home.

The Notre Dame squad left for home this evening by way of Boulder Dam. Two special trains carrying Notre Dame rooters from the middle west also left Los Angeles tonight.

This community now will turn its interest to the Rose Bowl game between Washington and Pittsburgh New Year's day. Selection of Pitt has aroused strong resentment from fans and press who wanted either Alabama or Louisiana State. Pitt's record in California has been anemic. When announcement was made at yesterday's game about ticket sales for the Rose Bowl contest the hooting drowned out the words from the microphone. Frank Thomas, Alabama coach, who was in the stands, said "It was worth coming all the way to Los Angeles to hear that booing."

PURPLE QUINTET TO OPEN SEASON WITH CARLETON

Northwestern's basketball team, with last year's five intact, will open its twenty game schedule at Patten gymnasium tonight against Carleton college of Northfield, Minn. Tonight's clash will be the first of five practice games that the Wildcats will engage in before opening their Big Ten campaign with Illinois Jan. 4.

The new seating arrangement in Patten gymnasium, which places every seat between the baskets, will be used for the first time tonight. The new setup was made possible by changing the playing court from a lengthwise to a crosswise position of the gymnasium. New hanging baskets and an electric scoreboard will complete the alterations.

Coach Dutch Lonborg will start his tenth season at Northwestern with a large number of experienced players available. Ten letter men, plus several promising sophomores, have been waging a spirited fight for positions on this year's quintet. Only two letter men, both reserves, were lost from last year's five.

Cardinals and Packers Play Scoreless Tie wide around the Packers' right end for five yards and another first down.

Cardinal Attack Fails.

Grosvenor lost five attempting a pass, but Dowell got four back inside right tackle and Nichelini went ten yards outside the same position to the six yard line. Grosvenor made it first down on the four yard line. The Cardinals then attempted to buck the line and Dowell and Grosvenor lost a yard apiece as the quarter ended.

The drive came to grief on the first play of the second quarter, after play had switched back down to the muddy end of the field, when Nichelini, attempting to run wide around the Packers' left end, lost five yards. Grosvenor's pass to Creighton in the end zone on fourth down was knocked down by Laws for a touchback.

Smith's Kick Fails

The Cardinals got a break when Pangle recovered Hinkle's fumble on the Green Bay 40 yard line. Grosvenor made three then lost eight before he broke wide around Hutson at left end, then cut back and went 18 yards to the 27 yard line. Grosvenor got away for 12 more yards on the next play, but both sides were offside. Kellogg got nine yards in three plunges and Grosvenor made it first down on the 16 yard line with a six yard gain inside left tackle.

Grosvenor fumbled a bad pass from center and lost five yards, then Kellogg lost two after Grosvenor had gotten back one, leaving the ball on the 18 yard line with fourth down and a minute to play. Bill Smith was called from the bench to place-kick but his attempt from the 27 yard line was low.

TOTH, SVENDSON, HAMRICK ACCEPT ALL-EAST BIDS

Three more Big Ten players have accepted invitations to play on the All-Star East football team that is being assembled by Dick Hanley, former Northwestern coach, and Andy Kerr of Colgate, to play in a Shrine hospital benefit game at San Francisco New Year's day.

Other Big Ten players who had previously accepted invitations are Merle Wendt, Ohio State end; Ed Widseth, Minnesota tackle, and Ken Nelson, Illinois end. Invitations have been extended to 11 midwest players.

Only players who have completed their college competition and who do not participate in any other sport are eligible for the All-Star team.

In the Wake of the News

HERE AND THERE.

THAT Southern California tied Notre Dame, 13-13, Saturday while recording only one first down to nineteen for the Irish shows the possibilities of modern football. "Breaks" of the game made a thrilling contest of what otherwise might have been a somewhat drab affair.

From the excellent broadcast which came over W-G-N through the Mutual chain, one deduced Trojans improved greatly in their defense as the game progressed, but principally their alertness prevented what at first promised a rout.

One was impressed, too, by the number of sophomores used by Southern California. Those Trojans should be tough for the next two years, at least. Coach Francis Schmidt of Ohio State, which starts a 2 year home and home series with Southern California beginning next fall, was there to observe.

Speaking of discrepancies between points and first downs, The Wake remembers the Minnesota-Wisconsin game of 1926, when Badgers did not make a first down all afternoon yet with only a few minutes to go were leading, 10 to 9, on a touchdown and field goal secured as result of fumbles and a blocked kick, if we remember rightly.

With the game seemingly in the bag, Nydahl of Minnesota received a punt about the middle of the field and eluded opposing tacklers for a sprint along the sidelines to a touchdown, running so close to the lines that once it looked as if he possibly stepped out. Minnesota won by that run, 16 to 10.

Two foreign horses are entered for the Santa Anita $100,000 handicap at Los Angeles in February. They are Charles Fox, a 5 year old from Australia, and Grand Manitou, a 3 year old from France. An Irish bred colt, Sunset Trail, also is entered for the Derby.

Football already has contests known as Rose bowl, Sugar bowl, Orange bowl, and Cotton bowl. Suppose it would be hardly proper to suggest a Punch bowl, whose name might be derived either from a particularly wet community or from the character of play.

Ballots have been sent to members of the board of award for their choice of the Big Ten player of greatest value to his team for the season of 1936. Winner will receive THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's thirteenth annual Silver Football. Returns may be a trifle slower than usual this season as several members of the board are enjoying post-season vacations.

Chicago Radio Stations Fight Baseball Curb park were rather unbridled, but complaints have been rare.

"I have asked the Chicago stations to submit a schedule of fees. The contract calls for a sliding scale based on exclusive arrangements, but these will not seek any exclusive contracts. The Cubs and Sox are agreed that exclusive contracts are undesirable in Chicago."

Wrigley Favors Control.

Mr. Wrigley, who like his late father, William Wrigley Jr., long considered radio's best friend among National leaguers especially, said he would favor league control though the several Cub organizations in the past have been leaders for individual contracts.

"I never have contended that radio arrangements as applied to baseball broadcasts were perfect, but I have urged on the bitter opponents of radio in the league that radio has become such a definite aspect of our lives that we must recognize it and not try to ignore it as several club owners have tried to do.

"There will be no exclusive or semi-exclusive broadcasts from Wrigley field. All who pay the fee and accept the contract agreed upon here this week will be permitted to broadcast. We are in agreement with the White Sox in this matter."

Mr. Wrigley said he had expected to receive a draft of the Chicago stations' contract today but that it had not been received. He did not discuss his attitude on control of announcers' views and opinions but intimated he would support the league contract rather than that through which the stations hope to retain the right to lambast the players and umpires, etc.

Jimmy Walthour, Al Crossley Plan Races in Europe

New York, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Jimmy Walthour of New York and his partner, Al Crossley of Boston, first All-American team since 1927 to win New York's semi-annual six day bicycle race, planned tonight to sail for Europe Wednesday in search of further laurels.

The two came from behind in the last hour last night to take the 61st renewal of the New York race. They were tied in mileage with two other teams, but their point total, acquired through the week's sprints, gave them the edge over Torchy Peden of Canada and Bobby Thomas of Kenosha, Wis., who were second, and Alvaro Georgetti, Italy, and Gerard Debaets, Belgium, third.

Officers announced tonight the crowd at Madison Square Garden for the finish was 19,000, largest in six years, and that the 130,000 attendance for the week was a 25 per cent increase over the last race.

FURTHER RISE IN COMMODITY PRICES SHOWN

Many Now Are Highest in Several Years.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Virtually every major commodity last week shared in the general advance which carried prices in many instances to the highest level in several years. The current upward movement in commodities has been underway for several weeks. Last week's gains added materially to the appreciation that had occurred previously.

The wide front on which prices have advanced makes it plain that it is not alone the supply and demand factors affecting particular articles that have been entirely responsible for the upturn. The market action lends support to the belief that worldwide inflationary influences are playing a large rôle in the price appreciations.

Prices Rise in Last Month.

A comparison of Saturday's prices on a dozen representative commodities traded in Chicago and New York shows uniformly higher prices as compared with a month earlier.

December wheat in Chicago is selling 12¾ cents a bushel above the price quoted at the beginning of November. December corn is selling 16 cents a bushel higher compared with Nov. 1. Other commodities, including coffee, sugar, cocoa, cotton, cottonseed oil, hides, lard, rubber and soy beans, today are commanding higher prices than were quoted on Nov. 1.

At the high prices quoted last week two commodities, corn and cocoa, were selling at double the season's low quotations.

With normal consumption of wheat this season the world reserve supply will be reduced to the lowest figure in the last twelve years.

1,500 MILLION U. S. FINANCING SET FOR DEC. 15

Interest on Bonds to Be Reduced.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—[Special.]—A national debt in excess of 34 billion dollars, lowered interest rates on government bonds and elimination of preferential treatment for the small investor, featured the administration's plans for a billion and a half mid-December financing operation announced today by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr.

Morgenthau said that the Dec. 15 financing, which includes the borrowing of 700 millions to cover continuation of deficits incurred, would be the last until March, when heavy income tax collections will pour into the treasury. Refunding raises the overall amount of the financing to $1,486,631,900.

Pointing to increased expenditures for relief and drouth, Morgenthau said he could not forecast what the national debt would total at the end of the government's fiscal year next June 30. He admitted that President Roosevelt's preëlection estimate of 750 millions of borrowing in the fiscal year would have to be revised upward.

Details of Program.

Major details of the treasury's financing program are as follows:

1. Seven hundred million dollars' worth of 2½ per cent bonds maturing in seventeen years and callable in thirteen years will be offered to the public. This is a drop of a quarter of a per cent in interest from the September borrowing of 470 millions in 2¾ per cent twenty and twenty-three year bonds. The shrinking interest rate on the new bonds, a direct result of the administration's deficit financing, is the lowest since the 2 per cent consols of 1900 and Panamas of 1907 and 1909 issues which bore circulation privileges.

2. Refunding of 2¾ per cent treasury notes maturing Dec. 15 in the amount of $357,921,200 with the new bonds or new five year 1¼ per cent treasury notes.

3. Similar exchange of 3 per cent notes maturing Feb. 15 in the amount of $428,730,700. This issue is being called now, Morgenthau explained several days ago, so that the federal reserve board will not be hamstrung in any action to tighten the money market to head off speculation. Such action would have a deleterious effect on government financing, since it would tend to push up interest rates.

For Public Debt Interest.

4. Redemption in cash of short term treasury bills totaling $400,377,000 issued early in the summer to aid payment of the veterans' bonus. The treasury will also meet 138 million dollars interest on the public debt on Dec. 15.

In announcing that the treasury would not permit the small investor to have his subscription up to $5,000 met in full as in the past, but would be forced to accept a pro rata share just as the big bond buyer, Morgenthau declared that the public had "abused" the privilege. The plan "to give the little fellow a break" was initiated by Secretary Ogden Mills during the Hoover régime.

"People have been trying to beat their own government," asserted Morgenthau. "They not only subscribed but they brought in their families, children and grandchildren in order to obtain extra allotments

Bankers Play 'Peek-a-Boom'; It's a Bang!

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 6.—[Special.]—The citizenry of this southern city today gave the thousand departing Investment Banker delegates a cheery sendoff, convinced that the bond business has its lighter side.

During the five day convention of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, Augustans picked up an estimated $150,000 in revenue and the discovery that golf, the chief local industry, is not the only game that bankers can play.

A new variation of golf itself was introduced by a group of prominent financiers who injected a little life into the early morning hours today by teeing off from one end of a hotel corridor and trying to make a hole in one through a closed window at the other end, fifty yards down the carpeted fairway. None of the foursome was successful, but a few birdies were scored as the balls bounced from door to door arousing a none too pleased gallery.

Followed by Peek-a-Boom.

This frolicsome pastime led to the game of "peek-a-boom," the only apparent point of which was to get occupants of all rooms along a given corridor to take a peek after some celebrant had thrown a Fourth of July torpedo against somebody's door.

The post-midnight jollity was further enlivened when some delegate invited everybody to come down and "see the horse we've put in my roommate's bed."

This exhibit consisted of a four foot papier maché horse, lying in bed dressed up in the absent roommate's riding habit, including the boots and spurs.

During the first day of the convention a sleet and rain storm kept the visitors indoors and placed a premium on ingenuity in entertainment, which resulted in several novel diversions. One westerner, a war veteran, whiled away an idle hour drilling a hurriedly recruited squad of colored mercenaries armed with brooms and mops, in a court under the hotel dining room.

Lose at African Dominoes.

A slightly more serious game of "African dominoes" was reported to have ended in a complication when a slicker stranger was called in by the hotel management to explain having taken several delegates for $1,000 with some phoney equipment.

The less boisterous delegates who concentrated on golf during off hours also had their diversions. Fifty followed Bobby Jones as a gallery while he played the Augusta National Country club course.

LANDIS WARNING AROUSES FEARS OF BANK GROUP

Adds to Tension Over New Deal Plans.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 6.—Delegates to the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, homeward bound on their special trains today, were convinced that the session just ended was one of the most momentous in the history of the organization.

Behind the bromidic formal speeches and committee reports seethed a boiling controversy which came to the surface only in back room conferences. It revolved around the fundamental conflict of opinion between the investment bankers and the administration in Washington over the New Deal policies of increasingly strict regulation of the securities business and easy money rates.

Landis Heightens Tension.

The presence here of Chairman James M. Landis of the SEC only served to heighten the tension between the bond men and the economic planners of the New Deal. Landis created a sensation by using the opportunity to crack down on the bankers with the demand that they comply with the "mandate" of the recent presidential election by setting up their own machinery for strict self-discipline "or else."

Fearful of incurring New Deal reprisals, the delegates refrained from open argument with the SEC head, confining their remonstrances to casual questions on the golf course as to whether Landis had really meant to deliver so strong a dose.

They left to an outsider, Lionel D. Edie, head of a New York firm of "economic consultants," the job of pointing up the issue. Edie today made the last address on the program.

Edie Sees Trouble Ahead.

Edie told the bankers that they were suckers to let the New Dealers get away with their current propaganda campaign, aimed at setting up alibis for the administration and passing the buck to the bankers and brokers. The economic fixers in Washington, Edie said, saw trouble down the road and were shrewdly pointing the blameful finger at the bankers and brokers in the hope that when that trouble develops the public will again hold the financiers of the nation responsible.

Pointing out that bond prices have already been forced to abnormally high levels as a result of the administration's "easy money" policy in the wake of the growing federal debt, Edie warned the investment men that they would again be made the scapegoat when interest rates go up and bond prices fall.

"Already efforts are being made in Washington to put the blame on private bankers when the turn in money rates comes," he said.

Chicagoan Made President.

As their final official act of the convention the delegates elected as president of the association for the coming year Edward B. Hall of Harris, Hall & Co., Chicago, whose nomination last May by the board of governors had been unopposed. Hall thus becomes the second Chicagoan to head the I. B. A. in recent years, Frank Gordon, vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago, having been the last Chicago banker to hold the position.

D. T. Richardson of Kelley, Richardson & Co., Chicago municipal bond house, was elected treasurer.

SPIEGEL, MAY, STERN TO PAY EXTRA DIVIDEND OF 2 DOLLARS A SHARE

Further payments of extra dividends to stockholders and of bonuses to employés were disclosed yesterday by a number of companies. The Spiegel, May, Stern Co., Inc., ordered an extra dividend of $2 per share on the common stock, payable Dec. 18 to stock of record Dec. 12, bringing the total dividends on the common this year to $5 per share. The directors indicated their intention of placing the common on a regular dividend basis of $5 per share for 1937, which will be equal to $1 per share after five shares are issued for each one share now outstanding.

The stockholders approved increasing the authorized common stock of the company from 350,000 to 1,750,000 shares, of which 1,750,000 will be issued to the holders of 253,000 shares now outstanding. A change in the corporate name to Spiegel, Inc., was also approved.

The Sangamo Electric company declared the regular dividend of 50 cents a share on the common and an extra of 25 cents a share, both payable Dec. 24 to stock of record Dec. 17. The directors voted a Christmas bonus totaling $41,000 to employés, bringing the total amount paid employés this year above regular compensation to $115,000.

The Kline Brothers company, operators of a department store chain, will pay one week's salary to employés with service one year or longer and those with six months but less than a year will get a half week's pay. Other workers will get amounts proportionate to their weekly earnings.

SEC TO CONTROL HOLDING CONCERN DIVIDEND ACTION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Exercising broad powers under the public utility holding company act, the Securities and Exchange commission today prohibited registered holding companies from paying dividends unless approved by the commission.

The order was issued under that section of the act which gives the commission power to prevent the dividend payments in order "to protect the financial integrity of companies in holding company systems, to safeguard the working capital of public utility companies, to prevent the payment of dividends out of capital of unearned surplus." The commission's order becomes effective Jan. 1, 1937.

In another ruling the commission permitted the continuation of managerial and service relations without the necessity of obtaining the commission's approval. Before the adoption of this rule, such service could be rendered only upon the specific approval of the commission. The new order is subject to a 30 day limitation. If during the 30 day exemption period a service company submits an application for approval, such company may continue to provide service until the commission shall have taken final action on the application.

BELIEVE GOVERNMENT RECEIPTS THIS YEAR MAY TOP 5½ BILLIONS

If estimates of government income for the fiscal year ending next June 30, placed at $5,666,000,000, prove correct, the total will be the second largest in the history of the country, exceeded only in 1920, according to a study issued yesterday by the National Industrial Conference board.

The present upward trend in federal receipts is more pronounced than at any time in history, exclusive of the civil and world war periods, the board said.

"For the first quarter of the fiscal year 1937," the statement said, "federal receipts amounted to $1,136,000,000, an increase of 13.8 per cent over the same period last year. Receipts for the full year will be more than four times as large as collections in the first quarter.

"This is chiefly because receipts from income and profits taxes, which are expected to amount to $2,303,000,000, or 61.5 per cent more than in 1936, will be affected by the revenue act of 1936 only in the second half of the fiscal year."

Gain in Business Shown by Fidelity Mutual Life

New York, Dec. 6.—(AP)—New paid life insurance of the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance company of Philadelphia in November amounted to $2,777,800, an increase of $543,390, or 24.3 per cent, over November, 1935.

Goodrich Hits Secrecy; Tells of Refinancing

Introducing a unique feature in relations between a large corporation and its stockholders, letters are being sent to stockholders of the B. F. Goodrich company today revealing the net proceeds of the recent offering of $27,000,000 in 4¼ per cent first mortgage bonds.

David M. Goodrich, chairman of the board, says the letter is intended as a step toward "speeding the abandonment by management of the traditional and unnecessary secrecy which has so many times shrouded word of the actual proceeds from the sale of bond issues.

"In the earnest desire that each stockholder of this company be at all times as fully informed as possible regarding its affairs," he continued, "the board of directors has instructed me to write you of another step taken to improve its capital structure, and to place it in a better position to handle a larger volume of business."

Old Bonds to Be Retired.

The letter showed that the company realized $26,527,500 from the sale of the bond issue at 98¼ net. The $16,421,500 of 6½ per cent first mortgage bonds outstanding have been called for redemption on Feb. 1, 1937, at 107 plus interest, the letter pointed out, and after paying the cost of this redemption the company would have $8,682,455 of additional funds.

"The sale of this issue of bonds—together with the change in the preferred stock which was voted at the Sept. 9 stockholders' meeting—has, I think, materially strengthened the company," said Goodrich.

"Giving effect to these two changes, the outstanding securities consist of $27,000,000 first mortgage 4¼ per cent 20 year bonds, due Dec. 1, 1956; $19,798,800 of 6 per cent convertible debentures, due June 1, 1945; 412,031.2 shares of $5 cumulative preferred stock without par value, and 1,303,255 shares of common stock without par value."

Pennsylvania Water Offer.

An issue of $7,250,000 of first collateral trust 4¼ per cent bonds of the Pennsylvania State Water corporation, due in 1966, will be offered today by a group headed by W. C. Langley & Co. at 103 and accrued interest.

F. S. Yantis & Co., Inc., Chicago, today will offer publicly 130,000 shares of capital stock of Bardstown Distillery, Inc., Bardstown, Ky., at $3.75 a share. Of the offering 100,000 shares represent new financing, and the proceeds will be used for expansion of plant property, additional equipment, and other corporate purposes.

STEEL INDUSTRY NOW PUSHED TO FULFILL ORDERS

Output at 76½ Pct., Highest in Years.

With national steel works operations up 1 point last week to 76½ per cent of plant capacity, the highest rate in many years, the big problem now facing the industry is how to produce the tonnage on mill books before Jan. 1, when the higher prices go into effect, the magazine Steel said yesterday. Backlogs have become the largest since 1929.

The journal pointed out that steel operations show no signs of slackening during the remainder of the month and mills have already started allotting tonnage.

"Virtually all materials have been affected, but in sheets particularly the buying wave has been most noticeable," the publication asserted.

Railroad Purchases Heavy.

"On one day, Dec. 1, the orders booked by some mills are reported to have reached proportions which would have been considered a fair month's total not long ago."

The week brought forth the heaviest railroad purchases in many years, totaling 409,000 tons. Since Nov. 1 the carriers have purchased about 739,000 tons and many thousands of tons of track accessories.

Automobile production at 100,395 units was down about 3,800 from the previous week's total of 104,283. This was largely because a supplier's labor trouble reacted upon assembly lines of one of the largest manufacturers, according to Steel.

Although shape awards were up only about 1,000 tons to 17,257, the volume of new pending business was unusually extensive, stated Steel.

Predict Higher Scrap Prices.

With scrap markets in most districts much stronger, predictions of higher prices are being made by some experts. Steel's scrap composite has advanced 13 cents to $16.25 a ton, largely because of gains in eastern Pennsylvania. The iron and steel composite has gained 20 cents and is now at $34.99, reflecting increases in steel rails and cast iron pipe. The current finished steel index is unchanged at $53.90.

Operations in the Pittsburgh district last week were up 2 points to 70 per cent; Youngstown, 3 to 78; Wheeling, 3 to 92; Cleveland, 2½ to 79½; New England, 3 to 91. Other districts remained unchanged, except Detroit, which lost 5 points to 95 per cent.

COUNTY AND RFC SPAR FOR STAKE OVER 12 MILLION

Poor Relief Bond Issue, Premium Involved.

With $12,800,000 at stake—with Cook county taxpayers being the losers or the winners by the result—the county board and Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation are warily waiting each other's next move, it was learned yesterday.

Involved are $12,000,000 in poor relief bonds which the county sold to the RFC a few years ago, and $800,000 in premiums were the bonds to be sold at the present market figure of $108. The situation is related to the county's recent refunding program. All bonds have been refunded save those held by the RFC.

County Wants Premium.

Clayton F. Smith, board head, revealed yesterday that the county has been trying to persuade Chairman Jones to agree to the refunding subject to two conditions. One is that the premiums, amounting to $800,000, be turned back to the county if the RFC sells the bonds. The second is that the refunding contract be canceled if congress at its next session passes contemplated legislation to reimburse counties for poor relief bonds issued prior to the last $300,000,000 federal relief appropriations.

"In other words the county taxpayers stand the chance of abatement of the annual tax levy that must be made from year to year for the payment of those bonds and interest if congress reimburses us," President Smith said.

Jones Opposed to Conditions.

"I am told there is a good chance for such legislation. Mr. Jones argues otherwise. He takes the attitude that the premiums, if he sells the bonds he holds, should go to the RFC. He also declares that the possibility of reimbursement to counties is ultra vires, which means simply that the present situation has nothing to do with something that might or might not happen in the future."

The county board head said he had notified the RFC chairman that the county was averse to entering into the refunding agreement without the two conditions. The matter, he wrote, was now resting in the hands of the county finance committee.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Monday, December 7, 1936.

[Copyright: 1936: By The Chicago Tribune.]

American Stores.

Investors' Guide: Please advise regarding stock of American Stores as to its desirability for permanent investment.—C. H. M.

Answer: American Stores company operates a chain of grocery and meat stores in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and neighboring states. It was formed in 1917 through acquisition of four chains that had been in business twenty-five years, and is one of the oldest chain grocery systems in the United States.

Growth has been financed entirely out of earnings, sole capitalization being 1,301,320 shares of no par common stock. More than $28,000,000 of profits have been reinvested in the last twelve years. The company's expansion in the last decade has been more conservative than that of most of its rivals. There now are 2,800 stores, about the same number as in 1930, and compared with 2,000 in 1926. The stores are concentrated in a relatively small area, 1,770 being in Pennsylvania and 610 in New Jersey.

Net income has declined almost without interruption since a record of $7,693,000, or $4.66 a share was set in 1926, when there were 1,649,241 shares outstanding. Sales also have fallen off from a high of $143,346,000 in 1929. The record of recent years follows:

	Sales.	Net income.	Income per share.
1935	$115,867,000	$2,716,000	$2.09
1934	114,385,000	3,363,000	2.58
1933	109,387,000	4,198,000	3.22
1932	115,454,000	4,314,000	3.31

Sales were $57,015,000, and net income was $1,084,000, or 83 cents a share, in the first six months of 1936, compared with $58,776,000 sales and net income of $1,400,000, or $1.08 a share, in the first half of 1935. Sales for the first ten months of 1936 were $93,800,000, against $96,402,000 in the like 1935 period.

Financial position remains good, current assets being $20,300,000, against current liabilities of $3,400,000 at the end of 1935.

Dividends have been paid without interruption since 1920. The annual rate has been $2 a share since 1926. An extra of 50 cents a share paid each year since 1926 was omitted in 1935.

In spite of the decline in earnings, the stock still appears to deserve a fairly good rating.

Interest on 700 Million Bond Issue Cut.

which then could be sold on the market at a premium."

He cited the cases of one man who had "dragged in" 21 members of his family, and a bank which had put in requests for bonds on behalf of all its clerks.

"It's impossible to police this thing," said Morgenthau disgustedly.

Bob Up in Market.

The cases were discovered, it was explained, when the bonds in question bobbed up in the market within two or three days after they had been issued by the federal reserve bank. Treasury officials were on the lookout for such practices.

Only the volume of taxes flowing in and the funds going out for relief could determine ultimately the amount of the debt at the close of the fiscal year, according to Morgenthau.

Since 538 of the borrowed 700 millions will be used to retire bills and pay interest on the debt, the total added to the debt will be 162 millions. This would send the national debt soaring just above the 34 billion dollar mark, since it amounted to 33 billion 841 million dollars on the basis of the most recent figures.

The national debt went above 34 billions in June, when the treasury borrowed heavily for the bonus. As the funds were distributed among the veterans the debt then dropped to around the 33 billion mark but has been creeping upward in recent months.

To Double Weekly Issue.

Between now and March 15 the treasury will obtain approximately 300 million dollars through the doubling of its weekly issue of 50 million dollars' worth of short term bills. Morgenthau declared, however, that the bills would be redeemed in cash on March 15, which would mean that they would not be added to the debt. Short term paper is being floated in order to cover the lag in tax collections around the turn of the year.

Morgenthau issued a formal statement regarding the offering as it related to tax exemption, methods of subscriptions and the closing of the books. It read, in part, as follows:

"The treasury bonds and the treasury notes will be accorded the same exemptions from taxation as are accorded other issues of treasury bonds and treasury notes, respectively, now outstanding.

"Subscriptions will be received at the federal reserve banks and branches, and at the treasury department, Washington. Banking institutions generally may submit subscriptions for account of customers, but only the federal reserve banks and the treasury department are authorized to act as official agencies.

Subscriptions Restricted.

"With respect to cash subscriptions for the bonds, applications from banks and trust companies for their own account will be received without deposit but will be restricted in each case to an amount not exceeding one-half of the combined capital and surplus of the subscribing bank or trust company, and cash subscriptions from all others must be accompanied by payment of 10 per cent of the amount of bonds applied for."

COMPANY BONDS OF SPECULATIVE RATING ACTIVE

Treasury Financing Plans Influence Market.

New York, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Developments in the bond market last week were easier to assess on the basis of individual movements than with respect to the broad trends.

Trading interest, shifting in rotating fashion from group to group, placed most emphasis on corporate liens having a speculative rating. Many of these achieved substantial gains. The general movement was extremely uneven.

Considerations affecting low yield bonds included Secretary Morgenthau's announcement of details of the treasury's December financing program.

It was said that the purpose to borrow $300,000,000 new money, apart from the refundings, was somewhat in line with expectations. Considerable interest was aroused, however, by the intimation that the treasury would consider further "new money" operations before next June and would complete its weekly bill purchases early in January.

In government quarters reference to the bill purchase plan was connected with federal reserve board's study of the excess reserves situation, possibly indicating a move to cut the reserve early in the new year. The swing of prices in the government list and in the low field corporate ratings failed, however, to indicate any concern over the prospective action.

The federals snowed rallying tendencies which canceled moderate declines recorded during the first half of the week.
